

Mail Contract Continues Six-Day Service In Area

The trucking firm of Anderson and LaFayette have been awarded the new Coos Bay-Powers mail contract. It was revealed this week by Ernest Watkins, postmaster of the Myrtle Point office.

Watkins said the contract intimated continuation of the six-day mail service in southern Coos county, with no provision made for Sunday delivery or pickup. The six-day service has long carried with it a hail of protest from citizens in this area, who object to the 48-hour period from 4:30 Saturday afternoon until 4:30 Monday afternoon, during which time no mail is delivered or picked up.

Senators, Wayne Morse and Guy Cordon and Congressman Harris Ellsworth were contacted earlier in the year concerning the inadequate service and assured the area of their support in restoring the seven-day service.

No change in the schedule now in operation has been announced. The new contract is let for a three-year period.

Upon completion of his training the recruit is assigned either to units of the fleet or to a service school for specialized training.

Coquille Telephone Girls

THE SENTINEL cameraman got busy the other day checking up on just who all the nice voices at the Coquille West Coast Telephone office belonged to, and here's what he found. Placing from three to four hundred long distance calls a day, and thousands of local calls are these charming members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Engineers. Working each shift there are two local operators, one toll, one toll recording operator, and one Western Union operator. They like their work, and think most people are swell. But they also have a pet peeve—people who place calls and then forget to notify the operator that they have left the phone. Pictured above reading from top down, left to right, are Helen Endicott, Western Union operator at the teletype; Margie Rogers, Thelma Inger, and Leona Terry at the switchboard; below, laughing (which isn't good operating they hastened to tell us so their district manager wouldn't blame them because The Sentinel photographer told them to look pleasant for the birdie) are June Mohagen and Welleta O'Dell; next comes Margie Rogers at the toll-recording board; Leona Terry at the Western Union desk, and bottom right, Priscilla Hickam, chief operator.

Rogue River Dams Get Chamber's Frown In Vote By Members Tuesday Noon

An official protest by the Coquille Chamber of Commerce over the proposed army engineer's dams on the Rogue river was voted by the Chamber of Commerce members Tuesday noon.

President Evan Alborn presented a report from the Bandon Chamber of Commerce that told of their action supporting any protest the Coquille Chamber might make. It is also understood that Myrtle Point will agree with the Coquille Chamber.

According to Mr. Alborn the Southwestern Sportsmen's groups are planning to petition the local congressional representatives to set aside the Rogue river area as a perpetual recreational area.

Manager Clarence Osika reported that the army engineers had reported to reliable sources that there was no defense basis for the dam work.

Attorney Harry Slack voiced his approval of any type of action that would stop the proposed dam work. He was seconded by Ed Throckmorton.

Upon a motion of Slack's to record the Chamber's opposition to the work, a vote was taken and passed in favor of the opposition.

Station Wagons Go Up Again

Increased prices on Chevrolet station wagons and convertibles were announced today by Nicholas Dreystadt, general manager, Chevrolet Motor Division.

The price of the station wagon is advanced approximately $100 and the convertible about $75. Prices of all other Chevrolet models remain the same.

Dreystadt pointed out that station wagons and convertibles incorporate a relatively high percentage of parts supplied by outside sources, the cost of which has increased sharply in recent months. This plus the fact that both models are produced in low volume make these price adjustments necessary, he said.
