Mackburg Girl Has Severe Fall

MACKSBURG, Dec. 4.—To judge from the temperature at mid-day on this, the first day of December, when the sun shone out with an almost mid-summer fervor, irradiating all the expanse of rain-washed verdure and giving the drops still clinging to the tree the glitter of burnished steel, one might have thought the season had sprung forward in its course and brought us into the smiling April of 1920, but the thought of the ever-lengthening days of the almost constant rain. One glance at the river's overflowed banks suffices to remind us that winter has but commenced his stormy reign.

Thanksgiving day emerging from a week of torrent and wind with a glad and sunny sky was appropriately observed. The Thanksgiving services were well attended. Homes bright with the gladness of absent ones returned, and replete with the good things of earth were not the exception, but the rule.

Already, before the observance of a day of thanks for the blessings of the past, a promise of plenty for the next was visible in the fields of winter grain. As for the road though showing undeniable room for improvements, we have only to look back to the summer's dust to be reconciled to their mazy state in the season of rain.

We also look at these two annoyances, not as those who are without hope. As the sculptor scans the huge unshapely block of marble with the thought that a noble statue is standing therein, only waiting for his chisel and brain to bring it out before an admiring world, so we contemplate the material lying ready in our earth to be spread over the roads, making travel a pleasure unalloyed.

Archie Dougan, who recently filed suit for divorce from his wife, Eva, returned last evening unexpectedly from his place of employment, and found his home deserted. His father, Arthur Dougan, resides nearby and together they started in search of the wife of the younger man, for the purpose of securing possession of the young child of the couple, a little girl of about three years.

The Dougans allege that they came upon the wife of Archie about a mile from the family home. She was in the company of a young woman, said to be a resident of Toledo, and two men of the neighborhood by the name of Utiger, they allege.

A fight immediately started, during the course of which the elder Dougan alleges he was repeatedly struck over the head by a slungshot or similar weapon. In retaliation he pulled a .32-calibre revolver from his pocket and shot one of the Utiger boys. The latter placed both hands over his stomach, it is said, and sat down on a nearby stump.

The Dougans, with the child of the young couple, were brought to Oregon City in the car of Mr. Erickson, Mulino storekeeper. Dr. C. A. Stuart was called and dressed the injuries of the older man, who was cut about the head. The extent of the injuries of the young man who was shot could not be learned, but it was reported that a doctor had been summoned to treat his injuries. Dougan states he fired point blank, while engaged in a hand to hand struggle with the man. The affair was immediately reported to the sheriff, who instructed the Dougans to secure lodgings in town for the night.

The Dougans lost one child by death on November 4. He alleges in his divorce complaint that his wife had been guilty of undue familiarity with other men.
