

IN SOCIETY CIRCLES

The marriage of Mrs. Sylvia Midlam, of Canemah, and Mr. Ven Emen, of South Dakota, was solemnized at Vancouver, Wash., Saturday, November 22. The affair was very quiet and came as a surprise to Mrs. Ven Emen's friends.

After remaining in Canemah for a few months, it is the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Ven Emen to go to South Dakota, where the former has property interests.

The bride has resided at Canemah most of her life, and is the daughter of Mrs. Hingman, one of the early Oregon pioneers, and a well known resident of Canemah.

The marriage of Miss Elda A. Baxter, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Baxter, of this city, and Ervin E. Riley, of Ocean Falls, B. C., was solemnized at the Presbyterian church at Vancouver, B. C., Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, November 28.

The bride was becomingly attired in a traveling suit of navy blue with hat to match. She was unattended, the wedding being a very quiet affair.

Among those attending were Mrs. C. A. Baxter, mother of the bride, who accompanied her daughter from this city, and J. Nunn, an intimate friend of the bridegroom.

Following the marriage ceremony a dinner was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley will take up their residence at Ocean Falls, where the former is employed by a paper company. They will leave for that city next Tuesday, after spending their honeymoon in Vancouver, B. C.

The bride is one of Oregon City's most popular young women. She was born and reared here, attending the Oregon City schools, and graduating from the high school. She took a summer course at the Oregon normal at Monmouth, and later accepted the position as instructor in the Willamette school, and was successful in her profession as one. She comes from early Oregon pioneer families.

Previous to her marriage the bride was the guest of honor at a number of enjoyable functions, and was presented with many handsome gifts.

Mr. Riley was a former resident of Kansas. He came to Oregon City six years ago, and soon after his arrival met the young woman who became his bride, the marriage being the culmination of a pretty romance. He was one of the first young men of this city to answer his country's call when the United States became involved in the world war, and participated in some of the big battles in France. He was among the last of the young men to return to Oregon City. Shortly after arriving here he went to British Columbia, where he has since been employed in the paper mill.

Mrs. Charles Riley and daughter, Miss Olive entertained in a charming manner at their beautiful home at Rusley Station Friday evening in honor of Mrs. Robert Bradshaw, formerly Miss Ethelwyn Riley, now of The Dalles, who has been a guest at the home of her mother during the past week.

The interior of the home was prettily decorated for the occasion.

During the evening the spacious parlors were turned into a ball room and dancing was enjoyed to the music of an orchestra.

Punch was served, and at a late hour refreshments were enjoyed.

There were about 40 guests in attendance, and Oregon City was represented by 30 friends of the family, and a number from Portland were among the guests.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Moore, of Molalla, prominent early pioneers of that place, a family reunion was held on Thanksgiving.

The living and dining rooms were decorated in a most artistic manner with cut flowers and ferns.

During the afternoon an elaborate Thanksgiving dinner was served, when turkey and everything that goes with it were on the menu.

Places were laid at the prettily decorated table for Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Eby and sons, Marvin and Roland, Mrs. Olive Fox and children, Martin, Ellen, Lester and Bobby, of this city; Marion Moore and daughters, Marjorie and Madeline, of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Moore, of Molalla.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mrs. Naomi Volkmar, of Seventh and Madison Streets Wednesday evening, when her only daughter, Miss Mable Irene Volkmar, became the wife of Mr. John Clinton Jones, of Macleay, Ore. Rev. Mr. Edgar, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiated, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties.

The bride was prettily gowned in pale blue crepe meteor. She was unattended.

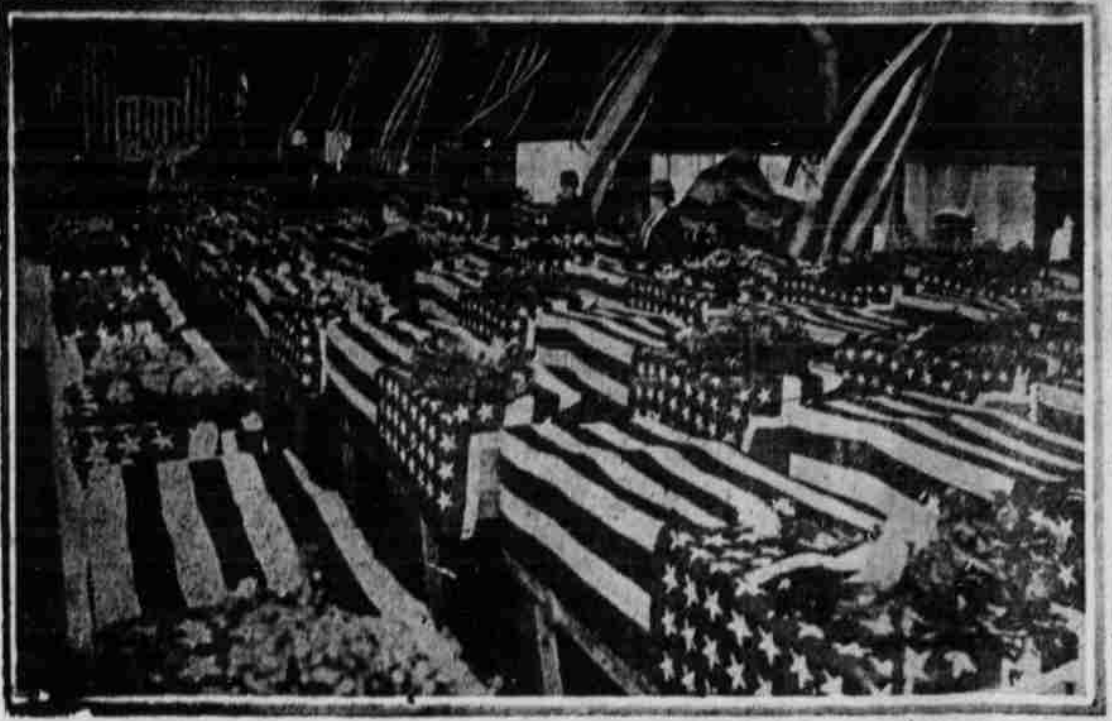

Preceding the marriage ceremony, Mrs. Frank Schoenborn sang impressively "At Dawning", and as the last notes of Mrs. Schoenborn's selection were sung, "Lohengrin's Wedding March" was rendered by Mrs. Shepard, of Gresham, as the bridal party entered the living room.

The ceremony was performed beneath a floral archway, and the room, as well as the adjoining room were correspondingly decorated.

Following the ceremony refreshments were served, and Wednesday evening the young couple left for their honeymoon, which is being spent at Newport, Oregon.

Attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Pancher, Mrs. Sheppard, grandmother of the bride, Glen and N. Pancher, of Gresham; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schoenborn, Miss Maude Park, of this city; Miss Bertha Miller, of Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Birchett and son, of Portland; Rev. and Mrs. Edwards. The bride is a well known young musician, and during her residence here has been engaged in piano instruction, and has been most successful as an instructor, and at the time

Relatives Mourning Over First Bodies of Soldier and Sailors Brought Back From Europe

Sorrowing relatives and friends gathered at the Hoboken, N. J., army transport piers when the "funeral ship" Lake Daraga brought back the bodies of 103 soldiers who died in the Archangel campaign and ten sailors who lost their lives in foreign waters. This photograph shows the coffins, flag draped and strewn with flowers, before they were borne across the street to a chapel where services were held. Five hundred members of the American Legion, a congressional committee and representatives of patriotic organizations joined the relatives of the dead at the services.

LOST JEWELRY TWICE LOST AND TWICE RECOVERED.

Miss Warner Recovers Lavalier After Losing it Under Unusual Conditions.

A lavalier and chain owned by Miss Maude Warner has something of a history, when it comes to having been lost on several occasions and returned to the owner under similar circumstances.

The necklace was a gift to Miss Warner when she was 18 years of age, and was from her father, the late Robert Warner. Miss Warner wore the necklace to the cemetery a number of years ago, and it was lost at that time.

Less than a year ago she noticed the necklace on a woman's neck, and admired it, and finally informed the woman it was similar to the one given her by her father, and that it had been lost.

The woman exclaimed she had been presented the necklace by her husband, who had purchased it from a jeweler, and after certain markings had been described by the owner, it was handed over to her.

In August she again lost it, this time being on her way to a friend's home in Willamette, and upon her return missed the jewel. Effort was made to find it at that time, but without result. Miss Warner asked a medium a short time ago as to the whereabouts of her chain and lavalier.

She was told by the medium that if she advertised for the necklace she would find it, as a woman had found it. Miss Warner called at the office of the Morning Enterprise a few days ago, and placed an advertisement in its columns, describing her jewel, and was rewarded a day or so after by having a woman call at her home, and said she had found the necklace, and desired to return it to her, and at that left, refusing to give her name or to accept a reward.

Miss Warner says, "I had heard people say that it pays to advertise in a newspaper, and I am now sure that the Morning Enterprise reaches the public and that by placing an advertisement in that paper you will be rewarded with good results. Nothing could have taken the place of the gift father gave me."

NO DATE HAS BEEN SET AS YET FOR BUDGET MEETING

County Court Meets Informally to Consider Matters to Come Before Budget Meeting

On Tuesday, December 2, county court of Clackamas county will meet at the court house in informal session for the purpose of considering matters of importance with reference to the forthcoming budget meeting. A great amount of interest is being manifested in this budget meeting and it is expected that the capacity of the circuit court room will be taxed to its utmost to accommodate the interested citizens of the county who are planning to attend.

At the meeting held last year there was a very large attendance and it is thought that the attendance will be even larger this year. In view of the abnormal conditions under which the world is laboring today and the high prices asked for every class of labor and materials, everyone is wondering and anxiously waiting to see how the county court will prepare to meet such conditions.

The passage of the $1,700,000 road bond issue has also created great interest among the taxpayers and many will be on hands to learn more about how this money is to be expended.

The regular session of the county court will convene at the court house on Wednesday, December 3. At this meeting a number of road matters are scheduled for hearing. It is expected that court will be in session for at least three days.

Judge Anderson, when asked, stated that the exact date for the budget meeting had not as yet been fixed but that it would of necessity be held in December and that the probabilities were that it would be held on some day between Christmas and New Year.

He said that it was necessary to wait for the figures from the state tax commission giving the valuation of public utilities in this county.

Underwood and Hitchcock Campaign

Friends of Senator Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, and Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, have begun active canvass of the Democratic membership of the upper house in the contest to decide who shall be leader to succeed the late Senator Thomas S. Martin, of Virginia. It is said that Senator Underwood's candidacy has made so much headway that about thirty of the forty-seven Democratic senators are ready to vote for him.

MARKETING FRUIT.

One of the most interesting talks ever heard by the County Agents was at Escanada on October 10th, when Mr. C. I. Lewis addressed the Community Club on the problem of marketing fruit. Mr. Lewis has recently left the O. A. C. in order to take charge of the organization of the Oregon Growers Cooperative Association. Mr. Lewis has an orchard of his own, and has had troubles marketing his fruit like the rest of us. In the early days of fruit growing in Oregon the marketing took care of itself; but in 1912 the crop increased from 2000 cars to 10,000 cars, and the market went to pieces. Prices went down to below cost of production and for three years the growers lost money, many of them going out of business. Then, through the efforts of two men connected with the U. S. Bureau of markets, the Fruit Agency, Inc. was formed, and an effort made to develop new markets, and to keep growers from consigning fruit. That marked the turn for the better, so that this year 30,000 cars will be handled, whereas seven years ago they went broke on 10,000 cars. This is in spite of the fact that owing to war restrictions Canadian apples came into the Eastern markets in competition with ours.

The prune situation is like the apple situation a few years ago. Today there are in Oregon 30,000 acres of prunes, about half of them, bearing, while in 1914 there were only 10,000 acres. Prunes are now being retailed at 30c to 40c per pound, certainly does not increase consumption. Brokers who did not even handle the prunes, have made as much as $5000 per car, this year. This condition of affairs is due simply to the fact that the growers are not organized. In California there has been no such fluctuations in price as we have had in Oregon. This situation is as hard on the canneries as on the growers, as each one has to buy his supplies as low as the next one, or be at a disadvantage when it comes to selling the canned goods. The Oregon Growers Association will do away with this, by providing an outside market for all kinds of fruit and nuts. A large concern can keep in touch with all the markets in the world, which is impossible for a single grower. The overhead expense of a large organization is much less for the amount of business done. Already about 10,000 acres of fruit in bearing has been signed up for this new giant marketing organization, and at the rate the fruit growers are coming in, it will soon be able to take care of all the shipping stock in Oregon. This will make it possible to advertise Oregon fruits, and get more business. With a wide advertising of Oregon fruits, will come an increased demand for Oregon land, just as has happened in California.

With this new marketing organization to stabilize prices, it will be possible to develop our fruit lands in this county. We have thousands of acres which are better adapted to fruit growing than to grain farming. Prunes, walnuts, filberts, apples, loganberries and other small fruits do remarkably well here. They will pay good returns on $1000 per acre when in bearing. But always it has been the uncertainty of a market which has kept people from going into the fruit business. The Oregon Growers Cooperative Association deserves the support of every one.

COOPERATION OF PARENTS.

When the Club Leader began to get a judging team ready for the Spokane trip she first visited the parents to see how they felt about having their boys make the trip before talking to the boys themselves.

In one instance the parents had recently moved to a dairy farm where there are some sixteen cows to be milked. The father had injured his right hand, and had not been able to hire help. He was getting along with the help his boys gave him out of and 1919 we see many men working and toiling, every day and every hour, to make the best means of transportation better. And now the inventor and the scientist are standing and with eager eyes are gazing into the future. The scientist has figured out the rarity of the air at an altitude of eight miles; has figured the resistance it will offer to a flying body at that height; has said if the man guiding the craft at that height can be provided with an especially constructed system for furnishing oxygen and can be supplied warmth by electrically heated clothing (which is already being used by bird men), it will be possible for a human being to move through the air at the rate of 1000 miles per hour.

So after all these hundreds of years and the great strides that have been made towards perfecting means of transportation there is still a vast field to be explored; the opportunities are still unlimited, and "Better Yet" is the cry.

Club work came to us a little less than a decade ago, but in that short time has come to be characterized as "A permanent educational organization."

Its members number hundreds of thousands in the Northwest alone. The production of these members is written in seven figures. True there are many problems yet to be solved. Many plans yet to be perfected. But year by year the movement grows stronger and greater results are obtained.

With each person connected with the work resolving to "Make the Best Better" and looking with confidence towards the New Year 1920 is sure to be the banner year not only in Clackamas county but in the entire country.

We feel that special mention should be made of the work done by Verner Anderson who was given 95% on reasons for placing a class of animals. Two of these boys will take part in the contest to be held at the Pacific International Live Stock Show which opens in Portland November 17.

If any one doubts the value of this work they should take a part of their time to attend this contest and see the ability the boys display in this work. It speaks well for Mr. Allen's work that seventeen judging teams are already entered from Oregon.
