

CANBY AND SOUTHERN CLACKAMAS

OPERETTA SOON AT CANBY
CANBY, Dec. 11.—A "Naughty Knott," the operetta to be presented by the students of the Canby high school, scheduled to take place early in January, promises to be one of the most successful operettas ever given in this city.

Rehearsals have commenced in earnest by those to participate, and many of the students are to make their debut in light opera. A number of the characters still remain to be selected, but by early next week all characters will be chosen and ready for rehearsing. Mark Dodge has been chosen to take the part of "Bill Salt," the boatwain of the "Bouncing Willow"; Prof. Schultz will be "Joe Stout," and will be the baritone of the operetta.

The setting of the play is an ocean scene, with Tulla, the haughty belle of Barnstable, scornful of her sailor lovers, falls in love with Barnabas Lee, a wandering artist. The jealous sailors kidnap Barnabas, and carry him to sea. In the meantime, Nance is loved by bashful Joe Stout. Joe induces Bill Salt to propose for him, but unfortunately delivers the message to Tulla, who says she will accept him at the end of the year. One year later the sailors return. Bill Salt has the unpleasant duty of explaining his mistake to Tulla and offering himself in Joe's place. Tulla at first spurns him, but finally accepts him. The return of Barnabas Lee released Bill Salt and Joe soon meets Nance.

The scene closes with many happy weddings in the near future. Miss M. Antell, of the high school faculty, has full charge of this operetta and under her able coaching it is predicted a financial success.

The proceeds of the entertainment go toward the payment of the new piano the high school recently acquired. The price of the piano was $450 and is of the Milton make, having been purchased through The Theatrical Music house of Oregon City.

LODGEMEN VISIT PORTLAND

CANBY, Dec. 11.—A. H. Knight, D. R. Dimick, George Henrickson, prominent members of the I. O. O. F. lodge of this city, made an official visit to the Portland order Monday evening. One of the features of the evening was the presentation of a handsome silver service to E. E. Sharon, recording secretary of the I. O. O. F. lodge, and being honored with that position for the past 25 years.

BAIR MAROONED IN PORTLAND

CANBY, Dec. 11.—W. H. Bair, one of the commission merchants of this city, went to Portland Tuesday, and realizing that he would not be able to return to his home, owing to the heavy snow storm, was marooned in Portland. Harry was worrying about the water pipes at home, and made frantic efforts, and had an aeroplane been in sight he would have given any price to have made the trip.

He says after this he will remain in Canby, business or no business in Portland. There were a number of others in the same boat that went to Portland, and were lucky in getting rooms for the night, as these were scarce throughout the city, owing to the large number of Portland people not being able to reach their homes.

STAGE IS LAST TO QUIT

CANBY, Dec. 11.—M. J. Lee, driver of his motor bus operating between this place and Oregon City, kept the bus going longer than any other vehicle on the highway. Realizing the condition where men employed in Oregon City from Canby were forced to be at their post of duty each morning, and even during the stormy weather of Tuesday, when no machines were on the road, Millard was operating his bus until evening.

He had intended making an effort to drive the machine on Wednesday, but weather conditions were even worse than that of Tuesday and he gave up the idea. He will be on the job as soon as it moderates enough to allow the wheels to travel through the snow.

CANBY LOCALS

Miss Della Neustrom, who is suffering from rheumatism, is improving. Mrs. R. Soper, who left here the latter part of the week for Newberg, where she is visiting her daughter, is still at that place, and unable to return until the weather moderates. During her absence Miss Gladys Lowery of this city is assisting with the telephone service. She has resigned her position with the telephone company in Portland, and returned here a few days ago.

William Tice, of Adkins mill, who has been at Kelso, Wash., where he has been visiting his niece, Mrs. Harmon Jasperston, has returned, and while on his way home visited at the home of Mrs. R. Soper of this city. Mrs. Jasperston, who recently underwent a critical operation at a hospital in Portland, is recovering.

Mrs. Stacey, formerly of Canby, now of Portland, was among those attending the funeral of Mrs. Helen Smith held in this city on Monday.

NEWS FOR CANBY
Any one having news for the Canby department of the Oregon City Enterprise, can leave it at the Cottage hotel, or leave word, and Miss Nan Crochran, representative, will call for it, as she makes weekly trips Tuesday morning.
News of all kind will be appreciated by the Enterprise.

SCHOOLS DISMISSED IN CANBY

CANBY, Dec. 12.—Owing to the heavy storm and cold weather the Canby schools were dismissed on Tuesday morning. There were a large number of the children attending the school from other sections of the county, and owing to the great depth of the snow would make it impossible for them to attend. Even on the streets of Canby the snow was banked high in many places, making it almost impassable.

Business and professional men, together with others, rustled up shovels and hoes and commenced clearing away the snow. When the good old Oregon mist arrives there will be "something doing" unless this snow is removed.

The snow at Canby reached a depth of about two feet and the drifts were almost three times that depth. The streets were almost abandoned during the day, as most of the residents were home hugging the stoves and preparing for the remainder of the spell of cold weather.

On Tuesday evening the electric lights were off, and candles and coal oil lamps were at a premium. A number of the level headed residents of this city always looking after safety first, had these placed away in case of an emergency. The lights were turned on the following afternoon.

Many pipes have been frozen here, and have caused much worry to the residents.

It is requested that all feed the birds, for they are dependent now on the people. They are not the kind that will bite the hand that will feed them for many of these little feathered creatures are friends to the farmer and orchardist by destroying pests. A large number of school children are taking an interest in them. When you hear the meadow lark singing in the fields and yards here, the little brown wren chirp as she flits through the trees, or the little snow bird with his pretty white collar, could you refuse a morsel to these when they come to your back door for a "handout?"

There are not many people here in Canby who will refuse to feed these birds. Many birds gather around the commission houses of W. H. Bair, William Lucke and the Hurst brothers of this city, and are always given a generous amount of grain. Then there is the big red robin, who is arriving in small numbers this year, and by their protection they can be spared from the cold weather.

No definite arrangement has been made for opening the school.

MRS. SMITH DIES AT CANBY

CANBY, Dec. 11.—Mrs. Helen Smith, mother of Mrs. C. Prouty of this city, died at the family home Saturday, after a brief illness.

Mrs. Smith was a native of Kentucky, and was born August 20, 1844. She has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Prouty, for a number of years, recently coming to this city from Portland with her daughter and grandson.

The funeral services were held on Monday, and were largely attended. Interment was in the Zion cemetery. Many friends attended the services and the floral tributes were beautiful and in large numbers.

ESPEE TRAIN COMES FROM SOUTH COVERED WITH WHITE BLANKET

Train No. 14 from California pulled into Oregon City Wednesday at four o'clock. This train left Roseburg Tuesday night and got as far as Salem where they were laid out. No drifts were encountered that seriously retarded movement. This train left Salem at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon and arrived here at four. The conductor in charge stated that he was able to make about fifteen miles an hour in spite of the snow which covered the tracks.

The train was pulled by two engines and both engines were covered with snowcatcher to sand dome with snow. The arrival of the train drew quite a crowd of interested Oregon City people to Railroad Avenue.

SUBSTANTIAL FUND RAISED FOR FIREMEN

Immediately after the fire which destroyed the Methodist church, Price brothers store and the Eddy store, several of the Main street business men appreciating the strenuous work which the members of the local fire department underwent during that fire started a subscription list to secure a fund with which to reimburse the volunteer firemen.

A committee was named to secure subscriptions. The committee was composed of R. Petzold, Harry Greaves and L. E. Jones. The committee met with a hearty response from the business men who contributed enthusiastically and liberally to the fund.

On Friday night, the committee turned over to Fire Chief E. Layler a total of $353.50. This sum is to be divided according to the work done by the various men during the fire between 17 members of the department.

A sum of $50 will be held back for the purpose of making readjustments in the schedule of payment as made up at the present time, if such readjustment is found to be necessary. The members of the Portland fire department who responded to the telephone call for help on the night of the fire were cordially treated and entertained that night before they returned to Portland.

The raising of this fund is a substantial testimony of the high appreciation of the business houses of the efforts of the volunteer men to control the most serious fire in the history of Clackamas county.

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

Folding a top when it is wet or even damp will spoil it in a short time.

Only a practiced hand can feel that a nut has been pulled up as tightly as is good for the bolt.

Never back or swing from the curb into the street without looking back to see if the way is clear.

Adjust brakebands so that they do not drag; keep all bearings well lubricated and tires fully inflated.

It is the usual fault of the inexperienced driver to pay too little attention to the condition of his battery.

Car owners should not forget that one part of the battery system which needs attention is the distributor head.

When placing chains on your tires be sure to have the hooks toward the back as you lay them over the wheel.

The Extra Session

We have heard no vociferous demand for a special session of the Oregon legislature except from the ardent suffragists who have repeatedly implored the governor to call an extraordinary session for the ratification of the national suffrage amendment. If it is necessary to hurriedly enact legislation to relieve the families of those who have been injured and who are not sufficiently remunerated under the workmen's compensation act, as Mr. Olcott indicates, the general public had little knowledge of it. It is reported that the real reason for calling the extra session was to appease the women, but the governor's statement that the industrial accident commission that administers the workmen's compensation fund insisted upon something being done to find more money for the families of the injured will probably be generally accepted.

If the governor should wait until early in January before issuing the official call for the special session, then Clackamas county will be wholly without representation in the state senate, as nothing has been done to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Walter A. Dimick, which occurred last March, and under the ordinary circumstances no unusual procedure would have been necessary. If, however, the executive follows the mandate of the constitution, he will issue a writ for a special election in Clackamas county to fill the vacancy.

It would appear that if the affairs of the state are in such condition to require an extra session of the legislature, then they are of enough importance to insure representation in the state senate for this county.

THE PRINCE OF WALES BECOMES AN ALBERTA RANCHMAN

The Prince of Wales, when leaving Western Canada, said in a speech that he was merely bidding his friends there "adieu" and not "good-by." The Prince sincerely intends to return to Canada, for he has purchased the 600 acre Beddingfield ranch in Alberta, southwest of High River and adjoining the famous Bar-U Ranch, where he was the guest of George Lane, the owner, a noted breeder of Percherons. The Prince is enthused with the possibilities of Alberta for stock raising and will use his new property largely for this purpose.

This is a big recognition of the pre-eminence of Alberta as a province adapted for stock raising, for in his tour over Canada on his special Canadian Pacific train he had unusual opportunities to form an opinion as to the best location. His selection was Alberta's sunny foothills.

House on the Prince of Wales' Ranch

The Prince's venture will provide a great stimulus for the purebred live stock of Western Canada, as it is reported that he intends to ship over some of the very excellent Thoroughbreds, Shorthorns and Shropshires that he is breeding on his English estate. This will mean some of the best blood of these three excellent breeds will be placed on his Alberta ranch, and by these being available to his neighbors he hopes to raise the standard, not only of these breeds, but also of the many other good breeds in Western Canada.

The Prince is planning to give employment to returned soldiers on his ranch.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

(Editorial note.)—On account of the crowded condition of Wednesday morning's issue of the Enterprise, a considerable portion of the high school notes was crowded out. For that reason the Enterprise is using the matter this morning which it was impossible to get in on yesterday.

Bud Baxter, from Camas, Wash., entered the high school Monday as a sophomore.

Saturday, December 6, an institute for all teachers of the county, was held in the high school, and a profitable time is reported. Nearly all the teachers in the city schools were present and the outlying districts were well represented. The institute was called and supervised by Superintendent Calavan. Some of the speakers in the forenoon were N. W. Bowland, Eastham school; J. L. Gary, of Willamette, and Superintendent R. W. Kirk, of Oregon City. The speakers of the afternoon were Superintendent A. C. Hampton, of La Grande, Ore.; Prof. E. D. Ressler, of O. A. C., and Mrs. Spooner, president of the Classroom Teachers' association, of Portland.

Over a month ago, Oregon City high school selected a fire department with Arthur McDonald as fire chief. The other members of the department vary with the different periods of the day. Our school is now one of the three high schools in the state having an organized department.

The first year mechanical drawing class has progressed very rapidly. The majority of the students are on the tenth plate.

The second year class has not gone so rapidly on account of the extreme difficulty of some of the problems. The manual training classes have been set back by the lack of material, finished lumber is very hard to obtain. Nevertheless, some fine work has been turned out. Melvin Gleason has just finished a beautiful mahogany book rack.

The recent snow has brought on an epidemic of skill among the boys of the manual training classes.

The boys in the manual training department are not able to accomplish much this cold weather on account of no possible means of heating, only by a stove which does not heat the whole room. They now work about five minutes and then have to spend about that long at the stove to warm. The boys will be glad when the gym is built so they will have a well heated room in which to work and they will be able to accomplish their specified work.

Miss Lerah Babler, a former student of the Oregon City high school, but now of Portland, visited the school Thursday.

Miss Louise Campbell, of this city, visited high Friday afternoon. She intends to enter this institution as a junior in January.

Debate tryouts were held Friday among the juniors and seniors. Those making the senior team were Katherine Long, Harold Sasto and Carl Muender with Marion Barnum as alternate. The junior team is represented by Frances Blake, Everett Rosencrans and Eugene Voder, with Blanche Jones as substitute. An interclass debate is to be held in the near future.

Friday evening, December 5, was an eventful night for the freshmen of the Oregon City high school. On this evening in the high school auditorium the sophomore class gave the annual welcome reception to the "freshies."

The auditorium was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The blue and white colors of the sophomore class blended beautifully with Christmas greenery. Long streamers of the blue and white hung from the balcony to the floor. The balcony was decorated with penants and fir boughs. The four electric light chandeliers were covered with red and green paper and a beautiful old fashioned Christmas tree occupied the center of the stage, from which was suspended a large "Welcome '23!" On the left hand side of the room stood the booths for the two fortune tellers who were busily engaged telling the fortunes of the students during the entire evening.

The proverbial Gypsy in brilliant colors of her native costume, with the aid of her prophetic cards looked into the future of many students. The science of palmistry and character analysis was unfolded by a mysterious veiled person from the Orient, who attracted attention of many students. Under the clock in the room hung two framed pictures which upon close observation proved to be the infant pictures of the freshmen president, Katherine Kirk, and the vice-president, Gladys Ward. This was quite a surprise to the class of '23 and especially to those two officials.

The following program was enjoyed during the evening:

Some of the freshmen were initiated at the party. These unlucky ones were blindfolded tightly and led out to the stage where they had to guess and even eat fish worms, but they found out at last that the slimy fish worms were nothing but half cooked spaghetti.

Music by students.

Address of welcome by Albert Grosenbacher, president of the sophomore class.

Recitation by Ardes Ward.

Games were then played, one of the main features being a tug of war between the two classes. The freshmen showed their ability at such a contest and pulled their opponents, the sophomores, to their side. But the sophomores evened the score by winning a book race from the "freshies."

One of the main features of the evening was the appearance in costume of Santa Claus, who gave a little present to each of the freshmen and the faculty. Much amusement was the result of opening of each of the packages. Among some of the gifts were kewpie dolls, tatty nursing bottles, little Bibles, bells, pretty little dressed dolls, books and many other gifts. Of course some of these proved exceptionally appropriate.

While the dainty refreshments of ice cream, cake and chocolate were being served, back of the streamers of the balcony, the following numbers of the program were given: Howard Mass, Raymond Califf, Jack Loder and Gordon Hanniford, the sophomore quartet, sang. One of their amusing and entertaining numbers was a song composed by the members, with each member of the faculty used as a subject. Another number was the minut by Miss Doris Reddick and Miss Betty Forbes, with Violet Beaulin as accompanist.

At a little after 11 the party drew to a close and the freshmen reluctantly departed thanking their hosts for their generous welcome.

Nearly every member of the faculty were present. They declared that they had an ideal time.

The chairman of the various committees having charge of this affair were: Decoration, Douglas King; refreshments, Louise Dryden; entertainment, Violet Beaulin; music, Virginia Ingram; reception committee, Gladys McKinnister; finance, Raymond Califf.

The first year domestic art class is now preparing to make them each a bungalow apron, which will be their third garment this semester.

The class is composed of about 14 girls who take very much interest in their work.

One day of the five school days is set aside for recitation day. Miss Morgan, the teacher, assigns certain textile books for the girls to report on.

The girls are very anxious for the week before Christmas to come, because their teacher has promised them that this week they can work or make their Christmas presents.

The second year domestic art class, which is being instructed by Miss Beulah Morgan of Corvallis, is getting along nicely with the work assigned for this year.

The work this year is to include the making and remodeling of garments. The class is at the present time busily engaged in remodeling old suits, dresses or any other material which the girls might have on hand.

In connection with this work, one day a week is spent in the study of textiles. This teaches them the process of the manufacture of materials. All of the girls find their work very interesting and are anxious to finish their course of study for the semester successfully.

Carlotta Pace, a second year student in typewriting took one of the first speed examinations given this year. She did exceptionally well, making a record of 57 words per minute for ten consecutive minutes and within the five error limit.

The efficiency club which is composed of members who have made their 25 words per minute in typewriting is expecting to have its first meeting this week. The members are expecting to make this organization one of the liveliest that has ever been known at O. C. H. S.—just wait and see!

One of many reasons why the gym should be rushed is shown in the following letter and reply:

Principal Oregon City High School, Oregon City. Dear Sir: Will you have a basketball team this year? If so, we would like to play you two games, the first at Molalla, January 15, and the second at Oregon City, January 30.

We will give your team a cash guarantee of $10 when you play here and would want the same guarantee from there.

Yours truly,

LESLIE R. PALFREY,

Basketball manager, Molalla High School.

The reply shows plainly our immediate need of a gym. This is not the first such request, nor will it be the last. But the reply, as follows, will be the text of all following replies.

Oregon City, December 4.—Mr. Leslie R. Palfrey, Molalla, Ore., Dear Friend: In reply to your inquiry of the 2d of this month, I regret to say that we have no basketball team this year. This is due to the fact that no floor is obtainable in Oregon City for that purpose.

Hoping you have no difficulty in getting a satisfactory schedule, I remain

Yours truly,

W. L. ARANT,

Principal Oregon City High School.

While this is an excellent reason for the speedy erection of the gym, many other good reasons are plainly shown. Since physical training is compulsory, the students must take the training wherever there is room. At the present time the wood room is being used. However, this is very inconvenient, as there are no lockers, no places to dress and no way of heating the room. Both the teachers and students are anxious for the speedy construction of the gym.

A banquet was served at the home of Mrs. Vierhus at Twilight, to the boys who earned letters in football. Coach King was the toastmaster. He told many witty tales, ably assisted by the boys. After the dinner a short football meeting was held, during which Louis Vierhus was elected captain and Hugh Harrison manager for 1920-21. After that, football was forgotten.

The football "jazz" quartette, consisting of Arthur McDonald, Robert Bestie, Leonard Davis and George Dambach rendered their favorite selection, "Tell Mother I'll Be There." The next song was "Sweet Adeline." As a token of appreciation for this number they were presented with many different kinds of vegetables.

Mrs. Vierhus prepared a wonderful dinner for the boys. The menu consisted of stewed chicken with vegetables, mashed and sweet potatoes, cottage cheese, pickles, hot biscuit, brown bread, cake, fruit salad, coffee and milk.

'Twas the morning of December 4. The city elevator was crowded. Among other individuals in the elevator were three who are mentioned in this article. Against the back leaned two six-foot specimens of humanity. With a cautious wink, one of them said: "So—, have they beat up that Smith kid yet?" "What Smith kid?" "Woodson Smith."

Now it chanced that in the front stood a certain young lady. Upon hearing the aforesaid conversation, she said: "They better not!" As if ignoring her anger—said, "I think they will beat him up tonight." The young lady at once said: "If you try it you will have two to fight. I guess there is someone else who has something to say about it." Moral: Don't talk in an elevator.

Oregon City high was favored by a talk from Mr. Horace Sykes, the deputy state fire marshal, last Thursday afternoon. His talk was on the prevention of fire. It was very interesting and a good many common fire hazards were discussed. Many of these hazards are commonly ignored and Mr. Sykes is giving his time over to persuading the people of this state to get rid of them. The dangers of the electric iron, the flue placed on brackets, the small bottle of gasoline and other equally dangerous hazards were discussed. The talk was very interesting and all the pupils enjoyed it very much.

Freshman, sophomore and junior English class report.

While the junior English classes under Miss McQuaid are translating Chaucer's Prologue, Miss McKnight's junior English class is discussing the Mexican question, in the form of oral talks and written themes.

Miss Johnson's sophomore English classes are studying grammar in Clyppinger's written and spoken English, as they have completed "The Ancient Mariner." Miss McKnight's class has also completed the "Ancient Mariner" and is studying grammar in Clyppinger.

The freshman classes in English are studying "Sentence and Theme" and Benjamin Franklin's autobiography, under Miss Zimmerman, Miss Johnson and Miss McKnight.

Portland Has Worst Weather in Years

PORTLAND, Dec. 10.—All railroad traffic in and out of Portland was at a practical standstill today as result of snow storm. Trolley cars were all tied up although efforts were being made to get some trunk lines open. Not a passenger train due from California or east had arrived today, and none was expected before midnight. A few schools were open but attendance was very small. Business houses generally were open but had no customers except a few stragglers.

Snow was over a foot deep on level and immense drifts were everywhere. The weather man predicted more snow tonight and Thursday but warmer weather.

Storm warnings are posted all along the Oregon coast. Snow at Salem is 20 inches deep. All parts of Oregon are snow bound with freezing temperature except southwest counties. The middle Columbia river is ice blocked. All steamboats have suspended, but navigation is still open on the lower Columbia.

The temperature here is 16 above zero this morning and no papers were delivered in city today. Hundreds of homes reported frozen water pipes and plumbers could not begin to fill repair orders.

Hundreds of workers and business men were unable to get to their homes in outlying districts last night and hotels and lodging houses are all crowded.
