

OREGON CITY HAS CHANCE TO SECURE AUTO TIRE COMPANY

Local Company Have Several Offers of Sites to Bring Plant to Other City

The Stuart Puncture proof Liner & Tire company, the owners of patent rights for a special process for manufacturing non-puncture automobile tires announced here Thursday that the company had ordered the necessary machinery from Anderson, Ind., for beginning the work of manufacturing the product and that the company was now looking for a location for the factory.

Dr. C. A. Stewart, the president of the company, stated that it was the desire of his company to locate its plant in Oregon City but that recent endeavors of his company had disclosed the fact that so far the company had been unable to secure a location. Dr. Stewart said that in one or two instances owners of proposed locations had put up the rental price when approached and that there seemed to be a lukewarm feeling locally as to whether or not the plant was wanted here.

Other officials of the company stated that the company had received several flattering offers from other communities to secure the plant, among them being Milwaukie, Ore., St. John, Ore., and several in the east.

The company has $50,000 capital, about 75 per cent of which has been issued. The stock is nearly all locally owned. The company proposes to begin work with a payroll of about 30 men.

RESIDENTS HAVE MIXUP ON WATER ELECTION

Residents of the Oak Grove, Concord and Milwaukie heights sections of the county held a special election to create a special water district on Saturday, at least that was the intention.

After the election had been called for, ballots printed, poll books prepared and all other supplies made up for the election by County Clerk Miller, some of the residents of the Oak Grove precinct came to the court house on Saturday morning sometime after the polls should have been opened and filed a petition in circuit court calling upon the court for an order enjoining the clerk from holding the election. The court denied the petition and with this action to all intents and purposes the election was held.

The whole affair is the outgrowth, seemingly, of a misunderstanding. Some two years ago a water district was voted and organized for the purpose of bonding and raising funds to lay water mains to supply water to the residents of the whole section from the Willamette river to the hills to the east and as far south as Gladstone. Owing to the great increase in the cost of labor and materials which came on just after the 1917 election none of the work has been done.

In the election held Saturday it was proposed to organize a district comprising the territory embraced in the voting precincts of Oak Grove Nos. 1 and 2, Concord and Milwaukie heights.

When Deputy Sheriff Henry Hughes delivered the ballot box to the Oak Grove voting place Saturday morning he was informed by the judge that he would not accept the ballot box and the box was brought back to the court house.

John Riley of Jennings Lodge stated to the Enterprise Saturday night that the ballot boxes for the election were not brought out from Oregon City on Saturday morning until after the judges of the election and clerks had gone home and that he went to the school house at Concord Saturday evening and found the ballot box still there in the school house and that it still remained locked.

He stated that there was no election held at all in the Concord precinct nor at Oak Grove and that he further understood that none was held either at Milwaukie Heights.

SHIPLOAD OF CATTLE FOR COUNTY PLANNED

At a meeting of the Clackamas County Guernsey Cattle Breeders' association held on Wednesday afternoon at Logan in this county, it was the sense of the meeting that arrangements be made to bring into the state of Oregon an entire shipload of pure bred Guernsey cattle direct from the Isle of Guernsey.

Plans are already under way looking to the financing of this development. Some time ago when the local Guernsey club was organized the Bank of Commerce of Oregon City became actively interested in assisting local farmers in securing pure bred cattle of this breed.

Through this arrangement, the bank advanced necessary funds for purchasing a car load of the cattle, taking the joint note of the men who had the project in hand. Upon arrival of the stock and their parceling out to individual owners, the bank took up the joint note and secured instead the individual notes of the owners. The bank made a special discount rate to the farmers in handling this paper and they were given three years in which to pay back the principal.

At the Logan meeting there were 25 breeders present. They met at 12:30 and after a basket dinner went into an all afternoon session. An interesting program was conducted. Among the speakers were F. B. Hills, assistant secretary of the American Guernsey Cattle Breeders' association. Mr. Hills had been in attendance at the live stock show in Portland and took advantage of his visit to Oregon to meet the Guernsey breeders of this section.

N. C. Jamison, county agricultural agent from Washington county was also a speaker, together with R. G. Scott, county agent for Clackamas county, and E. L. Westover from the Oregon Agricultural college. Mr. Westover was largely instrumental in securing the first carload of pure bred Guernseys brought into this county. It was the sense of the meeting that a ship load of pure bred cattle should be brought into this state and preliminary plans were made to put this plan into operation.

County Agent Scott, when seen Thursday stated that no difficulty was anticipated in carrying the plan to final completion and that he would spend part of his time this winter in working out the details and hoped that the cattle would arrive and be distributed among Oregon farmers by next summer. A ship load of cattle would range from about three to five hundred in number.

One Precinct Alone Held Their Election

When the ballot boxes sent out from the county clerk's office for the special water district election advertised to have been held in the Oak Grove, Concord and Milwaukie heights section of the county on Saturday were returned to the court house on Monday and County Clerk Miller unlocked the one from Milwaukie heights precinct it was found that this box contained regularly voted ballots and the regular judges of the election made regular returns for their precinct for Saturday's election.

A tabulation of the votes cast showed that 49 votes were cast for the creation of the water district as called for in the proposal for the election and four votes were recorded as being against the formation of the district.

An effort was made last night to get in touch with people in that portion of the county but all efforts were of no avail.

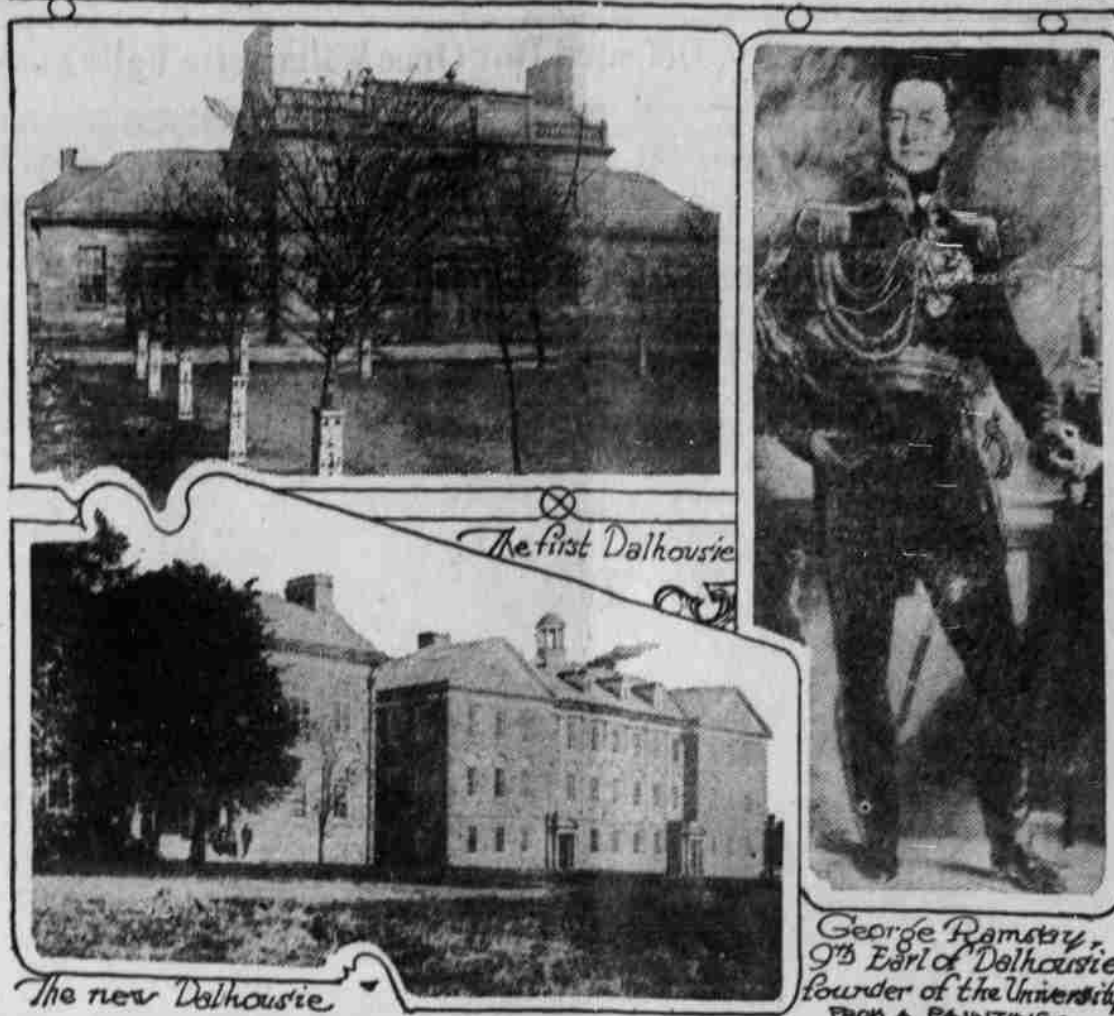

It is the opinion of men well informed with the situation that the Saturday election will be of no effect and that the water district as organized some two years ago in this same section but covering considerably more territory will still be in force and effect and that it is entirely within the province of the board of water commissioners as elected two years ago to go ahead and complete the work of bonding the district and arrange for the laying of water mains and other plans for the securing of water for the residents of that portion of the county.

On Monday night the residents of the Oak Grove section held a community meeting at which the Saturday election was discussed. It was the sense of this meeting that to avoid any difficulties in the future the best plan was to wipe out of existence both the new board of water commissioners as elected in Saturday's election and also the old board of three commissioners elected two years ago. With this idea in view the meeting appointed J. H. Yersley, Hugh C. Crum and Mr. Baker as a committee to confer with the old board of commissioners and lay before them the plan of doing away with both boards and making plans for an entirely new district and board to lay proper plans for going ahead with the plans for securing water service for the residents of that entire section of Clackamas county.

ONE HUNDRED AND ONE YEARS OF DALHOUSIE UNIVERSITY

Dalhousie University, in Halifax, Nova Scotia, held its centenary celebration this fall. It fell due in 1918, but was postponed until this year on account of the war. Men from all parts of the world returned to do honor to their Alma Mater and classes as far back as 1867 were represented. Young men were there, too, most of them having served overseas with the gallant Canadian armies. The reunion had particular significance for them, as since 1914 there has been no time to go back and revive memories of college days. The roll of the younger graduates of Dalhousie has thinned greatly in the last five years, but those left will help her "carry on" all the more devotedly for the sake of those that can help no more.

Dalhousie University was founded in 1818 by the Rt. Hon. George Ramsay, ninth earl of Dalhousie. For half a century the university struggled along and then began to take its rightful place. Since then it has grown step by step with Halifax. The university is now moving out to an estate of over 40 acres on the north side of the city, near the Northwest Arm, where $400,000, raised among the graduates, is being expended in modern buildings. The cornerstone of the first of these, the Science Building, was laid by the Duke of Connaught in 1912.

On the first day of the centennial celebration, stones from the foundations of the original college structure, which was built one hundred years ago on the site of the present

City Hall, were transferred to the grounds of the new college. The stones were in the walls of the physical laboratory, on the third floor of the Carlton Street building and were carried in procession with floats representing various college activities and periods.

Another feature was a special ceremony in honor of Dalhousie's dead during the war. In the library is an honor list of those who fell, and a list, too, of those who were decorated for valor.

The university is "open to all occupations and sects of religion, restricted to such branches only as are applicable to our present state and having the power to expand with the growth and improvement of our society."

BANK VAULT BLOWN; LOSS NOT YET KNOWN

Sheriff William J. Wilson received a call early Thursday morning to the effect that the Farmers Bank of Wilson had been entered by robbers on Wednesday night and was asked to investigate. He sent Deputy Sheriff H. S. Meads out on the call to make the investigation.

Mr. Meads reported upon his return that the work was that of experts. They scoured the combination on the door to the vault within which was located the bank's money safe. The bolts of the vault had been sheared off as cleanly as if sawed through with a hack saw.

The yeoman did not seriously attempt to blow the money safe. Within this was $25,000 in liberty bonds besides some $4600 in cash and currency together with many valuable papers of the bank. Within the vault was a tier of safety deposit boxes rented to customers of the bank.

These were all broken open and the contents taken. Until the owners of the boxes report to the bank, it is impossible to estimate the loss of the robbery. No definite clues to the identity of the perpetrators have been secured although many finger prints of the men were taken from the face of the vault door.

The discovery that the vault had been tampered with was not made until W. L. Seely, the cashier, came down to the bank to open for business about 8:30 Thursday morning. When Mr. Seely went to the vault door to unlock it, the combination fell off into his hand when he touched it. He at once telephoned the sheriff.

COAL USE IN NATION CUT DOWN BY ORDERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Viewing with alarm the steadily dwindling bituminous coal supply due to the miners' strike, Fuel Administrator Garfield, by an order tonight, restored for the entire nation most of the drastic restrictions on lighting and heating which were in effect during the coal shortage of 1917-18.

The limitations which were applicable to consumers of bituminous coal and coke, were made effective tonight with issuance of the order and are to be enforced by the railroad administration. Consumers of anthracite coal, gas and other fuels are not affected by the order.

All street lighting, other than that necessary for the safety of the public, must be curtailed, and stores, office buildings and industrial plants, with few exceptions, are put on a reduced ration as to both lighting and heating.

Another of the restrictions provides that all manufacturing plants, except those engaged in the making of necessary products, shall reduce their operations not to exceed three days in any one week.

Electric railways are required under the fuel administrator's order to reduce schedules to minimum requirements and no heat shall be provided in electric cars during the rush hours.
