FIFTY-THIRD YEAR—No. 48 OREGON CITY, OREGON, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1919. ESTABLISHED 1866

OLD MAN CARED FOR AS RESULT OF STORY

As a result of the visit of the Enterprise reporter with Sheriff W. J. Wilson to the hotel of Joe McDermott and the writing up of the conditions there, A. B. Haas of 1310 Center street called at the office on Tuesday night to further explain about those conditions.

Mr. Haas stated that he had helped to support the old man for nearly 11 years and that he thought that the county should have the care of him. The reporter said that the matter was properly brought to the attention of the court. The reporter asked Mr. Haas if he were willing to have himself appointed guardian of the old man and if he would make it his business to look after him under the direction of the county court.

Mr. Haas said that he would do so and the reporter said that he would personally take the matter up with Judge Anderson on Wednesday with that idea in view.

Judge Anderson was seen late Tuesday night and stated that the county would accept Mr. Haas as guardian of the old man and that the county would look after him through Mr. Haas.

Considerable interest was manifested on the street Tuesday as a result of the article in Tuesday's paper and it was the consensus of opinion that something of a practical nature should be done in the case.

One rumor on the street which Mr. Haas emphatically set at rest was to the effect that old Joe had considerable money in one of the local banks. Mr. Haas said that he positively knew that he did not have and further that Joe had no money for a dairy man of this city and for that work he received the munificent sum of a pint of milk a day and one dollar a month.

Mr. Haas said that he did not believe that many people could get very fat on such an income and that he knew he received nothing further except the food that his wife prepared for him.

FREE SHOWERS IN STYLE AT POSTOFFICE

The rear of the Oregon City postoffice is a sad looking place at the present time, for the heavy weight of snow has caused the building to start a number of leaks, water pouring by the bucket fulls in various parts of the office.

Buckets, pans and even cuspidors are being used in catching the big supply of water. The young men employed in the office are wearing rubber boots, and are contemplating purchasing raincoats and rubber hats if the showers do not cease.

One young man, Elza Page, a mail carrier and sorter in the office, employed at the Crown-Willamette Paper company for five years, is one of the employees "splashing" through the water. He said Tuesday that the Crown-Willamette charged 35 cents for shower baths, but he is now getting them without charge. After making the deliveries throughout the city through the slush, the young men are improving their time by carrying out buckets of water and placing them in position for another fresh supply.

The mail sacks are being carefully watched so that they will not receive any of the showers that are occurring daily since the snow commenced to fall. Damage had been done to the ceiling by the flow of water.

Skating Is Height of Fashion Now

Since the fall of the snow in this city a large number have taken up the sport of skating, and the hills of the city have afforded excellent places for the sport. Not only have the lads and young men of the city become efficient in scaling the hills on skis, but some of the young women as well.

Among those enjoying the unusual sport in this city Sunday were Miss Wynne Hanny and Miss Rose Justin. Little did these young women fear the steep grades they "tackled" on the skis, and it seemed the steeper the more courageous they were.

A number of times they took headers in the snow when they lost their balance, but would be seen picking themselves up, and brushing the snow from their eyes so they could see to finish the trip down the steep grade. The entire afternoon was spent in this manner.

Miss Dolly Pratt proved to be one of the champion coasters among the young women, and Nan Lovett among the champion coasters of the little girls. Mrs. J. H. Brizwell, recently arriving from Tennessee, and now residing at Twelfth and Washington streets in the home of Mrs. Christine Babcock, is a champion among the young married women coasters. Seventh, Twelfth and Eleventh and Washington street hills have been among the favorite places for coasting.

Drue, who Awaited Soldier Fiance's Return, and Her Attendants

One of the most important of the early winter weddings in New York City was that of Miss Alice R. Thayer and Maynard C. Iverson, whose engagement was announced in June, 1918, when he was in France as a Lieutenant with the 303d Field Artillery. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Thayer. His photograph shows her with her attendants. They are, left to right: Miss Katherine Porter; her sister, Miss Marie R. Thayer; Miss Sarah Townsend of Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Maynard C. Iverson (Alice R. Thayer); Mrs. Douglas Gibson, a sister of the bride; Miss Katherine Hutchins and Mrs. Reginald Hutchinson.

CROSS RIVER ON ICE FIRST TIME IN MANY YEARS

The past week of cold weather here has caused huge chunks of ice to form in the Willamette river, both above the falls and below. Where the river is frozen the hardest near the falls is between Fourth and Water streets up to the Crown-Willamette Paper company's mills. J. W. Moffatt has the distinction of being the first man to cross the Willamette river on the ice below the falls; R. G. Scott, county agent, the second man, and Miss Nan Cochran the first woman to cross. Among others having crossed over on the ice and returning were Miss Virginia Shaw, Mrs. F. W. Gardner, Miss Merle Keck, Mrs. Gertrude Leithwaite, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Waldron, Lloyd Riches, John Moffatt, Jr., L. A. Nobel, Jr. Among those making the trip nearest the falls where now flows a roaring cataract were R. G. Scott, Lloyd Riches, J. W. Moffatt, who took a number of interesting photographs of this wonderful sight. L. A. Nobel, Jr., also made the distance to as far as the ice extends. It was found that the ice jam was four feet thick. This extends almost entirely from Fourth street to a short distance from the falls. The river above is also frozen over.

A number have made a trip over at Oak Grove from Oswego. This was accomplished on Sunday, the first to make the trip being R. W. Confer, of Oswego.

This is the first time the Willamette river has been frozen over below the falls since 1884. One of the first men to cross at that time was the late Sandy Barclay, and Forges Barclay Pratt, his nephew, has the distinction of being carried over by his uncle at that time, so that he could say that he had crossed the river on the ice.

Henry Salisbury, of Gladstone, well remembers the day he crossed the river when a lad while it was frozen in that year. At that time the ice almost extended to the suspension bridge.

The thermometer has gone up considerably today, and at 9 o'clock this morning registered 20 degrees above zero, while this evening at 6 o'clock the same thermometer at Miller-Parker garage registered 28 degrees above zero. This makes the old Oregonian smile with delight.

The snow in places along Main street has been melting, and if the present weather continues the streets will be a sea of slush. Great piles of snow are banked on each side of the street and traveling is being done by the sleighs and vehicles that are able to travel on the track of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company.

WAR TIME DRY LAW IS LEGAL COURT HOLDS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—War-time prohibition is constitutional, the supreme court today decided. Enforcement of the act must continue until peace is proclaimed, the court decreed.

The decision was a sweeping victory for the prohibitionists and the government. It means that the millions of gallons of intoxicating liquors now stored throughout the country, and valued at about $1,000,000,000, will be a near total loss unless peace is proclaimed before constitutional prohibition becomes effective.

The court held that the provision of the war-time act stating that prohibition shall end at the conclusion of the war can have no other legal meaning than the proclamation of peace.

Because of the decision the government will lose $440,000,000 in revenue from whiskey alone unless the ban is lifted before January 16.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Two policemen, Peter Reuger and Herman Craus, were arrested today by order of District Attorney Lewis of Brooklyn, in connection with the theft of furs valued at $12,000 from a manufacturing furrier's plant on November 30.

THEY NOW WANT PEACE

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The German reply to the allies' note of last Saturday emphasizes the wish that peace be put into effect as soon as possible and also the sincere willingness of the German government to hasten ratification, the Berliner Tageblatt stated today.

Breton Fisherfolk Observing Old Custom of Giving Thanks for Prosperous Season

Following an ancient custom the pious fisherfolk of Bretagne offered thanks this year for a prosperous season and besought the continued aid and protection of Providence. This photograph shows a group from one of the coast villages praying on the sands of a beach. The Bretons enjoyed an unusually good season because of conditions following the war which created a great demand for their good hauls.

Legislative Holes

It is apparent that Clackamas county will not be represented in the state senate during the special session of the legislature. There are legislative vacancies, not only in Clackamas but in Curry, Wheeler, Gilliam, Sherman and Multnomah counties, and it is understood that the governor is averse to calling special elections in all of these counties, though the law makes it his plain duty to issue election writs in such cases. The executive has no appointive power, and if he ignores the statute, there will be counties other than Clackamas left out.

The situation would be tolerable if the legislature should confine its activities to ratifying the national suffrage amendment, amending the workmen's compensation law and the irrigation act, but it is very doubtful that the legislature will be willing to restrict its deliberations to these three so-called essentials. Once the bars are let down, proposed legislation will be general in character, and it is not unlikely that measures of vital interest to this county will be proposed.

In the lower house, Clackamas has some active minds, and the people of this county are entitled to at least half-way representation in the senate, which could be obtained by the designation of some citizen to sit in the senate in a semi-official capacity to watch legislative events. This was done when Senator Calkins of Lane county, absented himself from a regular session in 1917, on the theory that half a loaf was infinitely better than no bread. The Commercial Club of Oregon City could properly make a move in this direction.

FORMER RESIDENT NOW OF TILLAMOOK COUNTY VISITS HERE

Israel Putnam, one of the former residents of Clackamas county, who owned a small farm near Rock Island, and now residing on his homestead at Hebo, Tillamook county, arrived in Oregon City this morning, where he is to spend the remainder of the week. Mr. Putnam had some difficulty in getting to this city. He left his mountain home last Tuesday, shortly after the snow storm started, and was in company with one of his neighbors, James Bodgett, who was on his way to McMinnville.

They were to make the trip in the latter's automobile, and had reached a point near Bellevue when the storm became so bad that it was impossible to proceed further in the automobile. The owner of the machine placed it in a garage, intending to make the remainder of the trip by train, but this was impossible at that time and they remained there for the night. Mr. Putnam, determined to reach his destination, Oregon City, decided to walk.

His friends tried to discourage him in making the perilous trip, saying it would be impossible owing to the heavy snow fall. Putnam answered by saying, "Whenever I start out to do anything, I never fail, and I can easily make the trip." He did, too, and four miles were made in good time through the blinding snow, with the snow up to the handle of his cane, and was about two feet deep.

The weather was the least of the old gentleman's troubles, for he had seen active service during the entire Civil war. At that time he was a member of company C, First West Virginia, battery C. He is a member of Meade post No. 8, G. A. R. of this city, having been an active member of the organization for 29 years, and still enjoying the best of health.

Mr. Putnam will celebrate his 87th birthday anniversary on January 14. Mr. Putnam was among those to attend the G. A. R. encampment in Ohio last fall, and was unaccompanied on the trip. While in the east he visited his daughter, Mrs. Jessie Fremont, who accompanied her father back to Oregon, where she has been spending the winter.

Mr. Putnam owns one of the best homesteads in Tillamook county, and has it planted to berries of various kinds and small fruit. He says it is one of the best counties he has ever resided in, and there is no more snow there in the mountains than right here in Oregon City.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES MARK FUNERAL OF DECEASED MINISTER

PORTLAND, Dec. 16.—Funeral services for the late Dr. Thomas Burgess Ford, prominent divine of the Methodist Episcopal church, this afternoon were marked by simplicity that was affecting. Many friends of the deceased gathered at the First Methodist church to pay their last respects, and tributes to the life of Dr. Ford were paid by his associates, including Bishop Hughes, Rev. Joshua Stanfield, Rev. Mr. Arvon, of Salem; Rev. A. J. Joslyn, of Canby; Rev. Melville Wire, of Oregon City; Rev. C. E. Kline, Rev. Mr. Skipworth and R. A. Booth of Eugene.

Musical numbers were rendered by Mrs. Imogene Harding Brodie and Mrs. Neta Barlow Lawrence of Oregon City.

The pallbearers Amadee Smith, Herbert Gordon, J. F. Ewing and G. F. Johnson, of Portland, and E. E. Brodie and Roy B. Cox of Oregon City. Interment was in Rose City cemetery.

Beautiful flowers covered the casket, one piece being from the State Editorial association, of which Dr. Ford was honorary chaplain, and which was represented by Gordon Taylor, editor of the Molalla Pioneer.

Jumped in Creek To Make Impression

Clark A. Radford filed suit for divorce from his wife, Grace E. Radford, in circuit court Tuesday. The complaint sets out that they were married on Christmas day in 1916. They have a little boy six months old.

The husband in his complaint states that his wife has made his life miserable by nagging at him and treating him cruelly and that she has several times gone to the creek near the house, jumped into it, climbed over and presented herself before him in her wet clothes and threatened to commit suicide.

He offers to pay sufficient money for the support of the boy and agrees to give her temporary custody of the child.

REV. FORD DROPS DEAD ON STREET ON SUNDAY

Dr. Thomas B. Ford, one of the most prominent Methodist ministers of the Northwest and district superintendent of the Salem district, comprising the northern Willamette valley, died of apoplexy Sunday afternoon as he was boarding an interurban car near the site of the Methodist church which was destroyed several weeks ago by fire.

For a number of years, Rev. Ford was pastor of the church. He was on his way to Oak Grove to visit his son, Olin Ford, when stricken, and was to have been joined on the car at Fourteenth and Main street by his daughter, Miss Sadie Evelyn Ford, who was also to visit her mother.

Dr. Ford attended the morning service of the Methodist church held in the parish house of the St. Paul's Episcopal church, and delivered the opening prayer. Dr. Ford had been spending a few days in this city visiting his daughter, Miss Sadie Evelyn Ford, a well known musician of this city, intending to return to Salem after the weather had moderated, and was enjoying his visit with his daughter and his many friends in this city when stricken.

Rev. Ford was born in Tennessee, and entered the ministry at the age of 17 years in Arkansas, making his home at Little Rock for some time. Since the closing of the Civil war, he had engaged as a minister and district superintendent, being district superintendent for 4 years, the remainder having been as a pastor. Rev. Ford moved to the Pacific coast in 1890, accepting the pastorate of several churches in Washington, including Centralia and Olympia, where he was pastor of the Methodist churches; and then went to Seattle where he was appointed district superintendent at the close of his first year's pastorate.

He made his home in the latter city for five years. From Seattle he went to Eugene, where he remained for eight years; then to Portland where he was pastor of the Sunnyside church and later went to Pendleton, Hood River and then came to Oregon City where he was pastor of the First Methodist church for four years. He was well known throughout Clackamas county.

In 1916 he was appointed superintendent of the Salem district, and was acting in that capacity when stricken. Dr. Ford had contemplated leaving in April for the general conference to be held in the east, and was the first to be chosen as a representative. This is a national affair, and he was to be accompanied by his son, Burgess Ford, of Stayton, who had been chosen lay delegate to the conference.

This conference meets every four years and Rev. Ford had looked forward with pleasure to the coming event.

Dr. Ford was a delegate to a national meeting held last summer in the east, where he had visited his relatives, including sister and brothers.

Dr. Ford is survived by the following children: Miss Sadie Evelyn Ford, of this city; Mrs. Harold Swatford, of Lebanon, Ore.; Olin Ford, of Oak Grove. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. R. S. Ford, of Olympia, Wash.; Mrs. Nannie Ferguson, of Kansas City, Mo.; two brothers, R. A. Ford, of Dayville, Ore.; and Francis Ford, of Lulberry, Kans. Mrs. Ford, his wife, died about three years ago at Salem.

The remains are at the Holman & Pace funeral parlors, and will be removed to Portland by special car at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, when relatives and friends will accompany the remains to the First Methodist church where the funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock. Rev. Stanfield, pastor, will preside, and during the service Bishop Hughes will make the principal address.

Others taking part will be Rev. A. Josslyn, an old time friend of the deceased, who will deliver the obituary, and R. A. Booth of Eugene, will deliver an address. Mrs. Neta Barlow Lawrence and Mrs. E. E. Brodie are to sing "Abide With Me" and "Jesus as I Wilt." Mrs. Brodie will also sing a solo, "In the Time of Roses," a favorite selection of Dr. Ford.

Rev. Ford was chairman of the State Editorial association and many members will attend the funeral. Interment will be in the family lot in Rose City cemetery, and the remains will be laid to rest beside those of his wife.
