LOCAL BRIEFS

R. G. Scott, county agricultural agent, who has had troubles of his own at Gladstone, when the water pipes have frozen, came to the office Saturday, but said he was glad there were no pipes there which needed thawing, except the stove pipe, and it might be that it needed thawing as well, for the fire failed to start as on other mornings. During the day Mr. Scott was seen with a book in his pocket with the reading that attracted unusual attention, especially on Saturday when the ground was covered with snow and people freezing with the cold. The name of the book was "Weeds of the Farm and Garden." It was while in the office of S. O. Dillman and A. C. Howland the book was noticed, so Sam Dillman remarked: "Unless you help your neighbor hoe his weeds, in your fair garden will find the seeds." Sam formerly farmed but did not practice what he preached. Mr. Scott is making a study of weeds, but believes that it might be a good plan to take up the study of ice and snow or how to prevent the water pipes from freezing, for he says he owes his neighbors gallons and gallons of water, who have loaned it to the Scott family.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Holsclaw and children, Charlie and Elsie, have arrived in Oregon City from Marshalltown, Iowa, and are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Anderson. Mr. Holsclaw is a son of Mrs. Anderson by a former marriage. The family came here to escape the cold weather of Iowa, and although they have found the weather conditions anything but favorable since arriving here, they have not become discouraged, and have decided to spend the winter for the weather in Iowa is even worse than this we are now having.

Ralph F. Anderson, son of G. F. Anderson of this city, has arrived in Oregon City, where he is spending the winter at the Anderson home. Mr. Anderson is from California, having visited at Santa Barbara, San Francisco, Alameda and other places of the southern state. While at Alameda a few weeks before Thanksgiving day the people were experiencing their first cold weather of the season, and heavy coating of ice had formed there.

Joseph Supple, of Portland, who recently purchased property in Oregon City with the intention of building a hotel, was in this city a few days ago. Mr. Supple said while here that he only regretted that he did not have his hotel ready now for the people, when the hotels and rooming houses were overcrowded. It is the intention of building as soon as the weather is favorable. This will be built on his property on Main street between Fourth and Fifth.

E. C. Greenman, chief game and fish warden for North Yakima, Wash., has arrived in Oregon City, where he is visiting his wife, and will remain here until January 1. Mr. Greenman usually takes his vacation during the winter, the summer months being his busy time. Mr. Greenman, who has been connected with the state and government fish hatcheries of Oregon for about 20 years, has been chief game and fish warden at North Yakima for the past two years.

Clarence Shandy, who has been confined to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Shandy on High street, suffering from scarlet fever, has recovered, and the family are now out of quarantine. Mrs. Shandy and son will soon leave for Camas, Wash., where Mr. Shandy is employed. He has charge of the wood mill of the paper company, and left for that place several weeks ago. They will dispose of their property interests here.

A lad by the name of Green, son of Mrs. LaDuc, of Gladstone, had his feet frozen Friday morning while carrying the Oregonian. The lad continued his journey with his papers, with the weather below zero, and on Saturday morning was unable to perform his duties. The paper carriers have had a hard time of it during the week, a number of the boys having large territories to cover, and very few failed to report for duty.

Kenneth Hutchinson, who left here about a year ago to enter the service, has arrived home to visit his mother, Mrs. Ida Hutchinson and other relatives; and also visiting his many friends. Hutchinson is in the marine service, and makes a fine appearance in his natty uniform. He is stationed in San Francisco, and is connected with the paymaster's office, but expects to soon leave for Goat Island, where he will take a special course, later to be transferred to Annapolis to further his military career. Kenneth entered the service at Seattle.

After being snowed in for about a week, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Allen, of Redland, were able to come to Oregon City Monday, disposing of their cream at the Oregon City creamery. Much snow has been experienced at Redland, and the supplies were getting somewhat low. While here Mr. and Mrs. Allen laid in enough supplies in case of another storm.

Otto Polehn, of Redland, was among those to come to Oregon City Monday. Mr. Polehn brought in a load of cream for the Oregon City creamery, and it was necessary to come in a sleigh, the roads being too deep with snow to allow a wagon or other vehicle to pass over.

B. H. Stewart, of District No. 21, was in Oregon City Monday. He accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Spencer as far as this city, the latter being on their way to Grants Pass, where they are visiting. If the country of southern Oregon impresses them they may decide to remain there.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Runyen are happy over the arrival of a baby daughter, Esther Elizabeth Runyen, born December 10 at the Barlow Maternity hospital. The little lady weighs eight pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Ingram were made happy over the arrival on December 11 of a nine pound baby boy, Edwin Ingram, Jr., born at the Barlow Maternity hospital.

C. C. Borland, of Hazelia, was among the few braving the roads leading to Oregon City Thursday afternoon. He was accompanied here by his son Harvey and made the trip in their sleigh. Good time was made on the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall and four children, of Central Point, were among those to come to Oregon City Saturday. Attached to their sleigh were four horses, and Mr. Randall believes that horses are now just as valuable as an automobile, if not more so.

J. Carl Bowman, principal of the Gilbert school near Portland, was in Oregon City Friday. While here he visited City Superintendent R. W. Kirk and family. Mr. Bowman and Mr. Kirk formerly taught in the same school at Tillamook.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Wetle, of The Dalles, Ore., a daughter, the first of the week. Mrs. Wetle formerly resided here, and is the daughter of J. A. McNulty.

Mrs. H. Fisher and son Lester, of Redland, were in Oregon City Saturday. They made the trip by sleigh, and made good time while coming eight miles.

James Fullam, of Redland, was in Oregon City on business Monday, making the trip by sleigh. Jim says that sleighing is fine, but he does not like the snow a little bit, especially when he has to farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taylor, the former who is the son of I. D. Taylor, and formerly of this city, have just returned from a trip to Spokane, Wash. Walla Walla and experienced some cold weather, much worse than in Portland.

William Jones, of Beaver Creek, was among those brave enough to face the snow and cold to come to Oregon City Saturday.

H. Swenson, of Milwaukie, prominent resident of that place, was among the Oregon City visitors Saturday.

Carl Young, of Barton, was in the city Saturday.

A. F. Sloper, of Lower Logan, was in Oregon City Saturday. Mr. Sloper said there was plenty of snow to last the people of that section of the country for some time.

Mrs. S. V. Francis, of Mountain View addition, who has been very ill suffering from pleurisy, is improving.

Rev. T. B. Ford, of Salem, is in the city where he is visiting his daughter, Miss Sadye Evelyn Ford.

Rheumatism, Stomach and Liver Trouble

His Work Well Done

Devotion to his maker, allegiance to his church, a tireless worker, an active mind, ever faithful to his ideals these were the chief characteristics of Dr. T. B. Ford, who died Sunday in Oregon City, stricken down in front of the site of years of his labor for a better world. He had served his God and his church upwards of 50 years, and his family and friends should be content in the thought that his end was sudden and painless, as he would have wished it.

Dr. Ford was blessed with that broad view that is possessed by few men. His heart was in his chosen field of saving souls, but he had time to interest himself in the labor of others, who were always glad to have his counsel. He had a sweet and kindly nature. When he came to Oregon City in 1912, he made it his business to become acquainted with the life of the community outside his church, and thereby drew to himself people who are usually left alone by the church, and who leave the church alone. His congregations were composed of many people who ordinarily never see the inside of a church.

Thousands will mourn the passing of Dr. Ford. He lived and died in harness and from the Supreme Being will come the verdict:

"Well done, good and faithful servant."

Miss Viola McNulty, a student of the Mount Angel academy, arrived in Oregon City Tuesday morning, and will spend her Christmas holidays with her father, James McNulty, of Tenth and John Adams streets. She was accompanied to this city by Miss Mina Lester, whose home is in Bend, and who is spending her holidays at the McNulty home. The college has closed unusually early this year, this being due to the fact that the cold weather has had a bad effect on the piping system of the academy, causing the heater to freeze in various departments.

Mrs. Abel Thomas, of Hoff, was among the Oregon City visitors Friday and Saturday.

J. M. Cross, of Molalla, was among those to register at the Electric Friday and Saturday.

J. Thompson, of Beaver Creek, was in Oregon City Saturday.

F. J. Stangle, of Wilsonville, was in the city Thursday and Friday.

C. C. Steel, of Alsea, arrived in Oregon City Thursday for a brief stay.

R. H. Beattie, of Beaver Creek, transacted business here Friday.

H. Smith, of Canemah, has accepted a position with the Brady Mercantile company, and is a most efficient clerk.

W. A. Carlson made a trip to Oregon City in his sleigh Monday morning. His home is near Redland.

Thomas Gregory, of Greenwood, was in Oregon City Monday, making the trip by sleigh.

L. G. Herrington, of Clackamas, was among those to visit Oregon City Monday.

Harry Emelee, of Milwaukie, was among those to transact business here Monday.

Miss Rosalie Robbins, of Robbins station, visited here Monday afternoon, coming over the Willamette Valley Southern railway.

Joseph Speers, of Redland, was in Oregon City Monday.

Father of Slain Boy's Playmate Accused

Here is the first telegraphed picture ever seen in Oregon City. This picture is the first of the service recently announced as another feature of the Enterprise. This picture was sent over the wires from the east and by means of the system used patrons are able to see the pictures of events within a short number of hours after they occur instead of days as with former methods.

HAMILTON, N. J., Dec. 13.—Chas. S. White has been arrested in connection with the murder of little Willie Dansey, 4-year-old playmate of "Bunnie" White's young son. Neighbors of the suspected man believe that if he was responsible for the death of the boy, it was by accident.

It was on October 8 that Billie Dansey disappeared, saying he was going out to play with "Bunnie." His body was found in a swamp where it lay, according to a recent belief of investigators, but a few days, having been placed in a spot previously searched.

Latest Photograph of French Fighter Who Knocked Out Beckett

That this photograph of Georges Carpentier has never before been published in America is due to the fault of England's Hurleson, or whoever it is that Englishman blame for postal delays. The French light-heavyweight who so quickly disposed of Joe Beckett, England's pride, is seen here as he appeared while in training only a few days before the bout.

NOSE DIVES .. and .. TAIL SPINS

Every one in Oregon City
Has had a busy week
The women discussing
And the men folks
Not so refined
Cussing
The weather
While it's necessary to admit
The climate of Palm Beach
Might be a trifle
More desirable at present
We have a lot
To be thankful for
Had this been like
The Minnesota blizzard
Of 1873
When for three days
It was 40 below zero
And you could not see
Six feet ahead
The late atmospheric flurry
Might have ranked
As a real storm.
But we can be consoled
When we remember
That freezing
Destroys the insects
That play havoc
With the fruit crops
And assures a bountiful
Harvest for 1920.
Somehow
Emerson's law of compensation
Always evens
Up the score.
And anyway
We were becoming
A trifle boastful
About our tropical climate
And next summer
When the tourists
Park their cars
In Oregon City's rest camp
Instead of talking of
Our winter weather
We'll tell them of
The scenic drives
In clackamas county
That rival the World's famous
Columbia river highway.

SHERIFF AND REPORTER VISIT HOVEL OF OLD MAN

People of This City Cannot Imagine Conditions as They Are in Man's Home

"No, sir, not even a self-respecting hog would live that way," said Sheriff Billie Wilson to an Enterprise reporter as they were returning to the court house Monday afternoon after inspecting a hovel occupied by an old man in the northeast part of this city.

"No, a hog will keep clean if you give him a chance," continued the sheriff.

The reporter was in the sheriff's office earlier in the afternoon and was listening to some real coking hunting stories being swapped by Deputy Sheriff Hackett and others when someone asked whether or not Joe McDermott had been heard from during the present cold weather.

Just then Billie Wilson came in and he was asked. He said he had seen him on the street during the past day or so. The talk ran on until Mr. Wilson suggested to the reporter that they walk down and see the place where the old man lived.

They did so and the reporter wishes to say right now that he has been in some pretty horrible and filthy places in pursuit of news in many places in this country, but never has he ever been in as vile a place as the little three room shack he entered Monday afternoon.

The doors to the shack were all fastened when the reporter and the sheriff got there but they went around to the side of the house following tracks in the deep snow. These led to a window. The sheriff climbed through the window and the reporter followed. In the gloom which pervaded the place it was hard to distinguish objects until the eyes of the investigators became accustomed to it.

The room was literally filled with trash and rubbish of every description. By this time some of the neighbors who had recognized the sheriff came up and looked in the window.

"What is all this stuff and where did it come from?" asked Wilson. "Why," said a bystander, "that is stuff Joe brings home with him when he comes from town. If he sees a box or a pan or anything thrown away he picks it up and brings it home."

From the looks of the interior this was true. There were pieces of boxes and apple boxes, broken wash boilers, kettles with holes in the bottom, pieces of fire wood, torn window shades, pieces of carpet, paper and building paper, boards and things of too infinite a variety to be named.

"Come here," came the sheriff's voice from a corner of the next room. The reporter climbed at the risk of broken limbs over the heterogeneous collection to where the sheriff stood in a doorway.

"Here's his bedroom. The two crowded through into a cubby hole about four by five feet. On one side was a little window with two small panes of glass in it. In front of it was a built-in bunk, the bottom of which was solid boards. On this were flung a few quagmud quilts. The sheriff turned these back saying as he did so:

"Do they look like a man is under them?"

"No, they don't look as though any human being could be under them," the reporter answered.

They came out of the bedroom and back into the first room they had entered. Here they discovered a kitchen table amidst the debris which was piled level with the table top on all sides of it. A few feet away they found the stove. At one time it was a stove but now the top is entirely missing and what had once been the fire box was now a huge pile of ashes.

The neighbor who was still at the window volunteered the information that old Joe used that stove for what cooking he did. There was no pipe and the neighbor said that when a fire was burning in the place the smoke made its exit from the cracks in the walls and the crevices in the roof.

The investigators looked into the pantry but the ladder was bare. On the wall close to the stove they found one of those little bracket shelves that one often sees with alarm clocks sitting on them. On this was a piece of paper and in it was wrapped a small loaf of bread.

This completed the tour of inspection and the two were thankful to once more emerge into the fresh air of the dusk of evening. On reaching the court house they found County Judge Anderson in the sheriff's office and he was told of the trip. He said that he had heard of the conditions and that he thought the county should take care of the old man and would do so if the regular course were pursued to bring the case to the attention of the county authorities.

Thirty Years Ago Today

Taken from Oregon City Enterprise of December 12, 1889.

Heavy rains for the past week.

Miss Mary Evelyn Pope, well known in this city, was married in Spokane, Wash., on the fourth to J. M. Hemenway.

E. P. Dedman of Clackamas, was in Oregon City Tuesday and reports feeling the jar of the powder house explosion in that place.

There will be a basket sociable at the home of Mrs. George Broughton this evening at which baskets will be sold to the highest bidder.

Lizzie Draper died at the home of her mother in Canemah after a long and painful illness. Lizzie was a very bright and prepossessing girl who gave promise of a useful and happy life. The funeral services will be held from the St. John's Catholic church today at 10 o'clock.

Last Friday morning as the Hoag was steaming into Milwaukie the cry of fire was heard and flames were seen issuing from the dry house connected with the furniture factory. The Hoag made a quick landing, quickly turning the stream from her line of hose to the burning building, and soon had the flames under control. The damage to the factory was only $200, but had not the Hoag happened along at just that time the entire factory and over 16,000 feet of ash timber would have been destroyed.

The hand concert given on Saturday night was a success financially, and the musical part very creditable to the members of the band. One of the features of the evening was the voting for the best liked woman and the best liked man. There were a number of the ladies and young men being voted on. Miss Emma Hedges was given the prize for the best liked lady and Captain M. H. Flannigan best liked man. Among those voted for were Mrs. Williams, Mrs. George Broughton, Mrs. Frank Rigler, Miss Minnie Hurley, Mrs. P. F. White, Mrs. H. P. Bestow, Miss Emma Hedges, Mrs. Thomas Miller, Mrs. Joseph G. Long, Stella Pinkham, Miss Doris Smith, G. H. Bestow, Arthur Warner, Dr. W. E. Carr, Harry Jones, Erasmus Smith, M. H. Flannigan, Professor Roger, William Anderson, George Warner, Mr. Read, H. P. Bestow, Miss

Hedges received a toilet case and Captain Flannigan a fine cane.

Captain S. B. Califf, Charles Califf and C. H. Dauchey have formed a company to establish a sash and door factory in Oregon City. They have secured the old pottery plant building, have the machinery ordered and are at work putting things in shape for business.

Rev. G. W. Gibney, of Lebanon, has been called to fill the pulpit of the Presbyterian church, and is expected to take charge next month. He comes here well recommended, and well spoken of by those who have heard him. He has a wife and child.

Company F will give their second grand military dance on the evening of December 27.

Water was turned into the new 10-inch main last Friday and carrying powers tested. A section of hose was fastened on to the hydrant at Third street, and the water let in. It failed to stand the pressure and broke out on all sides. A new section was then attached and water was thrown over the staff on the Imperial mill warehouse. The new main seems easily capable of throwing water twice as far as the old one can. The hydrants at the lower end of the street have been moved over to the new main and the work of connecting the private pipes is under way. The old pipe is being unearthed and will be used to extend the new main up the hill and down Main street.

MOLALLA—THIRTY YEARS AGO

Taken from Oregon City Enterprise December 12, 1889.

The Willamette valley is again smiling with delightful weather.

Charlie Thomas has been very sick with typhoid fever, but now is convalescing.

Miss Lula Shaver is visiting in East Portland at the home of her uncle, George Shaver.

Frank Bagby has been dealing in turkeys. He recently delivered 100 dressed gobblers at Oregon City at a fine price.

J. W. Thomas has been suffering from a severe attack of diphtheria, and also suffering from bruises caused by a horse falling on him.

IRISH SITUATION DISCUSSED
WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Opponents of Irish separation from the British empire had the floor today when the 'foreign affairs committee met to continue discussion of Representative Mason's bill appropriating funds for an American ambassador to the "Irish republic."

PE-RU-NA Made Me a Well Man

Mr. Louis Young, 1652 Clifford St., Rochester, N. Y., writes:
"I suffered for thirty years with chronic bowel trouble, stomach trouble and hemorrhages of the bowels. We bought a bottle of Peru and I took it faithfully, and I began to feel better. My wife persuaded me to continue, and I took it for some time as directed. Now I am a well man."

Suffered thirty years with stomach trouble and hemorrhages of the bowels.
