

VOLUNTEERS MAY ORGANIZE

Former Guard Officer Expects Authority for New Company

Before evening today, no doubt, Captain H. E. Williams will have received authority to organize a company of volunteer soldiers in preparation for eventualities in the Mexican crisis and tentative plans for such an organization have already been made.

Captain Williams, formerly commanding officer of a national guard unit and one of the most efficient commanders the guard has had, will be in charge of the organization of the company and will take command when the unit is complete. The sudden call upon the national guard troops has aroused all sections of the country and in this state Adjutant General George A. White has wired to the secretary of war at Washington for authority to organize a second regiment of infantry in the national guard.

The plan for the organization of a volunteer unit has met with very flattering support in Oregon City. Here there are many former members of the national guard and several who were once commissioned officers in the regular state forces, in addition to a number of Spanish-American war veterans, who would be glad to get back into the harness of service if such an opportunity were presented to them. Approximately forty men have already signified their willingness to take up arms with such a company as Captain Williams proposes to organize.

Government and national guard officials have received the plan cordially and the official authority for the organization is expected to arrive in Oregon City by tonight, whereupon the details of organization will be perfected by the captain and those who are interested in the movement which he fathers.

Captain Williams points out his reason for not attempting to organize under the proposed plan of creating a second regiment of national guard. It would be a much more simple matter to be mustered into a guard regiment, reasons the captain, in case the company was called into service than it would be to get out of a national guard unit in case a volunteer regiment was called upon. If a volunteer unit is organized the guns and other equipment of the United States could be used just the same as if the unit were of the new national guard regiment. And the unit would be ready for service in case of a call for volunteers or in case of a call for national guard. To qualify for the latter would be a matter of detail, while to get out of the guard to join a volunteer regiment would be much more difficult.

Captain Williams is of the opinion that volunteers will be called for if more troops are needed before a new regiment of guardsmen would be summoned. For this reason, too, he is contemplating the organization of volunteers rather than national guard.

SINGING THE OLD SONG

Registration Books Are Open for Fall Elections

Try this old family favorite on your music box. It is guaranteed to stir up action about the household which holds the public welfare close to its heart and which would be governed by men deserving to preside in the seats of the holy, both in local, state and national politics. Oh, yes! The title is "Have You Registered?"

This particular piece of music has achieved greater fame, perhaps, than any other melody ever written. It has been sung by a million voices during its long life and has received greater notoriety through the press and the pulpit than any other ballad of modern times.

Its air is one of patriotic fervor. It appeals to the righteous citizen as much today as it did when registration was first conceived in the imaginative mind of some dreaming reformer. "Have You Registered?" is especially popular at the office of County Clerk Harrington just now.

Miss Harrington is certain that there are a great number of Clackamas county citizens who have not designated their political affiliation and she calls to the minds of such persons that the registration books are open. If you don't register, Mr. and Mrs. Voter, you cannot vote for Woodrow Wilson or R. D. Hornstead. Let the melody of the old song get hold of your civic pride and rush to the court house to rehearse it on the official books.

Pupils Present Program

An excellent musical program was presented at the Congregational church last evening by the pupils of Lawrence Woodfin. The event was largely attended and the praise for the musicians came from every side. Those who took part under the direction of their teacher were: Vivian Rauch, Sybil Oldstein, Ruth Kraxberger, Viatrice Rauch, Margaret Miller, Norma Lee, Helen Scott, Laura Johnston, Anna Friedrich, Lillian Anderson, Lyle Took, Gordon Ramstead, Willa Woodfin, Marie Friedrich, Albert Roake, Lawrence Woodfin and the talented ladies' chorus which has appeared publicly so successfully on other occasions. Two numbers by the chorus were very popularly received. They were "A Perfect Day," and "Somewhere a Voice is Calling." The members of the chorus are Mrs. W. C. Green, Miss Louise Walker, Mrs. Lydia Olmstead, Miss Madge Hollowell, Miss Nora Webster, Miss Lillian Anderson and Miss Marie Friedrich.

WOOD BRIGGS TELLS STORIES

Kentuckian Gives Entertaining Program at Chautauqua.

There has been a good deal of discussion among the Chautauqua folks as to whether Wood Briggs is an entertaining lecturer or a lecturing entertainer. And Mr. Briggs is in doubt a little about it himself.

Mr. Briggs is a Kentuckian, and they say that every Kentuckian is an orator. Mr. Briggs is no exception to the rule. He tells his stories in the delightful Kentuckian way, and throughout his lectures he puts in little bits of philosophy of his own.

Briggs is coming to Chautauqua full of ginger and good fun to make a part of one of the biggest Chautauqua programs that have ever been brought to the west.

DIRECTORS ELECTED

Milwaukee District Candidates Have No Opposition

B. M. Fisch was re-elected director and A. H. Zanders school clerk for the ensuing year, without opposition at the annual meeting of the taxpayers of the Milwaukee school Monday night. Annual financial reports were submitted by Clerk Zanders, showing that the finances of the district are in good condition.

Bids for the erection of the new schoolhouse from 17 contractors were opened and read, but no contract was let. The bids ranged up to $18,638 on the general contract for the building. On Wednesday night the directors held a special meeting, when it is probable that the contract was awarded.

QUICK DESSERTS.

WHIP in with a bottle of cream a glass of fresh crushed strawberries. Place two lady fingers or other delicate cakes on a plate and add a couple of tablespoonfuls of the strawberry and cream mixture. Garnish on top with whole strawberries.

Cook some rhubarb stalks in half inch pieces, without peeling them or adding water. Sweeten and flavor with a little grated orange rind. For each cupful of the rhubarb add the beaten yolk of one egg. Cook until thickened, cool and fill small pastry cases. Put a spoonful of meringue made from the whites of the eggs, with a teaspoonful of sugar for each egg, on each pie and set in a moderate oven to rise, stiffen and take on a golden color.

For a dainty dessert cut into small pieces bananas, oranges, pineapples, grapefruit, strawberries, cherries or any fruit available and let it stand on ice until thoroughly chilled. Fill tall sheet glasses, cover with sweetened fruit juice, top with whipped cream and serve.

Whip a pint of cream stiff, add as many halved white grapes as desired, some quince paste cut into small bits, a few shelled pecan nuts broken small and eight marshmallows cut into small pieces. Serve in sherbet glasses and garnish each glass with a candied cherry. This recipe will serve eight persons.

Take equal quantities of pineapple, marshmallows and English walnuts. Chop the walnuts, split the marshmallows and cut the pineapple in small pieces. Alternate layers of pineapple and marshmallows and sprinkle walnuts between. Put in the icebox to become thoroughly chilled. Dish and cover with whipped cream.

Peel some bananas, cut them lengthwise in slices and place them crisscross on the bottom of a buttered baking dish. Pour over them one tablespoonful of lemon juice and two tablespoonfuls of pineapple juice. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and bake in the oven for twenty minutes. Remove from the oven and cover with meringue. Return to the oven and brown.

Lodges Visit Canby

About twenty members of the Rebekah and Odd Fellow's lodges in Oregon City paid an official visit to the Canby Rebekahs on Tuesday evening and initiated five candidates during the evening. A fine program was outlined for the visitors and a most pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

The Canby Rebekah lodge has one of the best drill teams in the state and the work of this organization was a surprise and a pleasure to the visitors. The new lodge hall at Canby is so arranged as to make an excellent home for the order and the lighting effects are a decided feature. Noble Grand Mrs. Lee of the Canby lodge presided at the meeting.

MULLAN HEARD

Road Supervisor Is Supported by Friends in District 1

The county court on Saturday held an interesting session when S. L. Mullan, road supervisor of district number 1, answered to charges of incompetence, using his position for political advantage and negligence filed against him by 115 property owners of his district.

The hearing, which was informal, was held in the court room, and was largely attended by the friends and enemies of Mr. Mullan, who spoke for and against the supervisor. Speakers alleged that Mr. Mullan, who was a republican candidate for county commissioner, gave road work only to those who had signed his nominating petitions for the primary election and that he was incompetent and extravagant in the conduct of his duties. In his own behalf Mr. Mullan read a list of the improvements in his district during the time he has been supervisor and stated that to give work to all who applied was an impossibility. This, he intimated, was the cause for complaint against his administration.

The charges were taken under advisement and the court instructed Roadmaster T. A. Roots to thoroughly investigate conditions in Mr. Mullan's district and the charges against him.

HIGHLAND GROWS UP

Community Will Vote On Matter of Animals at Large

The Highland community is putting on the garb of maturity and has called a special election to decide the question of livestock running at large in a certain portion of the precinct. Residents have found much cause for complaint in the fact that livestock of all varieties enjoy too great a degree of freedom in their daily promenades and would curb the nuisance.

The special election will be held at the Highland school house on July 14 and the polls will open from 8 o'clock in the morning until the same hour in the evening. The election has been officially ordered by County Clerk Harrington.

Most Original Club in America.

There exists in one of our great western cities a unique secret club—called by the members the Get Out and Get On club. It was organized years ago by ten ambitious men who looked upon themselves as not yet having won success. Membership for twelve years has been limited to fifty. The rules are what make this club different. No member may call himself a success until the club votes him one, and when the club votes any member a success, he is expelled and his place is filled by another. But before a success is expelled a dinner is given in his honor and to welcome the new member. At this dinner the success must read a paper explaining to his fellows how and why he won. These papers are preserved.—American Magazine.

Rare Violins.

The rarest violins in the world are those which were made by Guarnerius del Gesù, only about forty of them being known to exist. One of these instruments was purchased by Ysaie for $30,000. Two famous Stradivarius instruments which were used by Sarasate during his great concert tours were sold. One of these, the Boissier, is in a museum at Madrid. It is valued at $50,000. The other is in a museum in Paris. There are only twenty-nine Stradivarius cellos in the world. Of the 300 Stradivarius violins that were made more than 200 have been bought and sold by one dealer.—Argonaut.

Imitation Gold.

By combining ninety-four parts of copper with six parts of antimony and adding a small quantity of magnesium carbonate to increase the weight, a substitute for gold is produced. This alloy, it is said, can be drawn, worked and soldered much the same as gold, and it also takes and retains a gold polish. It can be made for about 25 cents a pound when its constituents can be bought at normal prices.—Houston Post.

Orchids.

Many plants have the power to shift their quarters. The orchid can move one step every year, and although it takes a long time to cross the meadow, if the orchid goes on long enough it would move one step forward toward finishing that long walk every year.

Wig Wearing Very Old.

The ancient Egyptians all wore wigs, and the early Christians from A. D. 427 to A. D. 517 considered a false head covering a badge of distinction—this, too, in direct opposition to Tertullian, who in vain declared their devices and inventions of the devil.

JOHNS TO SPEAK

Molalla Prepares for Monster Celebration of Fourth

Charles A. Johns, more than once candidate for governor, has been selected to deliver the patriotic address at Molalla on July fourth, when that busy little city will engage its whole attention in the celebration of the day. A feature of the program is to be a burlesque parade in which the principal characters of the city and community will be represented. Another attractive feature is to be a balloon ascension and parachute drop staged by Captain LeRoy White. Much interest is developing throughout that section of the county in the celebration at Molalla and the city is preparing for a demonstration second only to that held when the railroad entered the city.

SALUTES BY GUNFIRE.

Origin of the Custom and of the 101 Shots For Monarchs.

There is a good deal more in this most delicate and important matter of salutes by gunfire than is always understood. It has a history of its own, which goes back nearly as far as the use of gunpowder in war, and whether it was adopted as a means of reassuring one's visiting acquaintances that one's guns were empty of cannon balls and one's soul of guile or whether it was begun merely as an organized noise in honor of a guest does not greatly matter.

Toward the end of the fifteenth century a salute of guns was a recognized compliment, though the number to be fired seems to have varied. An accident is said to have settled when to stop firing in the royal salute. The Emperor Maximilian I., returning to the city of Augsburg after an expedition, was received with what should have been a salute of a hundred guns. The officer in charge of the artillery lost count in his nervousness and in order to make sure that the full number was rendered discharged an extra piece.

The city of Nuremberg, which was the next to have the honor of entertaining the emperor, thought that the new number was official and followed the example of Augsburg. Thus the highest honor that was payable by gunfire became 101 rounds.

The greatest salute ever fired was that of 1,001 guns, which in 1840 greeted the arrival in France of the ship bearing Napoleon's body from St. Helena, although at the imperial durbar in 1911 the imposing salute of 101 "guns," each fired by salvos of six pieces, was no less a second. Of others there was a salute fired some few years ago at the blessing of the waters of the Neva by the present czar that might well have marked an epoch. There was also the salute without which the Kaiser on his famous visit to Palestine refused to land at Beirut. Percival London in London Telegraph.

GROTESQUE FASHIONS.

Hats and Hair Frills in the Time of Marie Antoinette.

Some of the fashions in France during the reign of unfortunate Queen Marie Antoinette were exceedingly absurd, particularly haldressing and hats, which were trimmed with such an extravagant wealth of feathers that the coaches had to have their seats lowered. According to Mme. Campan, "mothers and husbands murmured, and the general rumor was that the queen would ruin the French ladies."

One day Louis XVI. decided to forbid the court in a body to follow the royal hunt in coaches. In order to be freer he wished only to permit real sportsmen to attend. The noble ladies immediately rebelled, and the Princess of Monaco criticised the decision by means of her headdress, upon which arose a miniature royal coach, followed by two gentlemen on foot in gaiters. On the left of this was displayed a cypress garlanded with black tears, the large roots being formed of crape.

More absurd still was the haldressing of the mother of Louis Philippe, upon whose head every one could admire her son, the Duc de Beaufort, in the arms of his nurse, as well as a parrot pecking at a cherry.

Contemporary Opinion of Beethoven.

When the First Trios and the First Symphony appeared the conservative critics declared that they were "the confused explosions of a talented young man's overweening conceit."

The Second Symphony was called a monster, a dragon wounded to death and unable to die, thrashing around with its tail in impotent rage! Later Von Weber declared of the sublime Seventh Symphony that "the extravagances of this genius have reached their plus ultra, and Beethoven is quite ripe for the madhouse!"—Dole in "Famous Composers."

A Remarkable Shawl.

The empress of Russia was once presented with a shawl of a remarkable kind. It is contained in a box only a few inches square, in which it fits snugly, yet when it is shaken out it is ten yards square. This notable gift was the work of some women weavers in Orenburg, southern Russia, by whom it was presented. The box containing it is of wood, with hinges, hoops and fastenings of beaten silver.

A War Horse.

A professor who had bought a shabby looking horse asked his coachman to try it. After the animal had been driven around the road a few times the professor asked Pat:

"What do you think of him?"

"Bedad, he'd make a fine war horse," said Pat.

"Why, how is that?" asked the professor.

"Because," said Pat, "he'd sooner die than run."—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

CALL TO ARMS HEARD AND HEEDED

pany I, 2nd Oregon volunteers, as a private.

Harry Warswick, county superintendent of paving operations, gave up his duties on the highways to answer the call to duty. Mr. Warswick is a valuable member of Company G and is one of the members who saw service in the Spanish-American war. His place in the county road department has been filled by the appointment of Robert Morgangi, and Roadmaster Roots will take an active interest in paving operations.

Julius C. Spagle, mail clerk in the local postoffice, is first sergeant of Company G and has been relieved with the office to answer the call to arms.

F. C. Burk has been installed as chief of police until the return of Captain Lowell E. Blanchard, the regular incumbent. In his action in remaining with the colors Captain Blanchard has the hearty support of Mayor Hackett and the captain's position will be held until his return. Captain Blanchard is a charter member of Company G. He enlisted as a private upon the organization of the command nine years ago. He has held a commission as captain for the past five years.

The first captain of Company G was F. A. Loomis, who was followed in command of the local company by Charles Hidy. Between the two these officers held command for four years. The last five years have seen Captain Blanchard in charge continuously.

E. D. Van Auker, Jr., son of City Councilman E. D. Van Auker, is a prominent member of the local command. He was formerly a member of the United States Marine corps and saw service in the Nicaraguan campaign. He is an efficient soldier and although he leaves the home station as a private in the ranks he will undoubtedly receive promotion before the guard leaves the concentration camp at Clackamas.

Members of Company G were scattered to the four winds when the mobilization order was received. Before Tuesday night every man had responded to the call in some manner. One man in eastern Washington wired Captain Blanchard: "If you want me wire the one word—come." The word was speedily wired and the soldier arrived Tuesday evening.

The members of the local command have very thankfully received the donation made by the Live Wires, the council and others for the creation of a company fund. The sum in this fund assures the men a reasonable amount of culinary luxury until they have become used, by degrees, to the more hardy fare of the military camp.

The commissary department of Company G will be in the capable charge of Quartermaster Sergeant Ferd A. Scott, who will see that the cooks are well-supplied with all that the camp storehouse provides. As mess sergeant, in addition to his duties as company quartermaster, Sergeant Scott is entitled to extra pay. He has had experience in handling the "grub" for Company G.

"If the war department did not intend the guard to go beyond Clackamas do you think we would be ordered to surrender leases on armory buildings which we can never get back?" This is the snappy rejoinder of Captain Blanchard when someone in his presence expressed the opinion that Clackamas would be the nearest point to the border land that the company would see. "Would we be packing our equipment in warehouses and dismantling our drill hall entirely just for a camp trip to Clackamas? Sure, we are going to the border."

Although Company G had its full quota of men by Tuesday afternoon, the parade of the company, the Moose lodge band and the old soldiers' life and drum corps brought the thrill of patriotism to the hearts of seven young men and they were enlisted in the ranks at the conclusion of the parade. The parade was witnessed by a large number of citizens, who later went to the armory to observe the drill.

The Live Wires are preparing for a farewell reception for the guard company, to take place early next week if plans carry. The men will be encamped at Clackamas by that time, but it is thought that they will be permitted to return to take part in the festivities outlined by the Live Wire committee comprising H. E. Williams, O. D. Eby, Christian Schuebel, M. D. Latourette and George Harding.

Mrs. Thomas Raber has returned home after a visit with her mother and sister at Denver, Colo.

the creation of a fund approximating $1000 for the benefit of the local guard company. The members of the Live Wires subscribed an even hundred dollars to the fund at the meeting and Main Trunk Howland appointed the committee which waited upon the city council at its meeting last night so successfully and which will appear before the county court. The fund thus created will be used by the local militia company for extras which cannot be provided with government funds.

The Live Wires accepted the invitation of Mrs. A. C. Warner of Mount Pleasant to hold the last club meeting at an event of next Tuesday evening and both members and their ladies will assemble at the hospitable Mount Pleasant home for the last meeting of the season.
