

TWO SUSPECTS IN CAR HOLD-UP TRY DESPERATE DASH

MEN ARRESTED PENDING PROBE OF LOCAL TRAIN ROBBERY MAKE BREAK.

SHERIFF WILSON AND DEPUTY FROST ARE BUSY ON CASE

Local Officials Go Over Ground at Scene of Crime Early Monday Morning—Special Agents Busy.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 14.—Arrested as suspects in connection with the Oregon City interurban train holdup at Glen Echo Sunday night, two men made a dash for liberty just as they arrived at the house late Monday afternoon. Deputy Constable McCullough was forced to fire three shots to stop one of them. The other was captured and overpowered by Deputy Constable Nicholson.

One of the men said his name was Harry Reed. Later he told the officers his true name was Victor Manweiler. The other gave the name of P. W. Bigelow. Both are held in the county jail pending further investigation.

Lon Wagner, special agent for the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, tonight could not positively identify the men as the two who held up the train. Their actions, however, explained to the satisfaction of officers, are being made the subject of a rigid investigation.

Tom F. Cowing, automobile driver for the county, was halted by Manweiler and Bigelow Monday morning near Fairview. The men asked to be taken to Portland, and to the end of a carline. When they arrived at the end of the Rose City Park carline, Cowing stopped his machine. They told him to go on.

At Twenty-eighth street and Sandy boulevard the men got out. They paid Cowing $1 in nickels and dimes, which aroused the driver's suspicions. Manweiler gave Cowing 15 cents extra "to buy a cigar with."

Cowing reported the actions of the two men to Deputy Constable Nicholson, who, with Deputy McCullough, started to search for the pair of suspects. They were found in a rooming house, put in the automobile, and taken to the courthouse.

At the county jail the two men are said to have told conflicting stories, contradicting themselves on many points. At first they denied being near Fairview Monday morning, but when confronted by Cowing, they admitted it. They declared they walked there from the end of the Montaville line after 9 o'clock Monday morning.

Special Agent Wagner and City Detective Tichenor and Leonard tried to identify the men, but were not able to do so Monday night. Mr. Wagner, up to the time of the arrest of Bigelow and Manweiler, had been working on another case as to the identity of one of the holdup men. Sheriff Wilson and Constable Frost, of Oregon City, scoured the vicinity of the holdup near Glen Echo station Monday morning. Deputy Sheriff Phillips, Lon Wagner, J. Roach and W. P. Lillis, special agents of the streetcar company, also visited the scene of the robbery.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 15.—Two streetcar conductors today positively identified Victor Manweiler, alias Harry Price, and P. W. Bigelow as the men who held up an Oregon City interurban train near Glen Echo station late Sunday night, escaping with loot now estimated at $60. Manweiler and Bigelow were arrested Monday.

P. Tye, the conductor who was forced to go through the car passing his hat among the passengers, was certain that Bigelow was the man who held a 15-caliber automatic revolver at his back. He also was certain that Manweiler was the robber who stayed on the back platform and got "cold feet" and jumped from the car before the robbery was completed.

Tom Berland, motorman, watched the performance from the front platform. He also is sure Bigelow is the man who held up Tye.

J. Brown, who was conductor on the Oregon City car leaving Portland at 5:30 p. m., said Manweiler and Bigelow were on his train and got off at Concord station because they did not have money enough to go further. Brown's identification is regarded by the officers as of great importance, for he says he conversed with the men at some length on the trip. He is positive in his identification.

"I attracted my attention," said Mr. Brown yesterday, "because they asked me how much money we usually took in during the day. I told them I hadn't taken in a great deal of money so far. They spoke of Los Angeles, and said the conductors there always had a lot of money."

"I was a little suspicious, but not of a robbery. They had only 39 cents, and wanted to know how far they could ride on that amount. I took them to Concord and told them they would have to get off there. I noticed both men and noted their actions particularly on this account. Also I had been in Los Angeles myself, and it attracted my attention when they spoke to me about Los Angeles."

Both still strongly deny their guilt. They say they were not near the Oregon City line Sunday night. They declare they were in an East Side hotel with two girls.

Following up the girl clue, Deputy Constables Nicholson and McCullough believe they have fastened another crime on the two men. The men yesterday they had gone to Gresham Monday morning to attempt to cash a $175 check which these girls had given them. Simultaneously, it was learned that a check for $175 on

WOMAN SAYS SUSPECT IS LEBANON YOUTH

"I won't tell you my name but I know about this boy, Victor Manweiler, who has been arrested in Portland for the streetcar robbery," a woman told Deputy Sheriff Trembath Tuesday over the telephone.

The deputy asked for details. "The boy's parents live in Lebanon where they are well known," she said. "The boy is their only son and has been arrested several times in the past. About two years ago he was held in a California city on a charge of robbery. I know his parents and they are well liked in their home town."

WASHINGTON COUNTY IS DEFENDANT HERE

The suit of Louis Patnoe against Washington county for $1980 for personal injuries and for the loss of a team, due to a flooded road in that county, was filed in Clackamas county circuit court Saturday on a change of venue.

Patnoe alleges that on the morning of January 8, 1914, he was driving on the Taylor Ferry road and started to cross a filled place in the road which was partially covered with water. In one place the current was so strong that his wagon and team were carried off the fill. The team was drowned and he was injured, he claims.

Washington county is an answer alleged that it was not necessary for Patnoe to take the Taylor Ferry road; that he could have gone back to his farm before reaching the dangerous place, and that the loss was due to the plaintiff's own carelessness.

Detectives Sued By Man Who Says They Duped Him

C. J. HOOD CHARGES WILSON AND BRADLEY POSED AS PROSPECTIVE CUSTOMERS.

Carl Wilson and D. F. Bradley, the two detectives who spent over two weeks at work on liquor cases, are made defendants in a suit brought in the justice court Thursday by C. J. Hood, a lumber dealer, for $25. Judge Grant B. Dimick is appearing for the plaintiff as attorney.

Hood charges that the two detectives told him they intended to buy the Brunswick restaurant and that they intended to remodel it completely. Hood spent two days, he says, consulting carpenters and preparing to refinish the place, only to find that his prospective customers were detectives. Hood asks for $10 a day for the two days and for $5 which, he says, he paid A. L. Blanchard, a carpenter.

After making plans for the purchase of the restaurant and for remodeling it, Hood says the detectives asked him for a drink.

Torpedo And Not Shots Frightened Man At Parkplace

FRANK SMITH CLEARS UP SITUATION—DRIVER IMAGINED MANY DETAILS.

It was a thrilling story E. R. Feller, of Donald, told of a hold-up at 11 o'clock Thursday night near Parkplace. He was going toward Oregon City with his automobile when two men he said, stepped from the road side and fired two shots—he was sure there were two shots. Feller declared that he attempted to run down the men but when he heard the report of their guns, he threw open his door, power car and came into Oregon City, 50 miles an hour.

Sheriff Wilson, Deputy Frost and Night Patrolman Woodward responded to the call. All the country from Parkplace to the Clackamas fish hatchery was covered, the Portland police were notified and the night patrolmen here kept a sharp lookout for suspicious characters. When the officials returned to Oregon City early Friday morning they were of the opinion that another was added to the list of unpublished crimes in Clackamas county.

But not so. Friday Frank Smith, of Parkplace, an employee of one of the local paper mills, cleared up the entire situation. Smith goes to work at midnight and was on his way to the mills at 11 o'clock Thursday night when he saw an automobile coming up the road, he said.

"I happened to have a torpedo in my pocket at the time and I threw it down in front of the car," he said in explaining the incident. "It was a powerful machine and the driver, when he heard the noise of the torpedo, threw all the power on and raced toward Oregon City."

DIRE DISTRESS. It is Near at Hand to Hundreds of Oregon City Readers.

Don't neglect an aching back. Backache is often the kidneys' cry for help. Neglect hurrying to the kidneys' aid. Means that urinary troubles may follow.

Or danger of worse kidney trouble. Here's Oregon City testimony. F. H. Busch, Jr., hardware merchant, Main St., Oregon City, says: "I had an acute attack of kidney and bladder trouble. I found no relief until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. After finishing two boxes I was well and I have never needed a kidney medicine since."

The matter of the Moose lodge was brought up by Mr. Hayes, after he had told the council that he was still working with the Southern Pacific in an effort to induce the railroad to install signals at the Tenth and Eleventh street crossings. He declared that if the officials of the lodge were convicted, the lodge would lose its charter.

Lodge Reformed, He Says. He then reviewed the action of the lodge which, he said, showed an honest effort to clean up. W. Reynolds, the steward, had shouldered the responsibility and paid a fine of $250. The bar and fixtures were removed, the outside door left unlocked, and a new house committee, composed of city officials, had been installed. He said, Mr. Hayes argued that the city would gain nothing by prosecuting the case and that if the lodge was lost to the town, Oregon City would suffer materially. He said that A. A. Price, a clothing merchant, was unanimously nominated dictator of the lodge and that he would be elected at the next meeting.

Mayor Jones, who has discussed the matter with a district official of the lodge, said that he, too, understood the lodge would lose its charter in case the officials of the lodge were found guilty.

Several of the councilmen discussed the matter, all favoring dropping the charges. Metzner declared that "we can't stop Schuebel but maybe the council can influence him." Hackett said that he believed that the council was attempting to do right. Metzner made a motion to recommend to Schuebel that the officers not be prosecuted and the motion was seconded by Van Anken, Meyer, Van Anken, Long, Hackett, Templeton and Metzner voted for the motion.

Ganske and I made a real estate contract, which was fairly and fully understood and reduced to writing by a reputable attorney of Oregon City, and thereafter Ganske failed to perform his part of the contract and I was compelled to sue him for backing out. He employed an attorney in said suit and is now trying to avoid liability for breach of his contract by throwing mud.

I am sure that you did not intend any reflection upon my character or standing in this community when you published the article referred to. Am I right?

H. C. NEILSEN

(Mr. Nielsen is a reputable business man of this city and no reflection was intended in the publication of the article referred to. We merely stated the allegations made by Ganske in his answer to the complaint filed by Nielsen.—Editor.)

Clackamas county's share of the state automobile license fees, amounting to about $1600, will be used for oiling the trunk roads leading from the Multnomah to the Marion county boundaries, according to a statement made yesterday morning by County Judge Anderson. This will give motorists an uninterrupted oiled highway from Portland to Aurora. The action was taken at the request of the Automobile club.

RECOMMENDATION IS MADE TO DROP LIQUOR CHARGES

MATTER NOW WAITS ACTION ON PART OF CITY ATTORNEY SCHUEBEL

IF LODGE OFFICIALS ARE FOUND GUILTY, CHARTER WILL BE LOST

Offers Made by Main Street Property Owners Are Turned Down—Street Oiling Discussed By City Engineer

Confronted with a statement from the national officers of the Moose lodge that if the officials of the order here are convicted on a liquor charge, the local lodge will lose its charter, the council at a special meeting Saturday night unanimously voted to ask City Attorney Schuebel to drop the charges against the lodge officers and the city attorney asked for further time to consider the matter.

The lodge asks for leniency, alleging that in case of conviction of any of the officers, the charter will be taken from the local branch of the order. Further, they say, W. Reynolds, the steward of the lodge, has taken all the responsibility for the condition of affairs at the lodge; the bar and fixtures have been removed, changes have been made in the officers of the lodge, the outside door of the lodge-rooms is no longer locked and there has been a general reformation in the organization.
