Eighty-Seven Years Old

Backache, sore muscles, stiff joints, dark puffs under eyes and bladder disorders are symptoms of diseased kidneys. H. H. Adams, Springfield, Mo., writes: "I had a very severe attack of kidney trouble. I am getting old, eighty-seven. I tried different treatments, but none did me so much good as Foley Kidney Pills. I consider it the best." Foley Kidney Pills are tonic in action and quick to give good results.—Jones Drug Co.

MOUNT PLEASANT

Yes, the holidays have gone, and as we all had a very pleasant time, we are none the worse. Some, of course, have a few pounds more avoirdupois.

The Mount Pleasant Parent-Teachers' will hold their regular meeting this Friday.

The young people had a very pleasant evening Saturday at their dance at the Commercial hall.

The Boy Scouts of Mount Pleasant meet every Thursday evening with their scoutmaster, Carl Joehne.

The poultry men of Mount Pleasant, Mr. Crouse, Everard Hiatt, A. A. Pease and Charles Brown, are enjoying the high price of eggs, as each is gathering from one and a half to two cases a week.

School started again Tuesday and the merry laugh of the pupils can be heard for some distance. It sounds good to me.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown had his brother as a guest over the holidays. The brother is clerk of the state land board at Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Meredith entertained Mr. and Mrs. Allen of St. Johns the other day. Mr. Allen was so impressed with Mount Pleasant that he may locate here.

Miss Ernestine King spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Forbes Pratt of Portland. She has returned and taken up her studies in the high school at Oregon City.

The family reunion at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. King was a delightful event, with a Christmas tree well loaded with presents for old and young. The out-of-town guests were Dr. H. E. Maxwell of Seattle and Mr. and Mrs. L. Williams of Astoria.

Miss Mildred Akin, formerly principal of the Mount Pleasant school, now teaching in the Sandy high school, was the guest of Mrs. Jennie Niles over the holidays.

STONE

After the snow of the past week we hear again the gentle patter of the rain, and it has a very welcome sound.

"Grandma" Hattan is again having a severe attack of the grip.

Mrs. Victoria Hattan visited relatives and friends here a few days last week. She went to Portland also to visit her daughter, Miss Isabel, who is in training at the St. Vincent hospital. She returned to Molalla Saturday.

Mary Watts of Molalla visited her grandmother, Mrs. Hattan, and other friends here Wednesday and Thursday of last week.

Gibson was re-elected secretary. The board of managers consists of Alec Baker, W. F. Douglass and Ray Woodie.

There was also a road meeting and it was decided to send a delegation to Oregon City on Wednesday to petition the aid of the court in the improvement of the Douglass hill road.

Miss Edna Kennedy, after a ten days' vacation, has returned and resumed her duties in the school-room.

VIOLA

(Delayed Correspondence)

A Christmas program was held at the church on Thursday evening with a tree and a treat for all. A real Santa Claus, who came out of the chimney, pleased the little ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Eaden had a large number for dinner on Christmas. There were 28 present including children and grandchildren. They surely had a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Lunceford and four children, of Castle Rock, are spending two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Eaden, parents of Mrs. Lunceford.

Charles Hicinbotham and wife and daughter, of River Mill, spent Christmas at the Sevier home, and a couple of days at the home of John Hughes.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton scalded a leg and foot quite badly recently but has recovered.

Mrs. Selma Olson and son, Elmer, and Worth Randolph of McMinnville spent Christmas at the Randolph home.

B. Tannler is laid up with a sore leg. He injured it some way and now he has blood poison in it. A Portland doctor is treating him.

Miss Ida Tannler was out from Portland to spend Christmas at her home here.

Mrs. Harve Mattoon is in the Oregon City hospital at present. We hope she will soon return to her home improved in health.

Mr. Creason's barn burned to the ground with its contents of hay and mill feed. This is a great loss at this time of the year.

REDLAND

The boys are certainly having a time hunting coyotes. Two are credited to F. Sprague's hounds and two to R. Tracy's lately. Owing to poor marksmanship, three coyotes are still roaming the woods near here. One of F. Sprague's black, white and tan hounds has gone astray or has been killed by coyotes.

Mr. Eggert has rented the Draper place in Cutting canyon and will run cows on it this summer.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Carlson is under the doctor's care in the Oregon City hospital.

Wes Sublet of Portland had a new year's dinner with Mr. and Mrs. L. Funk.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Fouts are enjoying the holidays at Olax, Ore., shooting geese. They expect to return Wednesday.

A crowd of young folks surprised Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Saturday night and tripped the light fantastic.

A. L. Funk, Gilbert Fischer and F. Sprague each took several shots at a coyote Sunday while the hounds chased the brute. But apparently they did very little damage. We would suggest that the boys take clubs next time.

DAIRY and CREAMERY

POINTS THAT MARK GOOD DAIRY ANIMALS

Form of Parts That Indicate Heavy Milk Production.

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

In addition to the general form which marks the dairy type, there are individual parts of the cow which indicate her ability to produce a surplus of milk. Following is a description of the more desirable form of the parts denoting heavy production:

Head.—The heads of the male and female are much the same, except that greater size and heaviness are expected in that of the former. As a whole the head should have a clean cut outline and be free from any coarseness of bone, flesh or skin. In the bull score card more weight is given this part than in the cow score card, which is owing to the fact that the general character of the bull and his masculinity are evidenced in his head. A strong, muscular muzzle and jaws indicate ability to handle large quantities of feed. The form and quality of face, forehead, eye and horn indicate the nervous energy and refinement essential to productive ability.

Neck.—The necks of the cow and the bull are radically different. That of the cow should be of medium length, slender, free from flesh and loose skin. It should be small at the junction with the head and should join the shoulders smoothly. The neck of the bull should be of medium length, small at the head and swelling into a prominent crest. The crest in the bull indicates masculinity and should be both high and broad.

Fore Quarters, Withers.—The withers should be sharp, the ends of the shoulder blades fitting close to the spinal processes and ending some distance below the top of them. This junction should be so smooth as to form a straight line from the top of the spinal processes down the shoulder blade to its junction with the foreleg.

Body, Capacity, Back.—It is very important that there be great strength in this region, as the back supports the weight of the abdomen or barrel.

Ribs.—Flat ribs are found to be associated with the wedge shaped, lean appearance of the dairy animal as compared with the round ribs of the beef animal.

Barrel.—The barrel in both the male and the female should be broad, deep and full and well held up with well sprung ribs. A good sized barrel indicates large capacity for digesting feed.

DAIRY TYPE, AYRESHIRE BREED.

one of the essential functions of the dairy cow. Although the barrel should be large, it should not sag away from the backbone into what is popularly called a "pot belly," leaving loose skin in the flank, nor swing when the animal walks. This indicates an objectionable weakness in the abdominal muscles, which should hold the barrel close up to the backbone.

Loins.—The loins are that portion of the backbone just in front of a line drawn between the hip bones and extending forward to the beginning of the short ribs. The loins should be broad and strong. A sag or drop in this section of the back indicates weakness. A lack of width in this region is caused by short processes on each side of the backbone.

Hind Quarters, Hip Bones.—The hip bones should be wide apart and prominent.

Rump.—The rump should be long, wide and level. The length is measured from the hips to the pin bones. The rump is level when a plane passed through the top of the hip and pin bones is horizontal. A high pelvic arch is not desirable. The pelvic arch is inclined by the spinal column and the pelvic bones. The joints of this arch constitute the hip and pin bones, and this region contains the greater part of the reproductive organs in which the calf develops. It is asserted by some breeders that a short rump is associated with a short udder and a sloping rump with a sloping udder.

Pin Bones.—These bones are the parts of the pelvis which are on each side of the tail. They should be prominent, widely spaced and on a level with the hips. Low placed pin bones are the cause of a sloping rump.

Thighs.—The inner surface of the thighs should be thin and curved out so as to give ample room for the udder. Beefy, thick thighs are an objection, as they do not indicate specialization in the milk producing function.

ers generally are men who have been supervisors and have some knowledge of road work, while the judge as a rule is not familiar with road work. Then why should the county court be given the right to say as to road materials and how and where the funds shall be spent? Under our present system of district taxation the people should and have the right to say where their money should be spent, and whenever that law is repealed and the power given over into the hands of the county court the outlying districts will be the ones to suffer. If the trunk lines are not being built fast enough north and south (which seems to be the main idea) then let them form one continuous district along these routes, but let us alone to build roads according to our means.

What to Do for Bad Colds

If you want a cough medicine that gives quick and sure action in healing colds, coughs or croup, get Foley's Honey and Tar. It heals inflamed or swollen membranes in throat, chest or bronchial tubes; breaks up tight coughs, loosens the phlegm, makes breathing easier, stops tickling in throat. W. F. Thomas, Summerville, Ga., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar is a most efficient remedy for coughs, hoarseness, etc. I have used it with excellent results."—Jones Drug Co.

Two Actions Dismissed

The suit brought by Gustave Flechtner against M. J. Brown and A. E. Frost, former publishers of the Courier, was dismissed in Judge Campbell's court on Tuesday. Mr. Flechtner's complaint was that the former publishers had not lived up to a contract made with him, whereby he was to get a trip to the Panama-Pacific exposition for having won a contest.

The action of Darius C. Fouts against A. A. and Susie Allen was dismissed Tuesday.
