

Repairing a Watch

THE WORK of repairing and putting into "factory shape" a watch is not child's play—it requires mechanical skill, thorough knowledge of the purpose and requirements of each component part. It is a skill which takes deep study to master, and it is surprising how few who are in the business are successful in getting perfect time-keeping conditions into their work. When others have failed we can put them in order or, better still, bring them to us first. You won't find better watchmakers' skill in the state.

FARMING AND LIVE STOCK

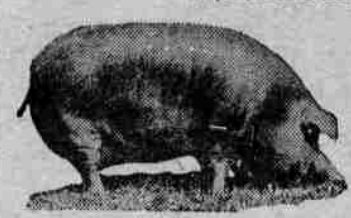

HANDLING GROWING PIGS.

Swine Need a Variety of Feeds, Especially in Cold Weather.

No one can make hogs profitable by feeding only corn and water, especially this year. Some do market hogs raised on that diet, but I have had experience for a lifetime and have tried the corn feeding alone and found it very unprofitable, writes an Indiana farmer in the American Agriculturist. One can fatten a hog on corn alone, but with no profit. By giving a variety of food from the time the pig is old enough to eat until it is marketed you have bone and muscle in proportion to the body weight.

A balanced growing ration which has the required amount of protein must be fed. It has been in the past the general belief among farmers that protein is protein, wherever it is found, and that its source could in no wise affect its value to the growing animal. Corn contains 10 per cent protein, but after all out of the 10 per cent protein that corn contains only 3 per cent is valuable to the growing pig. Therefore I have seen the improvements made by feeding swine material that was higher in protein.

Our routine of feeding growing shots is to furnish a rye pasture dur-

Admirers of the Duroc-Jersey breed of hogs claim that this type will make greater gains on less feed than other breeds. The Duroc-Jersey is of the last type, is a quick maturer and ready to market at six months. The sows are prolific and will raise two litters a year. The sow shown is a Duroc-Jersey.

ing winter and use as sloop feed one part rye, one part oats and one part corn, ground and thoroughly mixed. With this we use tankage or linseed meal. We also use shorts, middlings and dairy byproducts, which all promote the rapid growth and development of the growing hog. In summer hogs do not require much extra feed where good clover or alfalfa pasture is obtainable.

Charcoal and sufficient salt are both required and necessary to the fat hog. We feed warm sloop consisting of ground mixed feeds, shorts or middlings once daily until the hogs are marketed. I do not think hogs should be fed slop at night, for it has a tendency to make the hog fretful and restless during the night. When they leave their warm beds on cold mornings they are heated from fretting, and in the cold air they become chilled and are liable to chronic ailments, which often prove serious. I have tried cooking the slop and find it to be a very profitable method during the winter when fed warm. It makes the food more nutritious, and hogs that are fed this cooked material regularly make rapid gains, both in flesh and growth. I have been more convinced every year I have cared for hogs that a clean feeding pen and dry, warm beds are all necessary to obtain profitable results.

Use Pure Bred Sires.

The pure bred sire is the best means of live stock improvement. Whether good or bad, he is half the herd and sometimes more. For this reason the selection of the sire demands equally as much attention as the entire group of females, and it is far more important to have a good sire, both in individuality and breeding, than to have one or two good females. If sacrifices must be made, let them occur in the selection of the females. Better still, let every one be a good one, both in breeding and individual excellence.—Kansas Farmer.

Hardening the Team.

Give the horses all the work possible from now on to fit them for plowing, the hardest work they will be called upon to perform. Begin to feed them full rations and spend much time in cleaning to rid them of their winter coat of hair and dust.

STOCK NOTES.

Clean, fresh water every day for the sheep flock is a hard and fast rule.
Do not stuff the colts with coarse fodder. If you do you will make it dyspeptic and subject to colic in after years.
Dishwater and such stuff should go down the drainpipe.
Washing powders have no place in the ration for the pigs.
No matter what a horse's gait, he should move easily. When buying, think of this.
There will be loss with the pigs if they are not made comfortable.
Don't feed timothy hay to sheep. Mixed hay or clover or alfalfa should be given to the flock.

WINNERS ANNOUNCED

Silverton Debate Team Captures Preliminary Honors in This District.

District winners in debate have just been announced in the 1917 contest among the high schools of the state under the auspices of the Oregon Debate League. The first round in the interdistrict contest is to be finished not later than March 10; the second, March 31; third, not later than April 15; and the final will be held at the University of Oregon, Friday, May 11, as a feature of "University Week."

The champions of the ten districts into which the state is divided for the purposes of the league follow:

Eastern Oregon (Union and Walla counties): Joseph-La Grande.

Southeastern Oregon (Harney, Malheur, Grant and Baker counties)—Nyssa.

Upper Columbia (Wasco, Crook, Jefferson, Deschutes and Hood River counties)—The Dalles.

Lower Columbia (Clatsop, Columbia, Multnomah counties)—Seaside union high school.

North Willamette (Clackamas, Yamhill, Washington, Tillamook, Marion and Polk counties)—Silverton.

South Willamette (Lincoln, Benton, Linn and Lane counties)—Philomath.

Coos Bay (Coos and Curry counties)—North Bend.

Umatilla (Umatilla, Gilliam, Wheeler and Morrow counties)—Milton.

Southern Oregon (Jackson, Josephine and southern Douglas counties)—Ashland.

South Central Oregon (Klamath and Lake counties)—Klamath Falls.

For the interdistrict contests to come, the number of debaters on each side is fixed at two, and to the visiting team in each instance is assigned the affirmative side. The question this year is, "Resolved, That Oregon should adopt a compulsory health insurance law embodying the essential features of the standard bill of the American Association for Labor Legislation."

To the winners goes not only the honor, but a place on the University of Oregon cup, which is to go into the permanent possession of the team winning the contest three times. The cup has been up for competition five years, and no high school has yet repeated its victory. In 1911-12, the winner was Albany; 1912-13, North Bend; 1913-14, Pendleton; 1914-15, Salem; and last year, Prineville.

THE PRESIDENT'S FLAG.

It Now Indicates When Mr. Wilson is at the White House.

For the last quarter of a century at least the American flag has been raised above the White House when the president was there, and if the president went out for three or four hours the flag was pulled down, so that it would look as though the White House was only protected by the flag when the president was in residence.

The Woman's Relief Corps and the Grand Army of the Republic have protested against this for many years, but it seemed without making any impression. President Wilson, however, decided that the flag of the United States should fly over the White House from sunrise to sunset every day in the year it seems to be necessary, however, that there be some emblem to indicate that the president is in the city.

President Wilson solved this problem by deciding that the president's flag should be raised over the White House whenever he was in residence and taken down whenever he was outside of the White House grounds.

The flag of the president of the United States is the president's naval flag. It is little known to the public. As it flies above the White House, it represents the great seal of the United States—namely, an eagle displayed in proper colors, with the olive branch in one talon, the arrows in the other, and above its head a glory in which appear thirteen stars. This is displayed on a ground of red, the flag itself being blue. The seal is enclosed in one large five pointed white star, encircled by a row of forty-eight stars representing the states in the Union. It floats over the porte-cochere of the White House, and is in a straight line with the staff of the United States flag, which flies from the peak of the White House proper.—Washington National Tribune.

FLASH AND ROAR OF GUNS.

No Device to Muffle Them Has Proved a Practical Success.

Both the French and the German armies have been trying for years to discover how to make a gun that shall be not merely noiseless, but shall emit no flash. For, as Nicolas Flamet says in La Nature, after dark two observers by watching the time can with accurate chronometers having luminous dials discover precisely the position of an enemy battery, or three observers, regardless of time, can do the same by grouping their observations. And this merely by the flash of the guns.

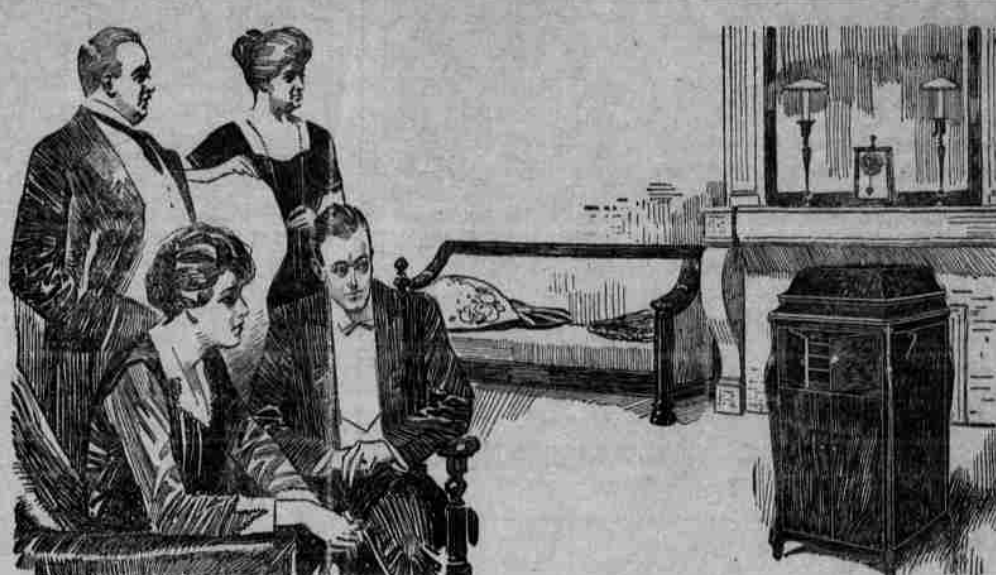

German inventors succeeded by adding a minute quantity of alkaline salts to their powder in diminishing the flash, but they found that in proportion as they suppressed the flash they increased the smoke. Other substances added to the powder for this purpose have been vaseline, alkaline soaps, oxalates and resins of soda, barium and aluminum. None was successful.

The French tackled the problem as a mechanical rather than a chemical one. A gun is really only an explosion motor, and it seemed that there ought to be a way of muffling its sounds and its flash as those of other such motors are muffled. It was not until 1909, when Maxim invented his silencer, that the problem seemed on the way to solution. Many other silencers, most of which quench much of the light as well as the sound, have been invented since then, but none is a practical success in warfare, either from the point of view of sound or of light.

ard of the Oregon national forest. It is equipped with folding seats and two-piece take-down cars. When folded for carrying, the whole outfit, including seats and oars, makes a package four and a half feet long and about ten inches in diameter, weighing fifty pounds.

The boat will be used by forest officers in inspection work on the lakes in the vicinity of Olallie Butte where the forest service and the state of Oregon are co-operating in planting game fish.

Several of these lakes have already been stocked with rainbow trout. The proposed Mt. Jefferson park highway will give easy access to these lakes, which are expected to furnish good sport for the fishermen who visit them.

NETMEN BUCK BILL

Campaign to Raise Funds for Attack Petitions Circulated

The Clackamas County Fishermen's union plans to invoke the referendum on the Gill bill, passed at the recent session of the state legislature, and will start the circulation of petitions immediately. The Gill bill moves the dead line for the net fishermen to the vicinity of Oswego from the suspension bridge in Oregon City, where it has been for about two years.

This action was decided upon at a meeting of the union at the city hall on last Monday evening. Several times the state legislature has moved the dead line from one place to another and the fishermen believe they have been getting the worst end of the deal. Under the present change the gillnetters would practically be deprived of the best fishing waters in the river.

The net men started last Friday morning on a campaign to raise funds to fight the Gill bill through the referendum. At the meeting held Monday evening a financial report was read, showing that about $750 had been collected to carry on the fight. Members of the union, local sportsmen who know conditions on the river, cannery men and merchants will be asked to contribute to the fund.

Already three Portland fish buyers and the Pillar Rock cannery people have given $300 between them.
