LIMITS OF THE AIRPLANE.

Fliers as Big as Ocean Liners Are an Impossibility.
I am not one of those who entertain extravagant ideas concerning the future of the airplane. All sorts of ridiculous notions are afloat, largely fathered by people of lively imagination and of limited information. I do not believe that all transportation in future will be through the air. The airplane will not supplant the railroad, the trolley car or the motorcar. It will merely be another agency for performing a similar kind of work.
There are certain things that it will do better than the railroad or the motorcar, and its use will therefore be limited to those, for we must realize at the start that the airplane has decided limitations. We see numerous pictures today of aircraft as large as ocean liners, but these are merely vain imaginings. We shall have no airplanes as large as the Lusitania.
Any one who understands the fundamentals of air mechanics will immediately understand why this is so. The airplane is built essentially upon the same principles as a bird. It has the same flying capabilities as a bird and precisely the same limitations. The best flier among birds is the humming bird, and certain insects, which are much smaller, such as the dragon fly, are also wonderful fliers. It is a law of nature that the larger the bird the poorer its flying ability.
There are excellent mechanical reasons for this. The main one is that as a bird increases in size its weight increases at a much greater rate than the area of its wings. Thus if a bird doubles its size it would need, to lift itself in the air, not twice as much power, but eight times as much—that is, its weight increases as its cube, whereas the area of the wings increases as its square. This is the principle that limits the size of birds, and it is also the principle that limits the size of airplanes, which fly just as birds fly. Each increase in size demands a much greater proportional increase in motive power, the result being that we have to add so enormously to the weight that the airplane soon reaches a size where it cannot leave the ground.—From Interview With Orville Wright by Burton J. Hendrick in Harper's Magazine.

Kerbs Sues Prisoner
Henry and Eliza Kerbs Tuesday brought action against G. H. von Felstein, held in the county jail on charges preferred by them, to cancel their deeds to property which they traded to the prisoner. Felstein is alleged to have traded to the Kerbs property which he did not own and they want their part in the transaction cancelled.

WOULD CHANGE POLL
Cherryville Said to be in Largest Precinct in the County
There is competition for the relocation of the polling place in what is said to be one of the largest voting precincts in the country. A petition is in circulation in Cherryville and the surrounding country asking that that place be named the voting place instead of Salmon River or Brightwood. The polls were originally at Cherryville, but first were moved three miles east and then seven miles east without approval of the voters, it is said. It is reported that the eastern part of the precinct is in favor of a division of the territory and Cherryville wants the polls in any event. The precinct extends east and west for a distance of more than 30 miles.

Modern Methods Win Their Way Into the World Because They Deserve It

THE ELECTRIC RANGE ranks with the kodak, the phonograph, the telephone, the automobile, as a modern invention.

Dirless, woodless, coalless, ashless, smokeless, matchless, it fills a need, the importance of which is not measured by what one SPENDS but what one gets for it.

Just as the modern store or office can afford the adding machine, the typewriter or the cash register, the modern housewife can afford an ELECTRIC RANGE because it is acknowledged by all who have used it to be

RECEPTION IS OFF
Because the committee in charge of the affair neglected to ask the three young men, who have volunteered to go to American Lake as Clackamas county's 5 per cent for the first draft call, whether or not they could attend the reception planned in their honor, that event was called off. Great plans had been made for entertaining the trio Tuesday evening and a fine program had been arranged to be given at the Commercial club, where speakers and singers were to provide entertainment for the occasion. But the committee did not take the young conscripts into consideration and each of the three had already made plans for the evening that could not be set aside. Will H. Foster, of Oswego, an electrician, worked until 11 o'clock Tuesday evening and P. L. Hammond and Charles Moulton had other engagements. The Commercial club will probably have a reception for the 21 young men who will respond to the second call from the first draft quota.

Dealers Must Inventory
Gentlemen:
I have received instructions from the Treasury department at Washington, D. C., to at once notify all tobacco dealers that immediately upon the passage of the War Tax act, now pending in congress, they will be required to make a detailed inventory of all manufactured tobacco, including snuff, cigars and cigarettes, on hand at that time, showing the price at which the same is sold at retail, and to keep this inventory until printed forms are furnished by the department, which will be done as soon as possible, and instructions given as to how to complete the same and the amount of tax to be paid.
Upon the passage of the War Tax bill, announcement will no doubt be made through the newspapers.
I would esteem it a favor if you could give the above a prominent place in the news items of your paper.
Thanking you for your co-operation in the past, I remain,
Very respectfully,
MILTON A. MILLER, Collector.
