

A BUSINESS CHAT

The merchant who pins a "Buy It in Oregon City" sign in his window and doesn't advertise what he has to sell in Oregon City is cheating himself, his city and those who might be his patrons. Cheating is a criminal offense, ordinarily. Don't be a criminal! If you don't advertise in one way or another you don't believe in the buy it in Oregon City propaganda at all. THE COURIER can show you why you don't. If you fail to tell the buyers of Clackamas county that you have a store and that you have something for sale, be it gunnysacks or gold bricks, you are an unprogressive incubator to the business community.

If you don't realize the business pull that well-written advertising in THE COURIER has, just look about you and note the men and the stores that are doing the biggest business with the best buyers. The biggest men and the biggest stores are the most consistent advertisers. Take a look up and down Main street, if you can't believe, and determine the truth for yourself.

MESSAGE OF LABORERS GETS A PROMPT REPLY

The following messages were exchanged between organized papermill workers in Oregon City and the president of the Crown-Willamette Paper Co., W. P. Johnson, at San Francisco. The unions here sent this message to Mr. Johnson:

W. P. Johnson, president Willamette Paper Co., San Francisco, Calif.: Your employees of Camas and Oregon City mills, members of unions, appeal to you, and through you to the board of directors whom we are informed meet tomorrow (Liberty day) that the following requests be given favorable consideration:

Time and one-half for over-time, and Sunday work; discontinuation of Sunday operation of paper mills for twenty-four hours and all unnecessary Sunday work; twenty-five cents per day wage increase; no discrimination against employees because of membership in labor organizations; officials of company to meet committees to hear and adjust grievances of men; re-instatement of discharged employees at Oregon City because of not working on Sunday and because of membership in union.

If your board cannot agree with us in our contention for the above concessions, may we not ask that the differences be submitted to a board of arbitration for adjustment, to which your employees stand ready to subscribe. That industrial strife and cessation of work should not occur in this hour of our country's crisis, all loyal citizens must agree. The conditions of employment and wage increase asked, we believe we are fully entitled to. The right to be members of unions, and that grievances of workers may be presented through committees, should no longer be questioned, much less denied. In the interest of peace, humanity, freedom and democracy, we trust this appeal may not be in vain.

Signed by: Sidney Richards and Roy Ott, of Oregon City, and Frank Trampton and Frank Champlin, of Camas.

President Johnson replied as follows, through State Labor Commissioner O. P. Hoff:

O. P. Hoff, labor commissioner: Answering your telegram twenty-third, the Council of National Defense of the United States soon after its appointment, initiated the principle that neither employers nor employees should endeavor to take advantage of the country's necessities to change existing standards. We have strictly conformed to this principle. Since the beginning of the world war we have increased the wages of our employees several times in harmony with the increased cost of living during that time. We are now paying higher wages than scales established by unions for paper mills. We have not discriminated against unions nor members of unions. We have never asked men who applied for employment whether they were union or non-union. Over four years ago the company voluntarily changed from two shifts to three shifts per day. The commissioner of Oregon is doubtless aware that the company has evidenced its interest in the welfare of its employees by expending methods for their protection. Paper prices have declined. The advance in the cost of living has been checked. There is, therefore, no justification for any increase in wages now. Referring to your suggestion that a sub-committee be appointed by our board of directors to meet in Portland, either Friday or Saturday, we assure you that Mr. Lewtwaite, our resident manager, has full power to act in any such conference, and has received our instruction.

MAN TROUBLED FOR TWO YEARS

Men and women should not suffer from backache, rheumatism, stiff joints and swollen, sore muscles, when relief can be easily had. James McCrery, Berrien Center, Mich., says he was troubled with kidney and bladder trouble for two years; would have to get up several times during the night and had pains across his kidneys. He used several kinds of medicine without relief, but Foley Kidney Pills cured him. Many such letters, come every day from all parts of the country.—Jones Drug Co.

Timber Cases Again

Transcripts on appeal from the board of equalization have been filed in the circuit court by C. L. Starr, representing the Weyerhaeuser Timber company, E. S. Collins, and the estate of T. D. Collins. The cases are those of timber holders against tax assessments in this county.

The Oregon City Courier and the Oregon Farmer, both for $1.00.

HE PAID HIS SUB.

There are two degrees of political democracy. One is to not read THE COURIER, and the other isn't. W. B. Stafford's variety 15. Mr. Stafford came into the office this week to pay his subscription to THE COURIER, Oregon's greatest weekly, and his respects to President Woodrow Wilson, America's greatest statesman. And Mr. Stafford has a right to do both. Has he not read THE COURIER, for these many years? Has he not shaken President Wilson by the hand and chatted with him as a friend? Is he not a product of the famous state of which Mr. Wilson was governor? Of course!

W. B. Stafford is one of the only men in Clackamas county who has had the honor of knowing President Wilson personally. If Woodrow Wilson wants to be president for the next 50 years Mr. Stafford will do all in his power to make Woodrow Wilson president. Mr. Stafford is doing his daily bit to help the president and his government, too. He has given his only son to the great war—he is now at the front in France doing his noble bit for Uncle Sam.

Mr. Stafford attended a banquet given Woodrow Wilson at Portland when he was a candidate for president. "I can't say that President Wilson is a great orator," Mr. Stafford remarked, "but when he talks he says something and when he works he does something."

Knowing Beans

It is literally true this year that the farmer who knows beans has been able to turn his knowledge into cash. The bean crop has been profitable wherever it was properly planted and well tended. The demonstration by the Live Wires of the Oregon City Commercial club illustrates the point. Their yield of 5261 pounds of beans, worth $710, from sixteen acres, while not exceptional as bean crops go, nevertheless showed that there is money in beans under present conditions. The club also performed a patriotic duty. The bean is a staple and highly desirable food, especially in war time.

Veterans of the Civil war always recall the common white bean with pleasant sensations. Bean soup prepared in the big camp kettle, was savory, nutritious, dependable and satisfying. Baked beans and boiled beans, accompanied by a generous ration of pork, made, with hard tack, a full meal. They had "staying" qualities that were not characteristic of many other foods. It would not be easy to imagine what our armies would have done without the bean.

It is interesting to read that the Orient is now turning to bean culture in the hope of being able to feed the world. Thousands of acres were planted this season in Northern Manchuria on plantations financed by American capital, and the combined system of Chinese hand labor and method with modern machinery has proved so well adapted to getting results at minimum cost that it is probable that the industry will be enormously extended. Chinese and Japanese are adding the bean to their diet because its protein content makes it especially desirable in connection with a starchy food, such as rice.

The cook who discovered the affinity between pork and beans probably was not a formal scientist, but he hit upon a dietetic combination that is hard to beat. The bean deserves a monument, but failing to get one it is entitled to the compliment of being as widely cultivated as possible. If we doubled our present production we would not have too much.—Oregonian

The Put-It-Offs

My Friend have you heard of the town of Yawn?

On the banks of the River Slow, Where blooms the Wait-while flower fair,

Where the Sometime-or-other scents the air, And the soft Go-easys grow?

It lies in the valley of What's-the-use In the Province of Let-'er-slide; That tired feeling is native there, It's the home of the listless I-don't-care.

Where the Put-it-offs abide, The Put-it-offs smile when asked to work,

And say they will do it tomorrow; And so they delay from day unto day, Till death cycles up and takes them away,

And their families starve, beg or borrow. —Anon.

Regard and Use of Money

"Any man, in order to achieve real success, must have the right ideas about money. If he hasn't the right ideas about money, he is not solid in character. A man may easily be happy, successful and highly regarded on eighteen hundred dollars or less a year; but, if he is, it is because he knows how to handle those eighteen hundred dollars, and realizes the power that is in each of those eighteen hundred dollars, and keeps in sight the fact that it takes one hundred cents, or twenty nickels, or ten dimes to make each one of those eighteen hundred dollars.

"On the other hand, a man may have an annual income of fifty thousand dollars and be neither successful nor happy nor highly regarded. If this is true of him, it is because he has not the right ideas about money.

"Here is the thing that applies to my experience and to every man's: Money is the symbol of worth and power, if your money is handled correctly. If you regard money as a constructive thing, something to be

Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture, on one of his farms at Chenow, Ill. The average for all the oats harvested on the Vrooman farms this year was 73 bushels per acre. The average production of oats per acre for Illinois for the past 10 years is 33.1 bushels. The fact that Mr. Vrooman was able more than to double this average on his entire acreage and almost to treble it on one field, it is pointed out, is proof of the efficacy of the methods recommended by the United States department of agriculture. All of the oats were grown in accordance with the methods approved by the department.
