TRAINING LITTLE CHILDREN

Music an Elemental Part of Life—Every Mother Can Begin to Arrouse a Feeling for Music in Her Children by Teaching Them to Distinguish
Different Sounds

(By Mrs. Jean N. Barrett)

Dear old Mother Goose, the patron saint of children's music! How much the children of our family owe to her jingles. I can very distinctly remember my father playing with us and trotting us to the rhythm of "Ride a trot horse," "To Boston, to Boston, to buy a penny bun," and "Little bow-wow to the mill."

No child, thoroughly imbued with these rhymes, will have any trouble in comprehending three and four part rhythms, with their varied subdivisions and accents. How much more delightful to have all this rhythmic instinct grow up unconsciously from happy playtime than to have it left until a child is old enough to be conscious of his lack in this respect and has to go through exacting and tiresome drills to overcome it.

Happy the child whose lot is cast in a joyous musical atmosphere! There is thus implanted in his inner being a something which will help him to go through many trials with a brave heart and an unconquerable hope and faith that this is after all a good world.

We constantly hear mothers say, "No, my children have no talent for music and I shall not bother to have them learn anything about it."

If I could feel that I had in all my life made a few mothers, a few teachers, understand the difference between music as a performance and music as a life element, and thereby gained for a few children this power which more than any other stirs the vital forces by which we live, I should feel that my share of life's troubles were a small price to pay.

A like misapprehension in the domain of art would banish from home and school the beautiful pictures and art forms which awaken a love of all that wonderful world of beauty revealed to the seeing eye and the appreciative mind because, perforce, so very few children have any talent for drawing, painting or modeling.

One of the first steps in rousing a feeling for music is to lead a child to listen. How much stress is laid in our scheme of education upon teaching a child to observe, to see; how little upon teaching him to hear. The eye is made dominant in all things and we lose much enjoyment which a trained sense of hearing might bring us. God made the birds beautiful, but He also gave them songs, so tender, so thrilling that the very breath stops that we may listen, as we sit at twilight near the home of wood thrush or song sparrow.

To the open ear is not the gentle, silvery murmur of the brook as it calls through the forest as keen a delight as is its crystal shimmer in a setting of green, when we have followed its call and found its home?

Let us not forget that the morning stars sang together, and that He who created them meant His children to hear their music in the melodies and harmonies of all His great creation.

The child brought up in the city hasn't the beautiful sounds of nature from which to get his first lessons in listening, but mother and kindergarten can make use of what they have. Even the scissors grinder and ragman helps us out here. One of my little pupils, the daughter of musical parents, gained her first idea of imitating sounds correctly from a ragman's call. As we were having our lesson one day we heard this song come, I was going to say float in at the window, but the ragman's tones are rather too strenuous to be called floating tones: "Rags, rags, rags; any old rags or bott's." The tune can be written thus. Do si la sol do do, but no words can describe the quality of the tones. At once I imitated the theme and little Frances, to my great surprise, imitated me exactly, whereas before this she had hardly been able to get one single note correctly. His tune was unique and it appealed to her.

Lead the children to listen in every way you can think of. Tap on different substances, wood, glass, silver. You may find a lampshade that gives forth a definite musical pitch. Play tunes on tumblers, turning them to musical pitches by varying the quantity of water in them and striking lightly with silver knife or spoon. This device I found most useful in arousing interest in music in a boy who seemed to have no musical instinct whatever.

A writer says: "The greater part of children's time is spent in elaborate impersonation, and make-believe, and the entire basis of their education is acquired through this directly assimilative faculty." This applies most forcibly to music and gives to those who have the care of children almost unlimited opportunity for developing musical expression.

A lullaby song at the child's bedside at night is a benediction beyond estimate.

Please pass this article on to a friend and thus help Uncle Sam reach all the mothers of the country.

"OREGON"

"OREGON" is the splendid title of a splendid little book just off the press from the pen of John B. Horner, professor of history at the Oregon Agricultural college. The volume is timely and embraces a concise history of the state, a list and biographies of her great men, and also a splendid treatise on Oregon literature—something new in Oregon book lore.

Oregon history is divided by Mr. Horner into 5 epochs, early explorations, the settlement, Oregon under provisional government, Oregon under territorial government, and lastly the State of Oregon. The book is written in a most entertaining style and is profusely illustrated with scenes and faces that should be carefully preserved in every loyal Oregonian's home.

Oregon's literary field, according to Mr. Horner, is well taken care of by Samuel L. Simpson, Mrs. Ella Higginson, Frederick Homer Balch, Edwin Markham, Mrs. Eva Emery Dye, Senator Edwin D. Baker, Louis Albert Banks, Harvey Whitefield Scott, Homer Davenport, Joaquin Miller.

ELKS OUT IN FORCE IN HONOR OF VISITORS

One of the best attended meetings of the Oregon City Elks took place Friday night in the Elks' club rooms in this city, in honor of Chas. H. Burgraf, district deputy Exalted Ruler for Oregon, who visited the lodge for inspection. Mr. Burgraf was accompanied to this city by Wm. S. Kennedy, of The Dalles, who is president of the Oregon State Elks' association; Chas. Ringler, Portland, Exalted Ruler of the Portland Elks; Wm. McGinn, of the Portland lodge, and Monroe Goldstein, from the same city. The delegation arrived here on the 6:30 car from Portland, and were met by a special committee from the Oregon City lodge, and the entire party walked across the river to the New West Linn hotel, where a banquet took place in the visitor's honor. Plates were laid for about sixty, and after the banquet the party was shown through the hostelry by B. T. McBain, manager of the Crown-Williamette paper mills.

After spending about an hour at West Linn, inspecting the hotel, the delegation came to Oregon City to attend the special session of the lodge. After the coronation of the lodge took place, another spread was laid in the club rooms for the entire organization.

Mr. Burgraf addressed the members of the lodge, and in a patriotic talk, held the assembly silent with his timely and eloquent remarks. It was considered one of the best addresses it has been the privilege of the members to hear for some time.

About the State

Resume of the News of All Parts of Oregon

Lumbermen of the Pacific Coast, by co-operation, can open up a big lumber market in the Mediterranean region and other devastated sections of Europe, Nelson C. Brown of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce told members of the West Coast Lumbermen's Association at a luncheon Saturday at the Portland. Just returned from a 15-months' tour of the Mediterranean and surrounding country, Mr. Brown, who is one of the four trade commissioners of the Department of Commerce, brought first-hand information on lumber marketing conditions to representative lumbermen of this region.—Portland Record-Abstract.

The interest in the walnut industry showed a marked increase at this year's meeting of the walnut and filbert men and women, held at the Portland hotel last week. The filbert came in for a big share of the interest with important papers, including a neat little booklet by Senator McNary, who is an enthusiast with both the walnut and the filbert. The proceedings are to be published in pamphlet form for distribution among the members of the association.—McMinnville News-Reporter.

A $25 rooster sounds big but Bert Millap possesses a bird valued at this amount. He is of the Riley strain of Dark Barred Rocks, and without doubt one of the best Plymouth Rocks in the state. Mr. Millap will have for sale eggs for hatching from matings with this rooster.—Lebanon Express.

Mary Silver Weds
Miss Mary Silver, formerly of this city, but now living in Vancouver, and Eugene Oyler, of Portland, were granted license to wed in Vancouver, February 12. Miss Silver is the daughter of Mrs. Agnes Silver, who was a resident of this city prior to moving to Vancouver, and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers, of West Linn.

It's Time to Spray

The time for spraying dormant trees for San Jose Scale, other Scales, and for other insect Pests is right now before the buds begin to swell.

Generally speaking, only those insects are destroyed which actually come in contact with the spray, so thoroughness is essential.

By spraying now there is no foliage to hinder and the application may be more thorough. Also the spray may be used much stronger than during the growing season. And also danger to growing buds and twigs is eliminated.

Lime-Sulphur

is the accepted dormant Spray and one thorough dormant treatment each year will keep under control the more important scale insect pests of the orchard. Lime-Sulphur may be had either dry or in liquid form but the dry form is more convenient and less expensive to handle and is now generally used.

Sherwin-Williams Dry Lime-Sulphur

1 lb.	$.30
5 lbs.	1.25
10 lbs.	2.25
25 lbs.	4.50
100 lbs.	15.00

10 pounds of Dry Lime-Sulphur makes 50 gallons of strong Dormant Spray. If you prefer Liquid Lime-Sulphur we have it.

For Peach Leaf Curl

We recommend Bordeaux Mixture applied at once—though some growers find the remedy in Lime-Sulphur. Bluestone for Bordeaux Mixture costs 20c pound or 3 pounds for 50c.

For further information have a talk with our spray expert; or ask for a free copy of our Sprayer's Manual.

BACKACHE IS DISCOURAGING

But Not So Bad If You Know How to Reach the Cause

Nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. Lame when you awaken, pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to work or to rest. Backache often indicates bad kidneys. Oregon City people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this case:

Mrs. Henry Larsen, 905 John Adams St., says: "I was subject to backache for several years and was so bad I couldn't rest well day or night and when I was on my feet a great deal the trouble was worse. My kidneys didn't act right either. I was all run down and had no ambition to do anything. The least exertion made me tired and nervous. Since I have been taking Doan's Kidney Pills, my back feels stronger and my kidneys act more regularly. Doan's have proven beneficial in every way."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Larsen had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. (Adv.)

Relieved of Catarrh Due to La Grippe, Thanks to

PERUNA

Mrs. Laura Berberick, 69 years old,
of 1205 Willow Ave., Hoboken, N. J.,
writes:

"Four years ago I had a severe attack of La Grippe. After my sickness I was troubled with hoarseness and slime in the head and throat, and was told I had catarrh. I took some medicine but without much benefit. Every winter for four years, I have had La Grippe (last winter three times). The catarrh grew worse. I could not lie down or sleep at night. Was always troubled with slime, pain in my back and a terrible headache every morning when I woke up, and had no blood. I got a Peruna calendar in Danish, my native language, and I read it through, every testimony, and then I bought a bottle of Peruna. To-day I can truthfully testify that Peruna has been a great benefit to me. It has given me blood and strength. I can lie down and sleep without being troubled. I have no pain, headache, or noise in my head. I have gained weight three pounds, which I think is good for my age. I will be sixty-nine years old next summer. I have used Peruna since I started in February, and I use it yet. I feel cheerful and happy, thanks to Peruna. I will always be in my home and I recommend it to those who need it."
