Macksburg

MACKSBURG, Oct. 2.—With the passing of the autumnal equinox the summer of 1919 has finally taken leave. The grain harvest and the threshing are over. Most of the schools are opened. The annual migration to distant apple orchards has begun. The state fair has been visited with the result of inspiring much hearty emulation in regard to our own county fair.

"Jack Frost" has paid us a visit putting an end to much of the growth we were cherishing with watchful care, but leaving us with plenty for winter supply. Turkeys are strutting and geese are sailing majestically on their haughty way all unimpaired of the fate that autumn prices are certain to bring upon their heads.

Clifford Jones, Virginia and Eleanor, or Say are attending high school in Newberg.

Marie Lawler has been home for a week, on account of illness. The new Wiedemann home will be a splendid dwelling and a credit to our village.

Reed Graham and Mr. Kiser are enjoying a short hunting trip in the mountains.

Leaf Wagner has returned to the University of Oregon, to resume her studies.

A baby girl arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Derr, on September 15.

C. Murray has been appointed one of the deputy sheriffs for this part of Clackamas county.

Clavie Say is teaching school in the Union district.

The following persons attended the good roads meetings at the county seat on Monday and Wednesday even-trail reminds one of Whittier's "Barfoot Boy."

Wm. Kruger seeded a fine meadow to grass recently. This is practically no experiment as his Uncle, Henry Kruger, has a fine meadow that has lived for years and furnished feed nearly the year round. The Kruger homestead is a favored nook, where the snow rarely falls in winter, while the small amount that does reach the ground melts rapidly. After well rewarded deer hunting trip, Mr. Kruger returned to work in Montemmen's saw mill, near Scotts Mills the first of the week.

Mrs. Chas. Tidd has been fortunate enough to find a so-called two headed snake. That there was such a two-headed monster here has been told but somewhat doubted until it was reported by such good authority. Mrs. Tidd bent upon learning the name would the specimen upon a stick and home in a tub of water, till she could carry it home where she gave it a learn what it was. Mrs. Tidd says that it appeared exactly the same at both ends excepting that it crawled one way, which probably denoted the true head. The creature was apparently sightless.

Miss Zena Badger, Mrs. Tidd, Mrs. Battles and her mother, Mrs. Burdett, instead, only to learn that their host were all callers at the Fletcher Home and hostess had gone to the Hertzfeld farm to pick fruit. Mrs. Battles took her mother to view the Hertzfeld place, and to show her what can be accomplished in Elk Prairie. Mrs. Battles has just returned from a brief visit to her old home in Spokane. Mr. Battles remained in that place to work the "five months off" allowed by the government. He plans to develop their homestead next spring, as both he and Miss Burdett whom he has since married, won homesteads. This is Mrs. Burdett's first visit to the new home of her daughter.

CINCINNATI BALL TEAM WINNER IN FIRST GAME

Redland Field, Cincinnati, Oct. 1.—Today one of the dreams of Cincinnati came true.

After generations of waiting a ball club bearing its standard went into a world's series duel today and won a brilliant game from their White Hosed opponents, the final score being 9 to 1.

Something over 30,000 frenzied denizens of this Ohio river town poured into the field today for the first clash between the red hosed warriors of Cincinnati and the white garbed ones from Chicago, and what a tremendous enthusiasm—even hysterical—through it was.

The preliminaries to the big show started soon after 12 o'clock. A band of 30 pieces struttled into the park exuding harmony. Varying from the usual custom of bands, the Cincinnati music makers paraded around the field and serenaded the grandstand folks, the pavilion seat holder and the bleacherites in turn. The rendering of popular songs of today and "A Hot Time" of the other years provoked the multitude into chorus work.

The Reds trotted onto the field at 12:30 and bedlam broke loose. The natives leaped to their feet and belovied a royal welcome. Then the band struck in with a new song, "Toot, Toot, Cincinnati!"—written expressly for the rosters. The crowd performed the chorus, which, in the main, consisted in informing the world that Captain Heine Groh and various ceteras of the Reds, were real people.

Pat Moran chased his players onto the parched diamond and despite the oppressiveness of the day, the noble athletes disported in lively fashion.

They fitted hither and yon with agility and speared the horse hide with great dispatch and elat.

Every series develops a new idol for the fans, and Walter Ruther, who pitched the Reds to victory, was the unanimous choice tonight. He not only held the White Sox to six scattered hits and really deserved a shoutout, but rolled up a batting average of 1,000 for himself.

If there was anything in the game that was better than his hurling it was his work with the stick. Two of his three hits were mighty triples. He drove in two runs, scored one himself and was the instigator of the mad romping of Red Legs around the bases in the fateful fourth.

The Sox were in the fight up to that time, but when he propelled the ball into "no-man's land" in left center and romped around to third while two scored ahead of him, the heart seemed to go out of the American leaguers.

It was a sad day for Eddie Cicotte, leading pitcher of the junior league. Never before was so decisive a beating administered to the Michigan wonder. He was simply pounded out of the box. Five runs were recorded against him in the fourth before Manager Gleason gave him the sign to retire. His teammates gathered round him and patted him encouragingly on the back, but he walked from the diamond with his head hanging.

Roy Wilkinson succeeded him on the mound, while the last inning was pitched by Grover Lowdermilk, but it made little difference to the National league champions. They kept the air fairly clogged with the fugitive hits while the Sox foldiers ran their legs off after their terrific flop.

SANDY DEPARTMENT

MRS. BLANCH SHELLEY, Correspondent.

SANDY, Oct. 2.—Mrs. Myra Revue entertained at dinner Sunday when covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Richie, Mrs. Champlain, Mrs. Courtney, Mrs. Trullinger and Lloyd Richie, all of Portland, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Reed of Sandy.

Carl Powers was the genial dinner host at his home on Westby Ridge last Sunday evening, when he entertained Mr. A. Edwards and son Len, the Misses Margaret Klein, Hazel Bense, Bill and Hall.

Among those from Sandy who attended the road meeting in Oregon City last Wednesday evening were Fred L. Proctor, R. E. Esson, H. B. Reed, R. S. Smith, H. Perret and Paul R. Meling.

Mr. E. Hart, of Dover, delivered four head of young registered Jersey cows to Mr. Lewis Page, of Cathlamet, Wash., last Saturday. Mr. Hart is a most enthusiastic booster for the pure bred Jersey for this section of the country, especially. The state veterinary tested his herd lately and said he had never found a herd with such even or low temperature.

Plans are under way to raise money to build a play shed for the Sandy grade school. This is something that has long been needed here, and we are sure it will receive the financial support of every one in the district. It will take money to build this, and quite a bit of it. Part of it is to be raised by popular subscription, so do your share when the little paper comes your way.

Workmen are busy connecting the two telephone lines and putting them all into one switch board, which will be located in the post office. There will be some changing of numbers, which will take a little time so don't get too impatient at central if you fail to get your party immediately.

The card party given by the Alter society and the Progressive club last Saturday evening in the I. O. O. F. hall was a most enjoyable affair. Progressive pedro was the game, the first prize going to Albert Bell and the consolation to Father Hogan.

J. C. Landree and wife attended the state fair and also visited with Mrs. Landree's parents at Independence.

Mr. H. Mills and son, Alvin, went by auto to Tappan last week, where they are guests of Mrs. Mills' daughter.

Raymond Gray, who was with the famous First Division, arrived home Sunday evening. He has had parades enough to last him for some time.

R. S. Smith and Robt. Alken were state fair visitors last week.

Mac Thomas killed a black yearling bear on the old Revenue place last Sunday.

Otto Aschoff was fortunate enough to bring down two deer the same day, but we have been unable to learn where they were killed.

H. H. Watkins, of Westby Ridge is indisposed.

Mr. and Mrs. Antone Mikkelsen and Miss Edith Polson, of Brightwood Lumber Company were Portland visitors Monday.

Miss Vera Mixer will be pleased to receive pupils for piano lessons.—Adv.

who is operating a wood saw at that place. Ted bought Mr. Snider's saw machinery when the latter moved to his homestead.

Mrs. Badger made a trip to the Gray homestead, where she was given a fine start of raspberry and strawberry plants. Both of these are a proven success. Mr. Gray has a fine pear tree just coming into bearing.

Messrs. Perry, Sloate and son were working improving the road last week.

Mrs. Wm. Lamb has returned to this place accompanied by her little daughter, Lucile, and little son, William Lawrence, also an infant son, Kenneth. The latter was born at Cottage Grove, at the home of his grandparents. Mrs. Lamb was accompanied also by her father, who is completing the barn which Mr. Lamb had started before his death.

D. W. Badger returned to his homestead for a few hours from Liberal, where he is at work.

"Zena, I matched a dress," said 3-year-old Huron Badger the other day. Miss Zena turned just in time to see the bed in flames. She ordered Huron to safety and lifted 16-months-old Alice out of the bed, grabbed a tea kettle and began the fight, at the same time calling for her parents. This is the second time that the prompt action of this eleven-year-old lass has saved her parents from serious loss. Three years ago, while the family lived in Liberal, a spark from the chimney would have taken their home had it not been for the prompt and diligent effort of Miss Zena to bring help.

Roger Lambert from Salem is putting in the crops for Mr. Jones on the Margard place.

A. F. Buche and son, Carl, are working for D. F. Moehke in the saw mill.

Miss Lydia Bergman, who is attending High School in Oregon City, visited her mother Mrs. C. H. Bergman, over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke went ings of last week, and helped the good work of improving the roads of the county. M. C. Young, J. Thornton, Norris Young, Dwight Seely, Jake Peters, H. D. Aden, J. Chalpeky and F. Weidemann.

Elk Prairie

ELK PRAIRIE, Oct. 2.—Chas. Tidd returned to his homestead for a brief visit a few days ago. Mr. Tidd works for the Hawley Pulp Co. at Oregon City.

Mr. Kolshinski was in Scotts Mills a few days ago. Scotts Mills is seven miles from Mr. Kolshinski's homestead and the nearest post office and trading center. He has also improved the last half mile of his road recently. One other trip Mr. Kolshinski made in the interest of his homestead, was to Portland.

Willis Badger has been improving the Elk Prairie Trail.

Jacob Butler, who has worked at the Swoke Saw mill, for the past year, visits Elk Prairie quite frequently. Mr. Butler explains that he is a back-to-nature enthusiast. His head of beautifully kept long hair is often seen bobbing along swiftly, above the ferns, while tracks on nearly every gon City who visited her parents at this place recently.

Miss Swope, mother and sister, Virginia, and brother, called at the Sloate homestead Sunday. There they were joined by Sadie, Mabel and Miss Sloate. The next point of interest was the Joplin home, where they were joined by the two sons of that family. Mrs. Fletcher left her homestead to spend the day with the wanderers. Mrs. Chas. Tidd and son, Vernon, accompanied by the latter's cousin, Lucile Lamb, joined the group and further on Mrs. Battles and her mother, Mrs. Burdett, of Spokane, joined the Badger homestead by storm on their way to picnic near the falls at Falls Creek.

C. K. Thomas has gone to Scotts Mills to work in the prune drying industry which is at its height at that place. Mr. Fletcher and Mr. and Mrs. Snyder are also helping to save that crop.

D. B. Gray has just returned from Portland where he went via Aurora. Mr. Gray went to the home of his brother, George Gray, to see his son, Frank, who is sick there, but was not admitted, lest the rash be spread to others. Frank had gone to the home of his uncle to help harvest peaches. Mr. Gray spent a few days in Portland visiting his other son, Ted,
