

CANBY AND SOUTHERN CLACKAMAS

OPENING DAY AT FAIR HAMPERED BY RAINSTORM

Wednesday was Canby Day at the Clackamas County fair grounds at Canby, and as the weather was threatening few went out from this city, but Canby was well represented.

The concessionaires are looking forward to doing a better business if the weather clears, but with the present weather the visitors are not buying soft drinks or ice cream, but prefer the hot coffee and hot waffles and hamburger. There are numerous concessions on the grounds.

The big pavilion was the principal attraction today, although there were a number who had not completed their booths. But everything will be in readiness for Thursday, which is Oregon City Day. All available space has been taken on the first floor, as well as the second floor. On the main floor there are exhibits of all kinds of farm produce from the various sections of the county, a portion of these being brought back from the state fair held last week in Salem, while a large portion is fresh from the farms and gardens. Some of the finest samples of grains and grasses arranged artistically from a unique background for the agricultural display. The horticultural display has never been more attractive for this year's crop of Clackamas county was something to be proud of.

Oswego and Hazella have made a splendid showing this year. The Oswego Grange, in charge of Mrs. Edythe Tozier Weathered, of Portland, who is a member of the organization, is winning much praise from the fair visitors. Mrs. Weathered, who is an artist, as well as prominent newspaper woman, has displayed her talent in arranging the booth. The color scheme is black and yellow, and with the exhibits ranging all the way from a big juicy pickle to the finest jellies and jams and all kinds of needwork, this exhibit is a strong contender for one of the many prizes offered for grange display. This is the first time that Oswego grange has exhibited at the fair for some time. Mrs. Weathered has already made many friends among the fair visitors. She has been assisted by her brother, Albert Tozier, of Des, Oregon.

The Hazella booth has been one of the main attractions as well, and with its background of grain arranged on a black foundation and fronting along the main aisle are jellies, canned fruit, vegetables and fresh fruits that are truly delicious and show just what the people of that thriving little settlement can do. Much of this exhibit appeared in the state fair exhibit. This was arranged by William Cook, deputy county assessor, and Anton Neilson, two Hazella boosters, who assisted largely in gathering other products for the fair. Dave Long, who is superintendent of the pavilion, has also assisted in getting together the exhibit in this section as well as in the entire pavilion, and he has displayed tact in arranging the same.

The Warner Grange, among the stand-bys of the county fair, is again present with a handsome display covering a big space. The color schemes for the backgrounds are of attractive colors, blending well with the displays. Hogg Brothers, Price Brothers, Carlson & Rosenkrantz have entered for the prize of $20 for the best commercial booth; Mrs. Grant B. Dimick and Miss Nan Cochran have entered for the $20 prize for the most unique booth, this being an Autumn booth. All are of artistic design. Canby has entered a community booth.

Some of the prominent young men of Canby who have recently returned from overseas have arranged a war trophy booth that is a big attraction. Paul Schaubel of Canby is in charge, and three members of the Willamette Falls Post, American Legion, are working in the interest of the organization. These are Arthur McDonald, Arthur Scott and Clyde Green.

The best individual farm exhibit, according to general opinion, is that of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kaupisch, of the Blue Ribbon Farm of Canby. This is a most wonderful display, and everything from a pound of butter and huge vegetables to Chinese pheasants can be seen here. This farm covers two large spaces in the northwest section of the building.

Dr. Roy Prudden, of this city, has a unique display, showing the process of cutting and making of lenses, and others representing their places of business are the Canby Hardware Company, E. Krueger Furniture Company, Portland Flouring Mills and H. J. Bigler. Mr. Bigler has a beautiful floral display in the center aisle, and the floral display where flowers have been entered for prizes is near the east entrance in charge of Mrs. Bertha Hurst.

The second floor is displaying the exhibits in the juvenile department in charge of J. E. Calavan and Brenton Vedder and Miss Snedeker, the latter having charge of the club work and representing the Agricultural College. Here also will be found the needwork and domestic science displays, the former in charge of Mrs. J. L. Waldron and the latter in charge of Mrs. A. H. Knight.

County Agent R. G. Scott and Miss Marj Anthony, home demonstrator, are in charge of a large booth, where demonstrations are being given.

The stock barns are well filled, and never before has there been a finer display of swine and sheep. Among the swine breeders of pure blood stock in this line exhibiting are George Delock, Judge Grant B. Dimick, both of Oregon City, A. D. Gribble, of Canby, and James N. Smith, of Mackburg.

SLIGHT ACCIDENT CAUSE OF SERIOUS INFECTION IN ARM

Mrs. Carl Bethke, prominent resident of Oswego, is in the Oregon City hospital suffering from blood poisoning in her arm, having been taken there for medical treatment on Monday.

Mrs. Bethke accompanied her sister, Mrs. Grant White, of Canby, to the Oregon State fair grounds at the commencement of the state fair, the two women renting a cottage at the fair to spend a week, and making the trip in Mrs. White's automobile. The two women had gone for a drive soon after their arrival, and in alighting from the car, Mrs. Bethke accidentally struck her elbow against the car door. Little was thought of the injury, but the following morning Mrs. Bethke complained of pains in the elbow.

Mrs. White suggested that they return home, but Mrs. Bethke, believing the injury was slight, gave it no further attention. Friday morning her arm was badly swollen and it was found blood poisoning had set in. The return trip was made and Mrs. Bethke taken to her home suffering much agony, and it was necessary to operate on the arm Monday.

Mrs. Bethke's condition at the hospital on Tuesday was reported encouraging and she is now recovering from the effects of the operation.

Joseph Schaubel Home From Service

Joseph G. Schaubel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schaubel, of this city, is the second son of this family to return from France. He arrived here a few days ago, after serving in the United States army since September 23, 1917 and was among the first boys of Clackamas county to answer his country's call.

Schaubel says the only thing he has to regret is that he did not get to the front, being instead stationed in Paris with the Second Provisional Guard Service, when he was relieved there July 30, 1919. He has been engaged in training recruits, when entering the service Schaubel was a member of Company K, Third Oregon, and was transferred to his new duties after arriving over seas.

The young man says although he has traveled far, seen many cities, states and visited many sections in France, there is no place like Oregon for him.

Schaubel made the trip from France to the United States on the U. S. Grant.

Paul Schaubel, brother of Joseph Schaubel, who also enlisted in 1917, recently returned from over seas' service, having been in the aviation service. There were three brothers entering the world war, one other brother a resident of the East.

The Schaubel boys are among the popular boys of Clackamas county entering the service, and their many friends have given them a most cordial welcoming home.

REAL ESTATE BRISK

Canby real estate is still in demand, a number of important land deals having been closed last week, and several others this week by the J. J. Sandness Real Estate Company.

Among those just closed was the purchase by C. M. Schultz farm, on Rock Creek, and by C. F. Wilson, consisting of 81 1/2 acres. The land is two and one-half miles from Aurora on the Butteville road, this being in a most desirable location, as the road will soon be paved passing the property. The price was $12,000 cash, the residence having erected a cost of $7000, and is modern throughout.

Mrs. White receives gift

Mrs. Grant White, bookkeeper for the White Garage, was taken by surprise a few days ago, when her husband presented her with a handsome Ford coupe. It is beautifully upholstered in gray, has a self starter, wire wheels, and is equipped with the new Stueess lights.

Too Lenient

Judges of Portland courts are altogether too lenient in their treatment of self-confessed automobile thieves and unless the strings are pulled tight on these light fingered gentry an indignant public is going to demand justice with a big J.

Thefts of motor cars are becoming so frequent in the metropolis, that it has become unsafe for a car owner to leave an automobile parked during the day or night. Once in a while the thief is caught red-handed, and he appears to be quite willing to serve a jail sentence of a few months, a punishment less severe than that meted out to chicken thieves and chronic vagrants.

Just why the theft of a piece of property valued at upwards of $1000 should appear so trifling to Portland courts is beyond us. The taking of a thousand dollar motor vehicle is just as serious, in our opinion, as the theft of the same amount of money from a bank or a business house. In one case the culprit is let off with a light jail sentence, and in the other he goes to the state penitentiary for a long term.

There are probably around 50,000 motorists who park cars on Portland streets, and they are not going to stand for such free-handed treatment of offenders as seems to be the prevailing custom.

Was it Ex-president Taft who observed that we do not have courts of justice, but that we do have courts of law?

LAST DAY OF QUARTER FOR TAX-PAYMENT IS BUSY ONE FOR CLERKS

Tuesday was a busy day in the tax-paying department of Sheriff Wilson's office, and Collector L. D. Taylor and his deputies, Miss Jessie Paddock and Miss Ona Renner, were kept busy from morning until the closing hours, and found it necessary to work a few hours in the evening.

As Monday is the last day to pay the second half of the taxes, when they become delinquent, many farmers are making trips to this city to pay up, as well as others of the county and different parts of the state who own property in Clackamas county. The first to pay taxes on Tuesday morning was the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company, their secretary, Charles Marshall, coming here to pay the taxes. The second half of the amount was $3,026.39, the first half amounting to $3,027.00. Mr. Marshall proceeded south to pay the remainder of the taxes in different parts of the state as well as California, where the company has holdings. The headquarters of the company is at Tacoma. There were taxes paid on several large estates Tuesday.

The regular meeting of the city council held Wednesday evening was to the greater degree taken up with the routine procedure of attention to the affairs of the city and to the reading of the quarterly report of the City Treasurer.

A communication from the Live Wires, stating that that organization wishes to go on record as unanimously in favor of the appointment of a night patrolman to fill the vacancy recently made in the police force by the city council was read and after being given due consideration was ordered held over until the next meeting of the council for action.

Mayor Holman being absent Councilman J. J. Tobin filled the Mayor's chair for the evening.

NEW ARRIVALS HELD BY SHERIFF CHARGED WITH BAD CHECK DEAL

John R. Jones and wife, who arrived in this city late Tuesday evening and registered at the Electric hotel, were taken into custody by the Portland police Wednesday afternoon on a charge of passing worthless checks and were taken to Portland by a special officer sent from that city on advice from the Sheriff's office here that the pair were being held.

Louis Schumacher, of the Schumacher Fur company of Portland, arrived in Oregon City early Wednesday morning in search of the pair, complaining to the Sheriff's office that Mr. Jones had purchased a fur in his establishment Tuesday, paying for it with a check drawn on a Savings Bank in Vancouver, Wash., in the sum of $55. The check was returned by the bank marked "not sufficient funds."

At about the same time that Mr. Schumacher arrived in this city Mr. George Bannan, proprietor of the Bannan store on Main street, advised the Sheriff's office that Jones had attempted to sell a fur to him for $25, which price appeared so far below the value of the piece that he became suspicious.

Sheriff Wilson immediately located the couple at the Electric hotel and confronted them with Mr. Schumacher. Mr. Jones then declared that he had issued the check on the wrong bank.

Mr. Schumacher returned to Portland without placing any charge against the couple, and Jones notified the Sheriff's office during the afternoon he was going to Portland to square the affair. Sheriff Wilson became suspicious of a getaway when he saw Jones and his wife getting onto the interurban train with suitcases and held them pending developments.

Within a few minutes after taking them in charge Sheriff Wilson was advised by the Portland police department that the pair was wanted there and that a special officer was enroute to this city after them.

Upon the arrival of the Portland officer Jones was confronted with a number of checks which he was supposed to have passed in that city during the past few days, and in the face of indisputable evidence that his identity had been discovered he confessed to having uttered the worthless paper. He maintained that his wife was not implicated in his operations.
