

CAPITAL BLUNDERS

By BERNICE CONE.

Maida Lane, teacher at Primary No. 5, shrugged into her yellow sweater and went out, locking the door of the empty school house after her. She had always loved yellow. It was, she said, the color of spring sunshine and daffodils. Unfortunately it was also the color of a slip of paper that rustled hatefully in the sweater pocket as she walked—a telegram from Phil Drew.

"Due in New York Monday, 10 a. m. Bride with me," it announced cheerfully.

"Bride with me" had resolved itself into a maddening refrain. Everything that she did kept time to it.

The road from the schoolhouse to her home was an unfrequented one. A little way down it stood a great red oak tree. Bob was waiting there as usual. Quite suddenly Maida threw her arms around his neck and surprised herself by sobbing her heart out against his tan coat. "Woo!" said the collie huskily. "Woo!"

"The worst of it is, Bob," said the girl, sitting up at length. "I haven't the right to feel this way, even. Just because you've gone with a fellow all through high school doesn't make you engaged to him. And if he enlists and goes across the water, and you knit for him, and pray for him, and write to him, and he writes to you, and you send him candy and cigarettes and things, and he sends you souvenirs, and—why, you haven't any call to resent it if he gets married, have you? And there's no reason at all why you should get bitter over it."

"And, Bob," continued the dog's mistress earnestly, "if you've so far forgotten your human nature as to be too frankly happy when the letters came and too openly puffed up over the souvenirs, why, then, you must expect Brookville to smile a little, and pry a little, and pity you some when you receive a telegram like this."

"So we'll be awfully nice to Mr. and Mrs. Phil Drew, but not too nice, or Brookville will know how we feel—and that's one thing, Bob: Brookville will guess that we feel badly, but it's never going to know absolutely certain, sure. Come on, boy; let's be happy! Race you!"

With a brave little attempt at laughter from Maida and a joyous bark from Bob they were off.

On Monday afternoon, as the teacher of No. 5 again reached for her yellow sweater, a shadow fell across the schoolhouse floor. She looked up quickly. Phil Drew's six feet filled the door frame. The sunlight back of him gave to his figure the illusion of a statue done in bronze. Maida's heart began to beat a glad welcome that was as quickly drowned in the refrain, "Bride with me."

She held out her hand formally. "Phil Drew!" she exclaimed, with a smile and what she considered the proper amount of polite interest. "I'm so glad to see you back again!"

The bronze statue blinked in amazed chagrin. "Didn't you get my telegram?" it demanded.

"Of course. It was so thoughtful of you to let me know just when you were coming. I want to congratulate you," she continued sweetly. "It will give me a great deal of pleasure to meet Mrs. Drew."

"Huh?" inquired the bronze one, too dazed for elegance of speech.

"I'm looking forward to meeting Mrs. Drew," Maida repeated, slightly puzzled in her turn. "Your—your telegram said—"

"That we were due at ten," interrupted Phil. "I hoped you'd meet me."

"Why—she faltered. "I didn't think you would want me to."

Phil frowned. "Look here, Maida," he protested. "I don't know what you're driving at, but you don't seem overjoyed to see me, that's sure. If there's someone else, why don't you say so, and not—"

"No," said Maida with the tragic finality of eighteen. "There will never be anyone else for me."

Lieutenant Phil Drew seized hungrily upon this assurance, and would have seized hungrily upon Maida, but that lady indignantly pushed him away. Her eyes blazed angrily, but there was a hint of tears in her voice. "I think you're the funny one," she said, thrusting the telegram into his hands. "To send me this, and then come here and pretend—"

"Ha, ha!" vociferated Lieutenant Phil, when he read the message. "That's rich—Bride with— Say, girlie, did you honestly think—why that's Tom Priddle—you know. I wrote you about him, my buddy—he's over at the house now; came home with me—best fellow that ever lived. Just a little mistake in capital, that's all. 'Bride with—' no, sweetheart, I had to come home to get one of those."

CURE FOR SLIPPING CLUTCH

When Fuller's Earth is Not Available Borax May Be Used With Satisfactory Results.

When slipping develops in the clutch of the cone type it is usually caused by oil on the leather facing. The usual method of curing this trouble is to sprinkle fuller's earth on the leather, but if this powder happens not to be available borax may be used with satisfactory results, and in the absence of either the carbide dust or lime residue from an acetylene generator will prove a good enough substitute.

How's This?

Layman 13 Years Ago, Is Now Bishop of Greatest P. E. Diocese in America

Bishop Charles Sumner Burch

Ordained a priest only thirteen years ago, although he is sixty-four years old, Charles Sumner Burch has been elected Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, the wealthiest and most powerful branch of the denomination in America. Before he became a clergyman, Bishop Burch was managing editor of the Evening Press at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Absolutely Versacious. "Maybe says she's twenty-five. Do you believe that?"

"Of course I do, for to my certain knowledge she was that ten years ago."

The Reason. "Why did Maud want to go into the garden, ma?"

"Maybe it was because she thought she would find Sweet William there."

The Difference. "I'm glad I'm not Mrs. Brown's husband. He's always in a pickle."

"I wish I were Mrs. Robinson's husband. He looks so well preserved."

Accounted for. "Why do they always speak of vessels as in the feminine gender?"

"Maybe one reason is that they're generally trimming their sails."

Honestly the Best Policy. "Did you ever buy votes?"

"No," replied Senator Sorghum. "I always thought that an effort to buy a man's vote was as good a reason as you could possibly put into his mind for voting against you."

Unfortified. "That man has a most agreeable personality and a very persuasive address, yet he never seems to get anywhere."

"Yes," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "It's a case of wonderful salesmanship, with nothing to sell."

Explaining It. "I heard Mabel boasting the other day that she had so many social connections."

"So she has. She works in an up town telephone exchange."
