

MILWAUKIE & NORTHERN CLACKAMAS

Milwaukie

MILWAUKIE, Oct. 9.—The School Election was held Monday, Oct. 6th, at the High School and resulted in the Budget carrying by a vote of 17 against 35 in favor.

The Oak Grove-Milwaukie Social Service Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Miller in Oak Grove Oct. 9th. A board meeting will be held at 1:30. A program will be given in the afternoon.

MILWAUKIE HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

A total of ninety two students have thus far enrolled in the Milwaukie High School. An especially large Freshman Class has offset the graduation of a large Senior Class last term. With ninety students and a capable corps of instructors under Professor Wakefield we may well expect a successful year both as to studies and athletics.

Calisthenics now have their place in our school program. Boys exercises are conducted by Professor Wakefield and savor of the military to some extent. The girls are instructed by Miss McInture and are now working on folk dances. A twenty minute period each day is devoted to this purpose.

The football outlook is somewhat dubious; however, the matter is still being agitated and Milwaukie may yet have a team in the field.

With due pomp and grandeur the initiation ceremony took place on Friday, Sept. 12. The freshmen took the prescribed treatment with good grace. Party occurred at the High School Building.

On Friday, Sept. 26, the Freshmen entertained royally the Faculty and Upperclassmen in the High School Building.

Basketball looms on the horizon and as far as can be ascertained Milwaukie has the "makins" of a good team.

DANCING PARTY SUCCESS.

The Riverside club house last Friday was reopened with an informal dancing party given by a group of Portland folk, who motored to Milwaukie for an evening of dancing. This is the first private affair of this kind that has been given in the building, which is particularly adapted for social gatherings, owing to its large pavilion and complete equipment for entertainment.

It is hoped during the coming winter to utilize the club house exclusively for these little parties and attract merry-makers to this vicinity.

A particularly attractive feature of the building is its big fireplace with seats on either side, in the main hall. A table was moved up before the hearth and cake, sandwiches and coffee, piping hot from the big range in the kitchen, were served.

The advantages of the club house are many, for it has both an open-air and an indoor floor for dancing. An orchestra from Portland will probably furnish music for parties given there this winter. There are also conveniences for serving banquets and large dinners.

Friday night's party was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Bert Shearer for Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ogilbee, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shearer, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cole, Mr. and Mrs. George Washburn, Mrs. J. S. McClellan, Mr. Dowling and the Misses Dowling.

PORTLAND, Oct. 7.—"We hope to arouse the American spirit and make it respectable again to be an American."

Such is the primary purpose of the nation-wide speaking campaign that United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, is making against the league of nations, according to the senator in an interview following his arrival in the city today to make three addresses against the league.

Senator Johnson arrived at 7:30 o'clock this morning from San Francisco in a fighting mood, and not the least troubled over the refusal of Mayor Baker to preside at his meeting and Judge C. H. Carey's declaration to serve on his reception committee.

"I am used to that," he said when informed of the incidents. "Why, in California when I was campaigning against the Southern Pacific I always had trouble in getting prominent citizens to introduce me and some of the people used to flee from me on the streets."

Senator Johnson was met by a large crowd of people at the hotel where he was staying. He was then taken to the hotel where he was staying.

HIRAM JOHNSON ARRIVES FOR LEAGUE FIGHT

Satire, ridicule and logic each played an equal part with Hiram Johnson as he flayed the League of Nations before a capacity audience at the Portland auditorium Tuesday night.

Senator Johnson was prompt, arriving at the auditorium two minutes before eight. K. K. Kuhl! presided and the speaker was introduced by Edward Boyce, a well known military man of Portland, who in his introductory remarks made a strong plea for a spirit of fair play in hearing both sides of so important a question as the League of Nations.

Either Senator Johnson, from the reception accorded him, has many admirers in Portland or the League has many opponents. The applause that greeted his arrival lasted nearly three minutes and was general throughout the house. While the audience which greeted President Wilson was about equally divided between men and women, the audience to hear Senator Johnson was by the greater majority composed of men.

The Senator paid his respects to the newspapers in no uncertain language, and declared that only by a personal appeal could the real danger of the league of nations be pointed out. He strongly resented being called a pro-German because of his attitude, and insisted that if it was necessary to spend seven months in Europe in secret conferences, three months for open discussion was not too long a period. That in the beginning of the discussion many men of highest minds did not dare to express themselves regarding the league. That it was a matter to be given serious consideration, when we consider that which the treaty states the league guarantees. The speaker said President Wilson had gone to Europe with high ideals and lofty ambitions which he had surrendered, and we were now holding an inquest over a dead hope. He quoted Secretary Lansing as being against the section of the treaty as relating to Shantung, declaring that Secretary Lansing has never denied the published statement of his position on that portion of the treaty in which he stated that if the American people could understand that section they would reject it.

England, Italy and Japan sent their greatest diplomats to the peace conference, and while President Wilson had the best intentions, he should have remembered that there is another place said to be paved with good intentions.

In an impassioned manner the speaker declared: "If we place ourselves in favor of the league all the graves in France will have been in vain." He denied the statement that Great Britain has only one vote in the council, although six in the assembly, and read a letter signed by Clemenceau, Lloyd George and President Wilson to Premier Borden of Canada, in which the right to a vote in both council and assembly is conceded Canada and other colonies.

The league of nations does not provide for disarmament but on the other hand the military department has a program mapped out calling for a standing army of 576,000 men, and conscription at the age of nineteen years.

Senator Johnson did not once touch upon political issues, declaring this was a fight for pro-Americanism and as such enlisted men of every political belief, in order that a repetition of the horrors of the past years of bloodshed be not repeated.

SIDELIGHTS FROM THE COUNTY FAIR

"Labash Springs Orion," a Duroc Jersey swine, farrowed March 10, 1917, was the winner of the first place in his class at the Clackamas county fair. This animal, owned by Judge Grant B. Dimick, which tips the scale at about 650 pounds, won over the Duroc Jersey that won first place at the Oregon State Fair this year. He won much attention while at the fair, and stockmen pronounced him one of the finest animals in his class. He may be entered at the coming Pacific International Livestock Show to be held in Portland in December.

Mrs. C. H. Sheldon, of Canby, made eight entries in the domestic science and textile department, and won either first or second on all. She received five first prizes and three second, and received the special prize of $5 on collection of canned fruit. This fruit had been prepared by Mrs. Sheldon for the family use and not intended for exhibition. Several of her friends persuaded her to enter the fruit to assist the domestic science department in having a good showing, and she was a most surprised woman when presented with the special prize. Her fruit attracted much attention.

In the poultry department H. Ringhouse won many of the prizes on his White Wyandottes.

Mrs. C. Marra, of Mount Pleasant, having Dominiques exhibited in the poultry department, won all awards on this line.

G. W. Speight, prominent farmer of the Hubbard section, exhibited some of his famous Black Minorcas, winning first and second prizes on the same. He also won the awards on Anconas.

During the county fair the large blue ribbon received by Clackamas county at the Oregon State Fair was taken from the booth of the county agent, R. G. Scott. This ribbon was highly prized by William Cook and Dave Long, who worked so diligently in arranging the exhibits, and they desire to have the ribbon returned to them or left at the Cottage hotel, at Canby, and no questions will be asked. It is thought by several that probably the ribbon was taken by children not knowing the value of the same, and if any of the parents find the ribbon they will be doing a great favor by returning the ribbon to the above.

The exhibit of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kaupisch of Canby was among the most attractive in the big pavilion. In this display were some Bob Whites and a Golden Pheasant, "Fritz." The Bob White birds were from eggs deserted by the mother. Mr. Kaupisch found the nest, and placing them beneath an old hen that was setting was somewhat surprised to find the eggs hatched the following morning. There were
