SUBMARINE HERO AT WASHINGTON

Clark Hughes Has Varied Experience Under U. S. Naval Colors

Clark Hughes, who has been in the United States navy, arriving at the Dardanelles about September 30, 1918, and who was there fighting submarines until the armistice was signed, was transferred to Port au Prince November 26. He is now at Washington, D. C., and writes two interesting letters to his family in Oregon.

Dear Brother: Well, we left Haiti and its negroes Sept. 13th and thank God for that. Arrived in Cuba the 14th. From here we go to Key West, Wilmington, Charleston, Norfolk and up the Potomac river to Washington, D. C.

The S. C. 212 is going out of commission. That means we will be released "too sweet." That's French for "right away."

At Port-Au-Prince we received our orders in the morning of the 13th, about 9 o'clock, and at 4 o'clock we cast our lines off the old dock for the last time in that place.

We laid over a day here to put in a new manifold on the port motor. She leaks a little but we came over hitting on all six three motors, about 16 knots.

Boy, just wait until I hit Washington, D. C. Won't I take on a flock of ice cream that would knock any ordinary guy dead? Indeed I will, and you may "lay to that."

Our mail was stopped about three weeks ago, so I haven't heard from anyone lately.

Well, we get under way at 4:00 a. m. and I take the wheel for 1 hour and 20 minutes for a sea-going trip.

You will get this letter about the time I reach Washington, D. C. Mail goes out of here every day.

Must get some hay now and be ready for the sea early, so will write you again later.

BUD.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1, 1919.
Dear Ed: Arrived at Washington, D. C., 25th. The next morning we received mail, something we have not had for some time. I received your last letter, I believe.

We left Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, Sept. 13th, stopped at Cuba, Miami, Fla., Charleston, S. C., Norfolk, Va., and then up the beautiful Potomac river to the Capital.

At Miami, Fla., we were held up for three days with engine trouble. The manifold leaked in the starboard motor.

Did you ever put in a manifold? If not, I'm telling you that is one hell-of-a-job.

I helped the black gang, machinists, and lost about ten pounds down in that engine room, but it was interesting, and then we wanted to go to Washington, P. D. Q., so we worked like the devil and got her all coupled up just in time to shove off at the appointed time, 1 a. m. one morning.

The trip was good all the way but coming around Cape Mayle, Cuba and Cape Hatteras, N. C., it kicked up slightly.

In the gulf stream we made 20 knots. The stream is a 4-knot current and it boosted us right along.

You heard about the big hurricane at Key West? Well, we just missed it and while we were coming up that way we received several S. O. S.'s from boats hit by the hurricane.

The trip up the Potomac was a peach—first time on fresh water for a year.

Well, I can't begin to tell you how wonderful Washington is and how glad I was to get here.

It is just twice as wonderful to me than it really is, I guess. After spending seven months in Haiti, with negroes and filth, Washington is delicious.

I've been ashore twice, but it was at night, so we didn't get to dash around much and see the many things that there are to see.

The first night ashore I had the shower bath of my life at the Y. M. C.

CLARK HUGHES
Who Has Seen Service With the United States Navy in Many Waters

A—some place, too. They have about a million showers, hot and cold, in that building, and oh, boy, how great they are to a fellow.

We are putting the old ship out of commission; started the next day after we arrived here. Starting today we go ashore to the seaman gunner barracks for our meals and just sleep aboard the ship while we put it out of commission.

We are taking inventory of all the stock aboard ship and transferring some of it off to the warehouses. I think in a very short time we will be transferred to the barracks for good and be standing by for a discharge. Within a week or so we will be released; perhaps two weeks, though it is uncertain, but our hopes are high.

I'm busy taking inventory of our listening devices aboard ship. We work all day, then at 4:30 go on liberty, but I think in the next few days we will have the work finished and we will go ashore in the afternoons.

I would like very much to go down to Mount Vernon and will, I guess, when we have our work finished.

The weather here is foggy and quite chilly in the night, something different from Haiti. I sleep like a log.

Well, I will stop off at your wonderful city if it is possible, which I think is very likely. I'll do my best.

Some prices they have in the U. S., eh? Would like to have seen the Round-Up.

RESOLUTIONS DRAWN BY POMONA GRANGE OPPOSE ROAD BONDS

The following resolutions were adopted by the Clackamas County Pomona Grange at its first fall meeting in conjunction with the Abernethy Grange at the latter's hall in Park-place Wednesday:

Whereas, The Grange was the first organization in the state to favor good roads and has consistently advocated their construction as rapidly as practicable under the pay as you go system, and

Whereas, A strong sentiment has developed in Clackamas county in favor of an extensive program for paving certain of the principal roads of the county, and

Resolved, by Clackamas County Pomona Grange that we oppose the bond issue for a bond issue of $1,700,000 for that purpose; therefore,

Resolved, by Clackamas County Pomona Grange that we oppose the bond issue for the following reasons:

Under the bonding system public improvements usually cost 50 to 100 per cent more than under a direct tax, for the reason that large sums expended in haste breed waste and extravagance, especially when pay day seems a long way off.

The interest bill must be added to the first cost.

Under the bonding system a mile of paving will cost, say $12,000, plus interest at $8000, making a total cost per mile for the pavement at $20,000.

Under the bonding system we will spend our money now while labor is scarce and materials are high.

Wheat is now $2 per bushel and common labor $4 per day. We would bond the county and do the work on that basis and likely pay for it in normal times with wheat at $1 per bushel and wages at $2 per day, requiring twice the labor and material to pay the bonds when they come due.

Measured in days' labor and farm products in normal times, under the bonding plan it will cost $40,000 per mile for paving as compared with $8,000 to $12,000 per mile under the tax system, under which the improvements are made at actual going cost of labor and materials.

Resolved further, That we favor the paving program and road improvement substantially as outlined by the committee from different sections of the county, but we favor that the funds be provided by a tax levy on all the property of the county, which shall be sufficient to carry on the work as rapidly as labor conditions and cost of materials will justify in the opinion of the county court; and

Further resolved, That a committee of five be appointed by this Pomona Grange with instructions to prepare petitions and see that they are circulated to place a proposition of a 5 mill tax running for a period of 10 years on the ballot at the special election, thus giving the taxpayers an opportunity of choosing between the bonding system and the direct tax plan of financing the proposed road improvements.

RACING EVENTS AT VANCOUVER MEET ARE EXCITING TO MANY

The Friday racing program of the Clackamas County Racing association being held at Vancouver, Wash., resulted in a number of very closely contested races on Friday, which were witnessed by a large and enthusiastic gathering of racing fans.

The results of the races, which are being run off under the supervision of Ed. Fortune of this city, are given as follows:

Race No. 1: Free-for-all trot: three heats, won by Perriot, time 2:21½, 2:26 and 2:22. Race No. 2: 2:15 Pace, three heats, won by Royal Express, time, 2:22½, 2:22½, 2:24½. Race No. 3, Half-mile run: won by Bully Mayo, time :56½. Race No. 4, Three-quarter mile run, one heat: won by Orientaticus, time 1:18.

In the sixth race, for automobiles, the track dopesters had their forecasts of the winner all upset when the four-passenger stock touring car Essex entered by the C. L. Ross Auto company romped home ahead of a field of fast racing machines. The race was for five miles and while the time for the distance was not clocked it is reported that it was unusually fast and furnished a great many thrills for the assembled spectators.

PORTLAND UNIONS DO NOT STRIKE FOR TOM MOONEY'S RELEASE

PORTLAND, Oct. 9.—Not a single laborite in Portland joined Wednesday in the proposed nation-wide strike in protest against imprisonment of Tom Mooney, of San Francisco, alleged bomb thrower.

According to representatives of the Building Trades Council and also of the Metal Trades council, the stand of the Central Labor council against the protest strike has been absolutely successful.

A vote of the Metal Trades council last week showed 14 votes in favor of striking and 51 against.

Highway Routes

Study of the road map of Clackamas is sufficient to convince the fair-minded citizen that the committee has used equitable judgment in the distribution of the road mileage proposed under the $1,700,000 bond issue. The county is large, with a total of 1300 miles of road and it is not within the scope of human endeavor to map out a program that will be altogether satisfactory to everybody. Recognizing this fact, the committee has undertaken to make a fair distribution, having in mind the centers of population and trade areas, and we predict that there will be little opposition to the bond plan based upon an attitude of selfishness as to location of roads.

There is bound to be an honest difference of opinion as to routes, and for that reason the committee has provided a saving clause, permitting the county court to make slight changes in location, depending upon grades and cost of construction. This provision is necessary, and gives to the engineering department proper authority, which should, of course, be used with the utmost discretion, having in mind solely the interests of the taxpayers whose money is to be used.

The program is an ambitious one. Clackamas is one of three counties in Oregon that has not demanded a larger program of road building, though there is no county in Oregon where the needs are greater. The farmers, themselves, have at least reached the conclusion that they want the permanent road now, and it is the farmer, and not the city dweller, who is primarily interested in the success of the plan proposed.

Approximately 3300 men, of whom 3000 are in the steel yard, returned to work under the wage agreement whereby an 8 cents an hour increase was granted and a 44 hour week established.

CLACKAMAS BRIDGE OPENED TO TRAFFIC; MOTORISTS PROTEST

The Clackamas river bridge at Park-place was reopened to traffic Saturday afternoon, bringing relief to hundreds of motorists who have been forced since Friday to drive up the river to the Baker's bridge at Stone. Local officials have come in for no little criticism for not posting warning signs that the structure was closed, and as it has been necessary to close the bridge to traffic twice within the last three weeks, there is a rapidly growing sentiment for the construction of a larger and more permanent structure, and the revival of the agitation for a bridge near the mouth of the Clackamas is probable.

OREGON CITY TAKES HILLSBORO GAME BY SCORE OF 13 TO 9

By a score of 13 to 9, Oregon City high won its first football game of the 1919 season at Hillsboro Saturday afternoon. The boys from the Falls city swept their opponents off their feet in the first half, scoring two touchdowns, but negotiating only one of the goals. In the second half, Hillsboro came back strong, but was held to a touchdown and a drop kick. The Oregon City line held bravely, though outweighted and McDonald and Davis starred in the backfield.

In the third quarter Califf at end was taken out with a badly sprained back, and Kellogg took his position. Beattie substituted for Dambach in the last half in the backfield.

Captain Gordon Wilson is well satisfied with the initial effort of his team and expects to schedule a game next Friday on Canemah field with the Canby high school. Ernest Mass, Jr., was referee of the game at Hillsboro.

FORMER OREGON CITY ATHLETIC DIRECTOR IS NAMED TO GOOD PLACE

A. M. Grilley, for many years physical director of the Portland Y. M. C. A., and during the war general secretary at Camp Lewis, with a staff of 80 men, has been named as executive secretary of the local association. Tom Gawley succeeds him as men's physical activities chief, and Harry T. Smith is to have charge of the boys' physical work. The change is effective at once. The departments of the "Y" have become so diversified and details so numerous that it became necessary to have some one on the staff to look after affairs, hence Mr. Grilley's appointment.

Mr. Grilley will be remembered by a great many residents of this city as having at one time had charge of the Y. M. C. A. organization here.

Rough Trip Made By Boy Scouts Troop Saturday

Boy Scouts Troop No. 3, with Scoutmaster Graydon Pace in command of the troop, enjoyed a hike into the Newell Creek country Saturday evening. After reaching their destination camp was pitched for the time being, and where a supper of waffles and eggs were feasted upon. Later in the evening marshmallows were toasted.

Among the boys in the party were Charles Chandler, Quenton Cox, Orville Cox, Frank Cox, Billy Osborn and Kenneth Loge.
