O. A. C. IS HUMBLER BY STANFORD TEAM WITH 14-0 SCORE

CORVALLIS, Oct. 25.—Leland Stanford, Jr., university football players invaded Oregon and went home. Coach Evans' fighters sprung one of the biggest surprises in the history of football when they licked the Oregon Agricultural college aggregation this afternoon. Final score, Stanford, 14; Oregon Aggies, 0.

Stanford's fight and Templeton's kicking won for the Californians. Aggie's fumbling, drawing of penalties and the lack of that something called "punch" which goes with a winning crowd cost Coach Hargis a victory.

Oregon Agricultural college scored its lone touchdown in the first 10 minutes of play. After placing the ball on the Stanford 12-yard line by simply promenading through the cardinal line, a forward pass. Schroeder to Hubbard, turned the trick. Schroeder missed kicking goal from a slight angle.

JOHNSON LOSES HIS AMENDMENT IN PEACE TREATY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—By a vote of 38 to 40 the senate today defeated the Johnson amendment to the peace treaty to equalize voting strength within the league of nations.

The vote came unexpectedly at the request of Senator Lodge after Senator Hitchcock, administration leader, announced he would ask for unanimous consent to vote at 1:30 p. m.

"I see no reason why we cannot have a vote right now," Lodge declared, and the roll was called without further delay.

Republicans voting against the amendment were: Cote, Edge, Kellogg, Keyes, McCumber, McNary, Nelson, Sterling.

EX-NAVY MAN HERE
Reginald Hall, one of the boys of Clackamas county entering the naval service in 1917, and who has made 13 trips to France, was in Oregon City Monday, being accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Nettie Hall, formerly of Oregon City. His return at this time was a surprise to his mother and other relatives.

Reginald says there is no place like old Oregon, and especially this section of the country. While in the service, he was on the Finland, Baltimore and Karsage. He says he was on the boat that took the American troops to France.

Mrs. Hall and son were on their way to Molalla, where they are to spend several days visiting at the home of Mrs. Hall's daughter, Mrs. Goldie Bowman, of Molalla.

LEGION WARNED TO STAY CLEAR OF CLASS WAR

Hands off in matters pertaining to class differences.

That is the warning sent out to Willamette Post, American Legion, by William B. Follett, state chairman of the legion at Portland.

The communication, addressed to Philip Hammond, president of the local post, says in part:

"The action of the Live Wires of Oregon City referring labor troubles in the mills in your city to the American Legion has come to my attention. 'While I am certain you will not mix your post in any controversy of a class nature, I am taking the liberty of addressing this letter to you as the state chairman to warn you that the suspicious attitude taken by labor to the American Legion makes it necessary that no class draw the legion into matters that in any way will look as though we were taking sides either with or against any class. In other words, let us wait until the legion or the American government is attacked.'

It appears the state secretary based his information upon a report published in one of the Portland newspapers, nothing official regarding the referring of labor troubles in Oregon City to the legion has been given out, and, according to a member of the Live Wires, such a step was not even contemplated. It was apparently a confusion of facts in the newspaper report. In bringing the letter of the state secretary before the meeting of the local post last night, Mr. Hammond made it plain that the communication was simply intended as a warning, due to the fact that no official request was forwarded from the Live Wires for the legion to attempt the adjustment of class differences here.

At the meeting the post voted to instruct the delegates to the national convention of the American Legion, which will be held in Minneapolis on November 10, 11 and 12, to support the following measures:
Additional bonuses for ex-service men; universal military training in connection with educational institutions; small standing army; preference to service men in acquiring public lands and financial aid in the form of long term notes; requiring immigrants to make application for citizenship within limited time; deportations of all anti-government aliens; parallel paragraphs in English in all newspapers printed in foreign languages; amendment of war risk insurance so that beneficiary can receive lump sum.

At the meeting 72 new members were taken into the organization. This brings the membership up to over 200.

During the evening, Mr. Wittman, district manager for the Red Cross, spoke on the annual roll call of the organization. A committee of five was appointed to cooperate in the drive for funds to be launched by the Red Cross.

The following resolution thanking those who contributed toward the purchase of a flag for the American Legion here was passed:

"Be it resolved by the Willamette Falls Post No. 5 of the American Legion that a vote of thanks be extended to the committee and the citizens of Oregon City who so graciously donated to said post a beautiful American flag of recent date, that the secretary be instructed to express the appreciation of said post for the beautiful gift and that this resolution be published in the Oregon City Enterprise and the Banner-Courier newspapers published in Oregon City, and the same be spread upon the minute book of this post."

ALEX TRAMBITAS IS VICTOR OVER RIVERS IN FURIOUS FIGHT

PORTLAND, Oct. 23.—Alex Trambitas not only stayed for 10 rounds against Joe Rivers last night, but the local lad gave such a good account of himself that Referee Jack Day gave him the decision at the end of the bout. Trambitas forced the fight, and in the sixth round had things his own way, opening up a cut over Rivers' left eye with a hard right. Rivers brought blood from Alex's nose in the eighth and in the last round, with both boys going strong. Rivers went to the mat. His seconds claimed an accidental fall, but the referee held for Alex.

The preliminaries were exceptional and the crowd that picked in like sardines was well satisfied with the contest.

BREAD NOT TO INCREASE

Housewives here are happy over the announcement made by the local bakeries that the price of bread will not be increased one cent per loaf, as has been done by the Portland establishments. It was stated by a bakery here that the cost of bread will remain the same, namely 10 cents per loaf, until the cost of flour is increased 25 per cent.

State and Federal Aid

Clackamas is one of five counties in Oregon that has not as yet voted bonds for roads, the others being Josephine, Lane, Wasco and Washington. Yet since 1914 Clackamas received nearly a half million dollars from state and federal aid on its highways, including roads now under contract to be completed this year and next. The state highway commission has also loaned this county $125,000, according to a tabulation compiled from the records of the commission.

The state highway commission is now ready to match a county appropriation of $150,000 with a like sum for the construction of a modern reinforced concrete bridge across the Willamette river at Oregon City, and we have no complaint to make at the treatment received at the hands of the commission. It is true that the location of the Pacific Highway has had much to do with the expenditure through this county, and much of this road is of costly construction.

Aside from the state and county funds to be expended upon market roads to be designated, Clackamas has reached a point where the highway commission is likely to call a halt upon further expenditures. Other counties are clamoring for money, and when the Pacific Highway is finished the commission is likely to turn its attention to other main trunk roads in other sections of the state.

It is time, therefore, to turn to our own resources, and raise by taxation on our own property sufficient funds to hard surface our roads into the interior of the county. Farmers, especially, are clamoring for permanent roads, and they should have them, but in order to get them, they must support such a program that is now before them for endorsement.

BOLSHEVIKI ARMIES NOW MENACE LINES GENERAL YUDENITCH

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The changes of General Yudenitch, commander of the Russian northwestern army, to capture Petrograd before winter puts an end to operations seems again to be fading. The bolsheviks have brought strong reinforcements from other fronts and have started a successful counter-offensive, which has already resulted in the recapture of Krasnoye Selo threatening the Yudenitch line south of that place.

Yudenitch still holds Gatchint firmly, according to the British war office review.

Despite two attempts by Mr. Wilson to save from dissolution the gathering, tonight's adjournment brought to a formal close the conference called by the executive to find some common ground of cooperation between labor and capital on the outcome of which were held in abeyance strikes affecting the entire industrial life of the nation.

ACTION OF COAL MINERS AWAITED AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—President Wilson and the cabinet are still hopeful that the United Mine Workers of America will heed their appeal to substitute reason for force in the coal crisis, but they are not permitting any grass to grow under their feet in preparing to meet force with force if that shall be the defiant choice of the workers.

Although the government is not disclosing any details of its plan to use every means to meet any emergency that may arise as a result of the strike of bituminous miners scheduled for November 1, it may be said that complete details of procedure have been perfected.

14 PERISH WHEN SHIP IS DASHED UPON PIER

MUSKEGON, Mich., Oct. 28.—With 14 known dead and six or more missing, only time can bring an accurate count of the toll of the great seas which early this morning bodily lifted the Crosby passenger steamer Muskegon, formerly the City of Holland, and smashed her to pieces on the pier at the entrance to Muskegon.

The steamer, a sidewheeler, bound from Milwaukee, after out-riding night gale, made for the harbor in the early morning darkness but is said by Captain Miller to have struck the bar at the entrance. The wheel paddles jammed in the sand, checking headway and the great combers threw the ship about and hurled her to the pier.

There she hung, momentarily, pounding into wreckage and then slipped off into the deep channel, going down in 50 feet of water. The vessel lies a storm-torn tangle of steel and splintered wood, effectually blocking the harbor entrance.

Fifty of the 72 passengers and crew, guided to safety by a single flashlight in the hands of a coast guard, were tonight known to have been saved. It was feared several were caught between decks. Survivors, most of whom escaped only in their night clothing, were being cared for by the Red Cross, while in the city morgue lies the bodies recovered.

BOND ISSUE PLAN WILL BE PUSHED FOR COUNTY

With the date of the special election to vote on the issue of $1,700,000 for permanent road improvement in Clackamas county definitely determined, the campaign for the plan will soon be under full headway, according to M. D. Latourette, chairman of the general committee. Three men in each school district have been named as a campaign committee, and it is likely that a meeting of these committeemen will be called in Oregon City in the near future to arrange for a concerted campaign.

Meetings will be held in every section, but it will be pointed out that the bond issue is a matter in which the farmers are directly interested, and that Oregon City has done its part in placing the matter before the people. The sentiment of the people of the county may be indicated by the fact that more than 1400 names have been obtained in the county on the road bond petitions, which were not generally circulated in Oregon City. It is believed, therefore, that the attempt that is being made by Charles E. Spence, master of the state grange, to prejudice the people of the people of the county against the bond issue on the theory that the lawyers and professional men of Oregon City are behind it will fall flat, for leading farmers in nearly every section of the county are enthusiastic for the bonding plan.

The grange, however, is lined up fairly well against it, and resolutions have already been adopted in opposition by the granges of Oswego and New Era, as well as Pomona grange. Mr. Spence, at a meeting in Stafford Saturday night, criticized the bond plan, as he has always been consistent in his opposition to issuing bonds for road construction, being an advocate of the pay-as-you-go system. He has expressed his intention of submitting a millage tax scheme as an alternative, but it is generally believed that the time is too short to permit of such a measure being submitted at the special election called for November 24.

The following resolution is in opposition to the bonds was adopted by Warner grange at its last meeting on Saturday. The resolution condemns the calling of a special election, though the election was not called until two days after its passage:

Whereas, there is to be submitted at a special election soon to be called in Clackamas county, two propositions for the permanent improvement of certain roads and bridges of said county, one the bonding proposition, involving the sum of $1,700,000; and the other the millage tax, embracing practically the same roads and bridges and the same amount of money; therefore, be it

Resolved that we members of Warner grange assembled this 25th day of October, 1919, condemn the action of calling the special election when a general election is so close at hand; and be it further

Resolved that we are opposed to the principle of the proposed bond issue for the building of roads; and be it further

Resolved that we heartily endorse the proposed millage tax as being the most feasible of the two propositions, and that we urge the voters of Clackamas county to support the same.

Cleaning 'Em Up

Clackamas county is becoming a mighty unhealthy place for manufacturers of moonshine booze. Hardly a week passes without the detection and confiscation of a plant and the arrest of the operators who seek to get rich quick at the risk of a heavy fine and a long sentence behind the bars. That the illegal business, if it succeeds in getting past the vigilant eyes of the officers, is profitable there can be no doubt. Whiskey is reported to be selling from $12 to $16 per quart and not always obtainable at that price. It is common for the offenders to have high-priced motor cars and other evidences of prosperity.

Law breakers have probably picked upon Clackamas county as field for operations because of its accessibility to Portland, where the market for the stuff is said to be good, with the short transportation haul in mind. The extent of their operations is noted in the statement that 450 gallons of mash was found Friday night, and several hundred gallons of wine the week before.

Sheriff Wilson and his aides have had many sleepless nights because of these illicit manufacturers, but a few more captures will probably eliminate the business altogether, so far as this county is concerned.
