THE GOVERNMENT'S DUTY

The dear public is long suffering. Its purse, grown slim and tight with flour at $6.00 a hundred and butter at $1.10 a roll, not to mention the price of potatoes, has been drained of its last vestige of wealth by the wily food speculator, America's cardinal criminal. The long suffering public has borne with the patience of a true sufferer this unbelievable tyranny. A conditions of affairs unimaginable in the "land of the free and the home of the brave."

In vain has public sentiment, public suffering, in fact, called upon the "government of the people, by the people and for the people" to rescue it from the octopus clutch of the food speculator, and still it wiggles and gasps in the slimy tentacles of the monster. Yet faith in the government abides. The government has promised relief, we say, surely the government will provide for us in keeping with its promise. Faint hope, you have warmed many a worn breast, will you not lend your succoring comfort to your chosen people?

For years the people have exemplified through their suffering, and in lean years through their actual want, a wondrous faith in the eternal goodness of their government. The Courier would address to that government, that high and mighty Washington that we sometimes hold in awe for its splendor, a most respectful yet urgent demand for the vindication of the faith that the people have put in it. We believe, we hope, that the passage of the food bill will bring forth from the seats of the great in Washington, from the house and the senate alike, some concerted, definite action toward a much-needed and over-due reduction in food prices.

Whatever is done, dear congress, must be done immediately. Our crops are not over-abundant and our appetites are as expensive as they were in the dear old days. Take us back to those days of normal in the cost of living, oh mighty Washington, and forever will we be thy humble and adoring servants in the "land of the free and the home of the brave," where "government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

OPENING OF SCHOOL

Few, except the boys and girls, realize what an important occasion is the opening of school. And probably the children would prefer to have us call it a serious rather than an important occasion.

In fact it is both of these—serious to the children because it takes them away from the great outdoors where they have been having so much fun during vacation and important because it means greater success for them in future life.

Few of us realize how vitally necessary to the upbuilding of our community is the work being done in the schools. Into the pupils is being drilled the lessons of life, of better citizenship, making them better qualified to take their position at the head of affairs in the community, to make it more prosperous as they take up the reins of business and government.

If we realized that the future of the town is in the hands of the teachers and the boys and girls going to school, probably we would take a greater interest in their progress. Let's make up our mind that during the coming term we will not lose an opportunity to encourage the boys and girls and their teachers and show them how we appreciate the importance of their work.

Silly sisters of suffrage would not be such a bad name for the Washington pickets.

"Man is Unconquerable," says an article. We'll give you two guesses: was it on the sporting page or the woman's page?

If it did nothing more than teach

Young America a sense of his responsibility the war would be a great thing for the country.

It is a great old world at that. A woman who steals bread for her family is a sneak thief. The woman who pilfers a $300 fur coat is a kleptomaniac.

Every time we read the proceedings of the house and senate we realize that some of the kaiser's best fighters are not on the other side of the Atlantic.

"Have you got an extra paper," said the grocer as he walked into the newspaper office.

"Have you an extra pound of sugar?" asked the editor.

Think it over.

There are a lot of people who think unprintable things of Senators LaFollette, Gore and Thomas, who will see some justice in their proposal that war profits and big incomes be utilized as the principal sources of taxation in providing funds for the war.

Even in Clackamas county there is a movement to replace the men who go to war with patriotic women. Women will take the jobs of the men. A friend with a sour stomach rises to ask if the women will get man's wages. As to that, we'll leave the matter entirely to the men. Any married man will tell you whether the woman gets man's wages.

Advertising is a commodity. If the government needs advertising to sell bonds or accomplish other work it should pay for this commodity just as it pays for steel necessary for its ships and armaments. The wealthiest nation in the world has no more right to expect the newspapers to give it this commodity than it has to ask the steel corporation to give it steel for nothing.

About the State

Resume of the News of the Week from All Parts of Oregon

Attorney C. L. Starr last week turned over a check for $60,000 to Coos county for taxes of 1913 and 1914, delinquent on the Boutin property near Beaver Hill. The payment included $19,000 for penalties and interest. Several logging camps are operating in the timber lands and furnishing spruce for the Coquille river mills.

A delegation of Sheridan business men went to Salem last week to appear before the state highway commissioner in a protestation from Sheridan residents against the slow work being done on the state highway passing out of Sheridan on the Portland-Tillamook highway. It is alleged that the work has prevented the trade of a rich territory coming to Sheridan and has isolated the town from the business that rightfully comes to it from the east side of the valley. It is feared that the fall rain threatening will hold up the work and further isolate the town for the winter, since the road under the present circumstances is impassable.

A sugar beet weighing 12 pounds is on display at a Corvallis store to prove to passersby that the Corvallis farmer is on the job, and going some, although an amateur at sugar beet culture. The big beet was grown by Charles Johnson and Jasper Frogge at the Pierce ranch, one and three-quarters miles north of town, and is a fair sample of their first crop.

With the understanding that the two Pendleton military organizations are to keep their separate identity, but each will become a platoon of home guard company to be formed here, steps were taken at a meeting last week to ascertain what measures will be necessary to secure some of the rifles that have been assigned to the home guard companies of Oregon.

Virtually unanimous sentiment in favor of the water grade route for the Pacific highway between Salem and Jefferson was expressed at a heavily attended meeting at Turner last week at which delegates from Aumsville, Stayton, Marion and Turner were present. Committees will urge the state highway commission to choose this route.

A requisition was issued last week by County Judge Marsters of Douglas county, to the Riddle hardware merchants, for a tractor engine which will be placed in the Riddle district to facilitate the handling of road work in that section of the county. One of these machines has been in this section the last few days and practical demonstrations made by the company's representative. That the new acquisition to the county's road building equipment will prove a very economical one is assured. It is a gasoline tractor of the caterpillar type, four cylinders and geared to the ground, has sufficient pulling capacity to draw two 14-inch plows and in ordinary free soil will plow an acre an hour, at the depth of 10 inches.

First steps toward securing a survey of the Cornucopia and Unity post roads were taken by Baker county commissioners last week, when they met with representatives of the commercial club and signed a petition to the state highway commission to start the work this fall. Baker county will furnish $10,000 toward building the Cornucopia road and $4000 for the Unity road next spring.

To aid the department of agriculture in redistribution of live stock to prevent breeding stock to be sold for slaughter, John Day forest officials are taking a census of breeding stock that will be sold for slaughter. It is the plan of the department to co-operate with stockmen in distributing this surplus breeding stock to other feeding centers so that it will not have to go to the killing pens.

Cougars are believed to have killed two fire fighters in Columbia county, returning fire fighters said. Shreds of clothing and buttons from the clothes of the missing men were found. William Finley, game authority, said there was one chance in a thousand that cougars attacked the men. He suggested that fire crazed the animals.

An enthusiastic meeting was held at Turner last week when representatives from Turner, Aumsville, Stayton, Marion and other points met to organize to get the Pacific highway routed over the Turner-Marion road. A committee was appointed to meet with the state highway commission, presenting its plans and reasons why the road should run through that section of country.

A service flag with four stars, hanging in the window of Mrs. L. M. Russell, at Hope Garden, Troutdale, Ore., shows that three of her sons and the husband of her only daughter are now wearing their country's uniform.

The prune season at Milton will close within a week or 10 days, after a splendid harvest, with excellent prices for the grower. Until last week 106 cars of prunes had been shipped from Milton packing houses. This, however, includes only the Denby company, the Lamb company and the Valley company. No report was obtained from the Milton Fruit Growers' union.

Attorney General G. M. Brown received notice last week that Circuit Judge D. V. Kuykendall of Klamath Falls had decided in favor of the state in the last of seven cases against F. A. Hyde and his associates to recover school lands which the state claimed were acquired fraudulently. The seven cases involved approximately 40,000 acres. All but one were decided in favor of the state. The case in Klamath county involved 5920 acres. Judge Kuykendall held that all but 280 acres were acquired fraudulently.

A gopher, by its ambitious burrowing, caused a break in the main canal of the irrigation system of the Farmers' Irrigating company at Hood River. When the orchardists of the big west side fruit belt failed to get their usual supply of water it was feared that some malcontent had been at work. An investigation resulted in the discovery of the washout as the results of a gopher's burrow.

An epidemic of cholera infantum is reported by physicians to be raging in Baker and several communities throughout Baker and Grant counties. Only one death has resulted thus far in Baker. The physicians report from 10 to 15 new cases every day.

Teaching the best methods in handling and packing pears and apples, a fruit packing school—practically free to northwest fruit growers—opened at the Oregon Agricultural college last week. Packing, grading, carting and the use of storage houses are being taught. Modern machinery is being demonstrated to the fruitmen.

The immensity of the children's exhibits contemplated for the coming state fair is indicated in a statement made by Assistant State Superintendent Carleton Friday when he declared that difficulty was being encountered in finding room for the proposed exhibits and that they will far surpass those of last year when 21 of the counties were represented. Mr. Carleton is superintendent of the educational pavilion and also has always evinced an active interest in the children's work, which has been developing annually on a greater and greater scale in Oregon. "Several new counties have asked for space in the educational building, and it is difficult to find room for all exhibits. The entire south end of the building will be given up to the exhibits of the children," said Mr. Carleton. One important feature of the department will be the exhibits of pigs raised by school children. This particular project has been under the direction of L. J. Allen of the Oregon Agricultural college, and it is estimated that there will be not less than 150 pigs exhibited this year in this department."

Nine thousand five hundred sheep were shipped from Elgin, Wallawa, Lostine and other Wallawa county points to Chicago last week by the Stanfield brothers, according to R. N. Stanfield. Mr. Stanfield is now said to be handling more sheep than any one man in the United States, if not in the world. A shipment of 23 cars of lambs left Robinette for Omaha. These were contracted for last spring by R. B. Caswell for a Seattle firm.

The hop crop in the Eugene part of the Willamette valley will be far short of estimates made when picking began last week, according to leading hop growers there. The harvest is so short some growers will be unable to meet contracts. One yard which normally returns 150,000 pounds, returned only 44,000 pounds this year. Other yards show proportionate shortage.

DAIRY MEN WANT BRAN TO SAVE THEIR STOCK

Oregon dairymen want the bran for dairy feed, and so the state food committee has petitioned the national food administration department to arrange to have Oregon wheat ground in Oregon and the flour only exported for the use of the country's armies and allies.

Unless some material aid is extended to the dairymen many of them feel that they will be forced to dispose of a good part of their dairy herds. While butter and milk prices are soaring the cost of feed stuffs is mounting still faster, so that only the most careful management will prevent serious loss in dairying. Cheaper and more abundant feeds are the most pressing need, and the bran and other wheat by-products of the Oregon wheat will supply these if the wheat is milled at home.

Should dairymen be forced to sell their milking and breeding animals a great shortage of foods would result. Not only that, but many breeding animals of rare quality and great value would be sacrificed, which would seriously interrupt the tremendous development of the dairy industry of the state.

The resolution on home milling is signed by W. J. Kerr, president Oregon Agricultural college; C. E. Spence, master of the state grange, Oregon City; J. D. Brown, president of the farmers' union, Portland; O. K. Hartwig, president state labor council, Portland; William Pohlman, president of the cattle and horse raisers' association, Baker City; E. J. Stack, secretary of the state labor council, Portland; Miss Ava B. Milam, professor of domestic science at the Oregon Agricultural college; Corvallis; W. E. Barrett, president of the state wool growers' association, Heppner; Whitney L. Boise, department bureau of the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

AGED MAN SUES

Says Husband Dragged Her About
by Hair of Her Head

W. A. Davidson, aged 77, of Milwaukie, Tuesday brought suit in Judge Campbell's court for divorce from Prudence Davidson, aged 70, to whom he was married only two years ago at Vancouver Wash. Shortly after the wedding, the complaint alleges, Mrs. Davidson commenced a course of cruel treatment.

Dragging his wife about their home by the hair of her head while he was intoxicated, thereby rendering her unconscious, is among the cruel acts charged to Robert E. Lawler in a divorce complaint filed here Tuesday by Nellie Lawler. The couple was married at Reno, Nev., in June, 1906. The husband, it is charged, struck his wife in the face with his fists and since July 5 of this year has refused to pay for her living expenses.

Chicago, Ill.—"For about two years I suffered from a female trouble so I was unable to walk or do any of my own work. I read about Lydia E. I weigh 165 pounds and am as strong as a man. I think money is well spent which purchases Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Jos. O'BRYEN, 1755 Newport Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

Tractors Cheaper than Horses

"Within the next ninety days, I judge that orders for fully 100,000 tractors will be placed by farmers who have come to the conclusion that mechanical power is better and cheaper than horseflesh for heavy farm work. Here is a little incident which some may regard as trivial, but I hope those seriously interested in tractors will appreciate its true significance. At the demonstration I met two young men who were brothers. They already had a tractor which they own in common and which they bought last fall. First they went to their state short course, where one of them studied farm mechanics and the other took a course in crops and soils. Then they both went to last year's tractor demonstration, picked out a machine that suited them, and placed their order immediately. A month later it was delivered, and they used it for fall plowing. By spring they knew their machine perfectly and were able to rush their crops into well-prepared seed beds. 'The year before we paid $850 for extra help and horse labor we needed on our 240-acre farm,' one of the brothers told me, 'but in the year since we have had the tractor we have cut that cost to $300—the wages of just one man. The total cost of running the tractor for the year was between $250 and $300, including fuel and oil.'—Farm and Fireside.

Give Up Candies and Ice Cream

There is an article about the part children will play in the war in the October Woman's Home Companion. It was written by Agnes Repplier and she says:

"More sober, less inspiring, but every whit as educational is the program of thrift and service to which the Minute girls—who may be best described as Camp-fire girls at home and at school—have pledged their support. These children are taught—that they are quite old enough to understand—that times of war call for sterner qualities than times of peace and plenty, and that they must be prepared to meet new conditions with new courage and new efforts. They are not, for example, to dawdle over breakfast, and then hop on a trolley car to get to school. They are to start earlier, and walk. They are not to spend Saturday afternoons at matinees and moving picture shows. They are to tramp or bike if the weather be good, and to learn economic cooking or elementary nursing if the weather be stormy. They are not to waste anything that can be possibly turned to account. They are rigidly to curtail the money spent on candy and ice cream sodas—which is a wise reform. The increased consumption of candy in the past few years has been regrettable from every point of view. There is a feverish outcry from tradesmen whenever any economy is projected, a feverish protest against the cramping of industrial conditions; but no one can deny that too much candy is eaten in the United States."

The Oregon Farmer

Offers Unusual Opportunity to Its Readers

AMONG our large circle of readers there are a great many who are interested directly or indirectly in fruit growing, dairying and other branches of farming. All of these naturally wish to keep in close touch with agricultural activities throughout the state; and to know about any fight which is being waged for the measures Oregon farmers want and against all sorts of schemes that are detrimental to the people and agricultural interests of this state.

We have, therefore, made a special clubbing arrangement with THE OREGON FARMER whereby any farmer or fruitgrower, who is one of our regular subscribers and who is not now a subscriber to THE OREGON FARMER, will be entitled to receive THE OREGON FARMER in combination with this paper at the same rate as for this paper alone.

This offer applies to all those who renew or extend their subscriptions as well as to all new subscribers. If you are interested directly or indirectly in Oregon agriculture, do not miss this unusual opportunity, but send your order in now.

THE OREGON FARMER is the one farm paper which is devoting itself exclusively to the farming activities and interests of Oregon. It has a big organization gathering the news of importance to farmers, dairymen, fruitgrowers, stockraisers and poultrymen; and it has the backbone to attack wrongful methods and combinations and bad legislation, and support honest leaders and beneficial measures. We are confident that our readers will congratulate us on our being able to make this splendid and attractive clubbing offer.
