DALLAS FAMILY VERY PATRIOTIC DURING WAR

Among the most patriotic families of Clackamas county doing its bit during the war was that of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Dallas.

The father, who is one of the most prominent and industrious farmers of Clackamas, had the ground of his farm prepared for planting the fall crops, and then took up his temporary home in a little cabin at Gladstone, making the trip daily to the shipyards. Several times during the week he would visit his farm to look after his interests, the cows he left in good care, as well as his poultry.

Mrs. Dallas, who is a trained nurse by profession, finding there was a scarcity of nurses during the terrible influenza plague of last winter, gave up her household duties, and offered her services to the Red Cross, which were gladly accepted by the organization. Mrs. Dallas was first sent to Eugene by the Red Cross Society, where she nursed patients suffering from the influenza at the officers' training camp. After doing her bit there, and through her efforts saving many lives, she was then transferred to Portland, where she took up nursing at the Benson Polytechnic School. She was also a nurse at the home of Lieutenant Dosch at Hillsdale, when that family was afflicted with influenza, and also at the Ernest Dosch home. After completing her work in Portland, Mrs. Dallas again gave up her household duties at Gladstone, and assisted in nursing a number of influenza cases in Oregon City.

With the father doing his share in the shipyards, the mother, as a nurse, the daughter of Mrs. Dallas, who married Mr. Dallas' son by a former marriage, and who is also a nurse by profession, came to the rescue of the afflicted influenza cases. She went to Seattle, where she entered as a Red

DISAPPEARANCE OF GIRL IN PORTLAND RECALLS LOCAL DIVORCE CASE

The disappearance of Robin Grigsby, 14-year-old girl of Portland, recalls a well known divorce case which was tried here some time ago.

The girl was taken away from the mother about a year ago by Judge Tazewell and placed in the care of Miss Mabel Walter, of Portland. The mother wanted the child placed in the care of an aunt in Washington and filed for a divorce here, asking this arrangement be made. Judge Campbell consented to this when the divorce was granted but as the girl wished to finish school in Portland Miss Walter retained her custody.

After school was over the aunt came for the child but Miss Walter failed to bring her to court as she has been ordered to do. Mrs. Grigsby maintains that Miss Walter has kidnapped her but the latter claims that she has disappeared and she does not know her whereabouts.

A. B. Carter, attorney for Mrs. Grigsby said that he saw the girl in St. Helens Friday in company with Miss Walter.

GERMAN SEAMEN ALONE WITH SHIPS WHEN FLEET SINKS

LONDON, June 24.—The decision not to maintain armed guards on the German guard ships was taken by the allied council at Paris following the advice of the principal admirals, namely: Wemyss for Great Britain, Le Bon for France, Benson for America and Grassi for Italy. The decision was approved by the prime ministers of the various powers. The British navy, therefore had nothing to do but to carry out orders.

There were 200 German officers and men on each of the larger ships and a score on each destroyer. The limits within which the fleet was moored were patrolled day and night by four armed British trawlers, which had orders to fire at any ship attempting to escape or any crew trying to leave its ship.

The British admiral in command of the Scaea Flow base found copies of the order given by Admiral von Reuter, the German fleet commander, to scuttle all ships at a given moment. The order bears a recent date.

Admiral von Reuter and all German crews are now prisoners of war and have been sent to a military camp near Invergordon. Of the German light cruisers, the Emden, Frankfurt and Nürnberg probably will be salvaged. Two destroyers are still afloat and 20 have been beached. The rest were sunk.

CARUS SOLDIER SPENT MONTHS IN HOSPITAL FROM EFFECTS OF GAS

Alva Wade, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wade, of Carus, Clackamas county, who has been in some of the greatest battles of France, has returned to the home of the Wade family. The young man was a member of Battery B Field Artillery and has been among those gassed. He was in the hospital for five months before leaving for the United States, and after being gassed was unconscious for some time. He was so near dead he says that his clothing had to be cut from his body, after being removed to the hospital in France.

Wade had not heard from his relatives in Clackamas county since last November, and had feared they had died from influenza, and was disheartened, fearing the worst, but after his arrival in Portland was delighted to see the members of his family at the train to greet him. The young man says there is surely no place like home.

Wade has two brothers in the service, one of whom is stationed at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and is Sergeant Wade, and another brother Pearl, who is in the marine service, stationed at Manila Bay. Sergeant Wade has taken unto himself a bride at Oklahoma, and soon expects to bring her to Clackamas county.

EXPERIENCES IN WAR TOLD BY CARUS SOLDIER

Another Clackamas county hero has returned home from France, and this is Alva Wade, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wade, prominent residents of Carus, Clackamas county. Alva Wade is visiting for a few days in Oregon City, where he is enjoying life once more, but is still suffering from the terrible experiences he has undergone.

Alva R. Wade enlisted October 5, 1917, at Fort Walla Walla, Wash., being a member of the Washington National Guard, and from there went to Camp Greene, North Carolina, and later transferred to Camp Mills, N. Y. He was a member of the 146th Field Artillery, and left Camp Mills on detached service for Newport News, Va., sailing from there for France April 17, on the U. S. S. Iowan. On May 5, 1918, Wade arrived at St. Nazaire, France, under command of Captain Fred M. Wied. After being stationed at that place for a brief time, he was transferred to Leouville, where the field artillery went into training, us-

A Good Day's Work

The American Federation of Labor, in its demand for a 44 hour week, has departed from a policy long established in this country of an 8-hour day. The custom of working eight hours, sleeping eight hours and playing eight hours appears to us to be an equitable one, though it has not come under our observation that newspaper editors ever get away with as short a shift as eight hours.

Several years ago the local paper mills operated their plants on a two-shift basis, with a 10-hour day and a 14-hour night, but when the legislature enacted the 10-hour law, the mills swiftly went on an 8-hour basis and there they have remained, and while most industrial plants operate on the 8-hour plan, there are some retail stores that still maintain a 9-hour shift.

The 44-hour week means a 7 1-2-hour day, or its equivalent. We note that in some lines of industry the working week is now 42 hours. Most of the morning newspapers in cities operate on a 7-hour shift. We may well peer into the future and wonder to what extent the unreasonable curtailment of working hours is going to affect the prices of commodities.

Over in Canada they have been clamoring for a 6-hour day. If they succeed in obtaining it, we may then expect agitation for such a short working day to spread over the United States. With dollar coffee in the offing and bacon 75 cents a pound, the question becomes one of real concern to every household.

ling French 155's, G. P. F. guns.

Wade, with his artillery, went into action July 11, 1918, and was in active service up to the time of the signing of the armistice November 11, 1918.

Among the engagements this young man was in were Montigny, France; the second battle of the Marne, from July 11 to August 11; St. Mihiel offensive, from September 12 to September 15. These three days Wade says he will never forget as long as he lives. It was terrible. He was under heavy shell fire for three days continuously. He was also in the Meuse Argonne, and has the distinction of firing one of the last shots in battle at the Huns.

Wade had many hairbreadth escapes from death while on the battlefields of France. It was during an engagement, when the young man, fatigued after fighting all night, was sleeping in a little dugout, the first thing he knew he was buried beneath dirt and all kinds of debris. Men of his company rushed to his assistance, expecting to find him dead or badly wounded, and after removing debris were surprised to find him unhurt and smiling. A bursting shell in the hands of the Huns had entered close to Wade's dugout, and had it gone a few feet further, Wade would have been blown to fragments.

After the signing of the armistice Wade went with the artillery into Germany, and on November 20, 1918, was taken ill at Bihburg, Germany, where he was removed to a hospital at Prum. The young man was suffering from effects of influenza, terminating in pneumonia. A ward here was filled with soldiers suffering from influenza, all of whom died except Wade. Although the men had been given the best of attention by the physicians and nurses, the disease had the best of them, and all succumbed after being afflicted several days. Wade was later removed to another hospital at Trier, Germany, known as Evacuation Hospital No. 3.

Wade was transferred from the hospital at Trier, to France in February, where he received medical treatment, and before leaving for France was in six hospitals. The physicians jokingly told him he was a hospital inspector. Wade was anxious to get out of the hospital, but his condition was so that none of the attending physicians consented to his leaving.

We now have twenty trucks on the way like those shown above, all equipped with 3½ yard steel lined bodies, with Hydraulic Hoist, that we are bringing in for road construction work. These will be sold under the factory's absolute guarantee for the full period of one year.

GARY steel products lead the world. GARY Trucks are in the same class. Don't chance an unknown quality.

REPORT OF W. C. NORRIS CO.

Here is the report of the W. C. Norris Motor Sales Company, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, on the three trucks shown above, and covering their experience with motor trucks in general and GARY Trucks in particular.

"We have just closed the deal with the County Commissioners of Kay County for three GARY 3½-ton trucks. We competed with five other makes, and outpulled them all. The performance of the trucks we frankly state is marvelous. The 'H' and 'HU,' 2 and 3½-ton models with four speed transmission, outpull, overpower and outclass everything in their rated capacity; while the 3½-ton is even greater in pulling power and load carrying capacity. We consider your worm drive, semi-floating Sheldon Axle as the only safe and sure form of construction for hard usage and to withstand the strain and abuse to which a truck is subjected in the oil fields and kindred lines of work. Our observation, experience and knowledge of actual results in meeting oil field requirements, with heavy loads and no roads, convinces us that GARY TRUCKS can be relied upon in every instance and will deliver a long life of service at a nominal upkeep and low cost of operation. We are for the GARY TRUCKS strong and shall concentrate our future efforts exclusively on the GARY line.

R. C. NORRIS MOTOR SALES CO.,
(Signed) N. D. Southerland, Gen. Mgr.

Certainty of Service is our slogan, and as WEST COAST FACTORY AGENCY we shall always be prepared to supply any duplicate part that may be required, and do any repair or service work necessary.

Stopping the train the boy was taken aboard and Sheriff Wilson informed. The sheriff immediately wired the school officials, who got the boy at Mount Angel, where Miles had taken him.
