

OREGON CITY ENTERPRISE

FORTY-NINTH YEAR—No. 8

OREGON CITY, OREGON, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1915.

ESTABLISHED 1866

OREGON CITY TO BE A TRUE HOST ON W. V. S. DAY

ALL EVENTS ON LONG PROGRAM WILL BE FREE TO COUNTRY VISITORS

TRIPS THROUGH WOOLEN AND PAPER MILLS BIG FEATURES

Special Trains Over New Line Will Arrive at 10 O'Clock—Parade Will Include Three Bands

With the completion of the program for Willamette Valley Southern Day, Saturday, it is now assured that the celebration in honor of the electric line that connects Oregon City to Mt. Angel will be one of the most elaborate and unusual ever given here.

The unusual feature of the day will be that every event will be free. Usually, celebrations of this nature are cunning devices to attract trade to a town. But not so this time. The moving picture shows, three of them, will be open all afternoon and free to visitors. There will be a free dance. Three bands will furnish music for the occasion. A large river steamer, one of the fleet of the Willamette Navigation company, will escort the visitors to the falls and down the river to the Clackamas rapids. The Oregon City Woolen mills will open their doors and the Commercial club rooms will be filled with men and women from out of town in the afternoon.

The formal program of the day will begin at 10 o'clock when the special trains are scheduled to come in. A large party of Oregon City residents will be at the Willamette Valley Southern terminal yards to welcome the visitors and to witness the ceremonies there when Judge Grant B. Dimick, president of the recently completed line, will pull the golden spike which was driven when construction was begun and present it to the mayor of Mt. Angel.

From the terminal yards of the electric line, the party will parade the length of Main street. Three bands, furnished by the Oregon City lodge of Moose, Molalla and Mt. Angel, will figure prominently in this parade and in the other events of the day.

After the parade, the women and children will be conducted through the woolen mill and the men taken through the paper mills under proper guides and at 11:30 o'clock the trips on the river will begin.

The afternoon will be taken up by a reception at the Commercial club, visits to the moving picture shows, band concerts, and a free dance. The farewell reception will be held from 4 to 4:15 o'clock when the special trains will conduct the visitors home.

The complete program follows.

10:00—Arrival trains over Willamette Valley railway.
Address of welcome, by Mayor Jones.

10:30—President G. B. Dimick of Willamette Valley Southern railway will pull the gold spike at Fifteenth street.

10:45—Headed by Moose band parade will march as follows:
1—Oregon City Moose band.
2—Autos with distinguished visitors.

3—Oregon City business men
4—Mt. Angel band.
5—Mt. Angel visitors.
6—Molalla band.
7—Molalla visitors.
8—Clackamas county citizens, etc.

Ending at Third and Main streets.

11:00—Lady and children guests with guides will inspect the properties of the Oregon City Woolen mill.

Gentlemen guests with proper guides will inspect plant of Hawley Pulp & Paper Co.

11:30—Guests will embark on steamers of Willamette Navigation company at O. R. N. dock and view the Willamette falls and river.

12:00—Steamers will land at Oregon City Transportation company dock at Eighth street.

1:00—Reception at Commercial club. Speeches, etc.

1:00 to 4:00—Band concerts, free. Free dance. Moving picture shows free to visitors.

Special demonstrations at leading stores.

4:15—Farewell reception and band concerts at Fifteenth and Main streets.

PASADENA MAN SUE D HERE

Mrs. Lena B. Patterson has filed a suit against Charles S. Patterson now a Pasadena dentist. Mrs. Patterson charges excessive drunkenness and cruel and inhuman treatment in her complaint. They were married October 12, 1908, in Lewistown, Mont., and remained in that state until the couple separated and the husband left for the California city. The plaintiff asks for $75 a month alimony and the custody of the three children.

FIGHT BY DIMICK FOR STRICT DRY ACT IS SUCCESS

SENATE COMMITTEE MAKES UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT TO ALTER MEASURE

CHANGE WOULD ALLOW FAMILY OR INDIVIDUAL TO RECEIVE LIMIT

"It Would Transfer Barrooms From Streets to Homes," Says Oregon City Lawmaker—Vote Is Close

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 13.—(Special)—Senator W. A. Dimick won a signal victory today when the minority report by him making it possible for only one member of a family to obtain liquor through the common carrier was adopted by the senate. All the other members of the committee signed a report striking out the words "or family" in the bill passed by the house in the line which provides that an individual "or family" would be allowed to ship in two quarts of spirituous or vinous or 24 quarts of malt liquors in 28 days.

"It is transferring barrooms from the streets to the homes," declared the Clackamas senator. "If I had my way, not a drop of the stuff would be allowed to cross the state line. However, for the law to be constitutional some must be allowed. The people when they passed the amendment never intended that the bars should be thrown down to as much liquor coming in as was provided in the majority report."

Vinton agreed with Dimick that the bill should remain as was passed by the house. He said that he had been informed by Justice Burnett, of the supreme court, that the limitation in the house bill would be constitutional.

Farrell, chairman of the committee, said the provision as amended was the one in operation in Kansas and it operated satisfactorily there.

Kellaher said he opposed both reports and asked to be excused from voting. The vote was 15 to 14, as follows:

For Dimick report—Barrett, Bingham, Butler, Clarke, Cusick, Day, Dimick, Garland, Hawley, LaFollette, Ragsdale, I. S. Smith, Stewart, Vinton and Wood.

For majority report—Bishop, Burgess, Farrell, Hollis, Kiddle, Leinenweber, McBride, Moser, Perkins, J. C. Smith, Strayer, Von der Hellen and Thompson.

MULTNOMAH GRANCES STUDY HARD-SURFACE

INVESTIGATION INTO BONDING PLAN WILL BE MADE DURING SPRING

"There is no question but that the time has come when hard-surface must be laid on our country roads. The ordinary crushed rock surface freshly laid will not stand much longer than 90 days under present heavy traffic on the roads. The Base Line road was finely covered with crushed rock in March and by July had been cut to pieces by the traffic."

Such is the opinion of James K. Kelly, chairman of a committee of five from Evening Star grange in Multnomah county, appointed to investigate the proposed plan to issue bonds for hard-surface pavements for county roads.

Other granges in Multnomah county have taken up the problem of building country roads and now in the county to the north a county-wide movement has been started to investigate the bonding plan. The Lents grange has responded by appointing a committee of five to co-operate with the Evening Star grange.

FAMILIES FIGHT FOR POSSESSION OF CHILD

The first step in what promises to be an interesting fight for the control of Edna May Olive Hafer between L. G. Roberts, of Goble, and Frank Catho of this city, was taken Monday when the girl was declared a dependent child and placed under the control of Court Matron Church and the petition of Roberts was heard by County Judge Anderson.

The Roberts family are former neighbors of the Hafers and Mrs. Catho has possession of the child at the present time. The girl's father is serving a long sentence in the state penitentiary and her mother is dead. The petition of Mr. Catho will be heard Wednesday. George C. Brownell and Charles Sievers represent Mr. Roberts and John Sievers, Mr. Catho.

COUNTY SEEKS RATES FOR HAULING GRAVEL

In order to make the gravel pits at Barton and New Era of practical benefit to all the county, the county court is now negotiating with the Portland Railway, Light & Power Co. and the Southern Pacific for rates for the transportation of gravel.

The court has applied to both companies for rates and the Southern Pacific has responded with an offer to haul gravel to any point on the main line in the county for 27½ cents a cubic yard and to Molalla for 43 3-4 cents. No offer has been received from the electric line and the court has not accepted the rates of the Southern Pacific which are higher than those of 1914.

The Southern Pacific touches the New Era plant and the Portland Railway, Light & Power Co. the Barton pit.

CO-OPERATION IS KEY TO OPEN WAY TO LOWER PRICES

EDWARD TITUS BELIEVES FARMERS SHOULD UNITE IN MARKETING

FARMING ON BASIS OF ISOLATION AND SUSPICION SAYS ECONOMISTS

Plan of Producer Selling Direct to Retailer Declared Folly—Peace-meal Handling Costly for Consumers

(By Edward K. Titus.)

The question will be asked, why can not the farmers sell more of their product direct to the retailers?

The position of the retailer is sensible enough. If he were to buy his potatoes of the nearest farmer raising same, he would have to clean up the farmer's crop all at a time. Then he would have to store the potatoes, and take the risk of their decaying. This would make it necessary for him to have a larger capital, or do business on borrowed money.

It is manifestly a much more prudent course for the retailer to buy of the wholesaler in small quantities, as he feels sure that he will need the goods. In so doing he avoids the risk of heavy loss due to falling markets and depreciation. He keeps his money where he can get it back by quick turns.

This method assures the salvation of the retailer, but piecemeal handling in small lots is costly for the consumer.

The one point where the farmers fail, in all efforts to sell direct to retail trade, is inability to provide regular supplies of their product. If they would co-operate and provide facilities for storage of products, so that they could let retailers have small shipments from week to week as needed, they would be in a position to dispense with the costly services of many jobbers, commission men, auction houses and wholesalers.

No one farmer can provide these facilities. It calls for a united effort in some co-operative organization. A small share of the cost of the middlemen would pay the cost of such co-operative handling.

Farming has been in a rut. The farmer is an individualist, he prides himself on his independent conduct of his own business. His isolation makes him suspicious of co-operative projects. He must learn that no one succeeds in 20th century business on a basis of isolation and suspicion.

PROHIBITION BILL IS SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 17.—"It is the best piece of constructive legislation in the world," declared Governor Withycombe this afternoon as he attached his signature to the prohibition bill. "I heartily approve of its every provision. If the legislature does nothing else this act alone is well worth the expense of the session."

The governor was in a happy mood when he signed the bill. He declared that it gave him a real pleasure to be able to have a part in so whole some and beneficial a piece of work. Members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and other persons, who have been interested in the "dry" movement in Oregon for many years, stood about his desk.

The house enrolling committee completed the final draft of the bill late this afternoon and Harry McClellan, chief clerk of the committee, proudly carried it into the house and deposited it upon the chief clerk's desk.

PROHIBITION BILL SLIDES THROUGH SENATE EASILY

ONE VOTE POLLED AGAINST "MOST DRASTIC" MEASURE IN UNION

UPPER HOUSE PASSES OTHER IMPORTANT BILLS DURING DAY

Dimick Makes Vigorous But Unsuccessful Fight on Certificate of Public Necessity or Convenience Plan

SENATE PASSES "DRY" BILL

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 16.—What a committee on alcoholic traffic, approvingly pronounced a more drastic prohibition bill than that of any other state in the union, it now has passed both houses. It slid through the senate this afternoon in just half an hour, with only one dissenting vote, but with several protest trailing in its wake. The one opposing vote came from the habitual minority. Senator Kellaher who remarked as he cast his vote that he would "vote in the negative if he were the only senator who had nerve enough to do so."

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 16.—Action was taken upon two important bills in the senate today. One was the bill known as the certificate of public necessity and convenience bill, which requires any person or corporation wishing to establish a public utility in a field already occupied, to obtain a certificate from the railroad commission before having authority to construct the utility. This bill was passed by a vote of 18 to 11. The other was a bill to protect the employees of railroad companies by prescribing the clearance distance railroad companies must allow in future construction of tracks, bridges, tunnels, etc. This bill was in the interest of the employees. It was defeated by a vote of 13 to 17.

Senators Garland and Day summed up the arguments in favor of the bill requiring a certificate of public convenience and necessity. Senator Day declared that stifling competition between public utilities must be stopped or ruinous results will follow.

"If you say to a public utility corporation, through regulation by the railroad commission, that it shall not earn more than 6 per cent on its investment," said Day, "then you should say also that we will treat the corporation so fairly that it may be able to earn the 6 per cent."

He said there was an example of the need of such a law in Portland. He said a company had gone into the heart of the city and taken 25 per cent of the cream of the business, and had not extended its lines to the outskirts, where the cost is greater and the profits less.

Senator Garland said that all interests, both big business and little business, seemed to want the law.

"Such a law will protect the public utilities because it will not permit ruinous competition," he said. "It will protect the public because the public utility is entitled to charge rates that will bring a fair return on its investment and the public has to foot the bill."

Senators Dimick, Butler and Bishop made the strongest attacks on the bill. Senator Dimick said he saw that the pendulum was swinging back toward conservatism, and he warned the senators that unless they were careful it would swing too far.

"You fellows who want to protect big business," said Dimick, "want to be careful or you will go too far. You will get into disrepute as you were once before when big business was at the helm. It is a mighty big question to tell a man that he cannot spend his money in any industry in this state that he needs it. You are stifling competition, and it is a pretty long step in the opposite direction."

Senator Bishop declared he could not understand why it is that big business has to come to the legislature to ask for protection. "Why not extend the protection on down to the little fellows?" he asked.

Reply was made to this query by Vinton and Garland, who pointed out that if some commission regulated the prices that the private corporation or merchant should charge them it would be proper for the same commission to protect the private corporation from ruinous competition.

Senator Butler called the bill a vicious proposition, and said at the hearing before the municipal affairs committee the president of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, opposed the bill providing for the creation of public utility districts, and at the same time supported this bill.

COUNTY POSTMASTERS NAMED—WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The following Clackamas county, Oregon postmasters were appointed today: Mullino, Charles T. Howard; New Era, Jennie Dustin.

FATHER AND SON USE THE SAME DEFENSE

Using the same defense which proved successful in Eugene recently, Attorney George C. Brownell hopes to clear the Sherman brothers, of the Molalla district, of a charge of killing deer out of season on appeal from the court of Justice of the Peace. The son of George C. Brownell, Howard Brownell, was the attorney in the Eugene case.

During the 1913 session of the legislature the whole game law of 1909 was wiped out and a new one substituted and the section relating to killing deer out of season and having deer meat in possession was repealed and no law was substituted.

It is probable, attorneys say, that an amendment to the game law will be offered at once at the present session of the legislature.

MANY SENATORS OPPOSE MEASURE TO SPLIT COUNTY

GENERAL FEELING PREVAILS BILL HAS LITTLE CHANCE OF SUCCESS

DIMICK BELIEVES CLACKAMAS WILL ABOLISH SCHOOL HEADS

Supervisor Bill by Oregon City Legislator Passed by House—Schuebel's Insurance Plan Favored

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 11.—(Special)—Unless the senators have an unexpected change of mind, there is but little chance for the bill introduced by Moser making it easy for certain sections of Clackamas and Lane counties to secede and form new counties, becoming a law. Senators Dimick and Bingham from the counties interested, said they did not think the bill had a chance of passage in the upper house.

Many senators oppose it because it gives the sections of the counties which are not to secede no say in the division plans. Moser introduced the bill at the request of residents of Estacada and Cottage Grove and is in no way "father" of it.

Senate Bill No. 11, by Dimick, making the appointment of school supervisors optional with the counties was passed by the house by an almost unanimous vote today. It was a compromise substitute of Dimick and the committee on education for the one introduced by Dimick abolishing the law creating the supervisory system.

"I have no hesitancy in saying," said Dimick, "that under the new law we shall have no supervisors in Clackamas. It will now be up to the residents of school districts to determine whether they want officers and I do not think they do. I received requests from all sections of Clackamas to do all I could to get the law repealed."

Dimick today took a strong stand against the Perkins bill making insanity a ground for divorce. He said it would open the doors for persons obtaining divorces through fraud and that the law would be abused through out the state. He declared an insane person is in the class with persons who are ill. No court would think of granting a man a divorce because his wife suffered from tuberculosis. The bill was defeated by a vote of 16 to 12.

Dimick's bill, introduced at the request of Dr. Hugh Mount, repealing the law requiring only trained nurses to administer anesthetics passed the house today.

Indications are that the senate committee on insurance, which has under consideration the Schuebel bill amending the present workmen's compensation law and the Bingham bill, which seeks to turn compensation insurance over to the casualty insurance companies, will report unanimously in favor of the Schuebel bill, with possibly a few slight amendments.

2 SCHOOLS MADE STANDARD IN DAY

Two Clackamas county schools, New Colton and Cedaredale, were standardized Monday by Superintendent Calavan, Burgess Ford of Estacada and Supervisor McCormack. Superintendent Calavan returned to the county seat late Tuesday afternoon after his trip across the county.

The standardization rally at New Colton was held in the afternoon and the building was well filled. The school, which was recently completed, contains four rooms although at present only one is used. Mrs. M. C. Lundstrum is the teacher.

The Cedaredale rally was held Monday night and it as well as attended by a large number of pupils and parents. Miss Edith Lilly is the Cedaredale teacher. At both schools programs were given.

FIGHT BY DIMICK FOR LAKE LEASES ENDS IN VICTORY

GRANT OF MINERAL DEPOSITS RATIFIED BY SENATE: VOTE 17 TO 13

SCHUEBEL'S APPROPRIATION BILL PASSES UPPER HOUSE

Oregon City Lawmaker Leads Vigorous But Unsuccessful Opposition to New Judicial District

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 17.—(Special)—Senator Dimick led the fight for the house bill confirming the lease to Jackson C. Moore of Abert and Sumner lakes, which was passed by the senate by a vote of 17 to 13 today. The speaker declared that Moore acted in good faith and the amendments of the senate committee giving the state land board supervision over the stocks and bonds of the proposed company were unjust. He said the state was protected under the blue sky law and there was no reason to suspect a stock jobbing scheme was planned. The Oregon City man made a convincing argument.

Representative Schuebel's bill repealing all continuing appropriations but the millage ones was passed by the senate. It amounts to about $1,000,000 a year. Hereafter the departments must prepare budgets in order to get appropriations the same as other departments that have not had continuing appropriations.

Among the larger continuing appropriations are: State board of health, $26,000; dairy and food commissioner, $16,000; Oregon National Guard, $70,000; and state engineer, $66,500.

Senate bill No. 269, creating the 15th judicial district was vigorously opposed by Senator Dimick. The district comprises Washington and Tillamook counties. Dimick said Judge Campbell had not complained of overwork and he saw no reason for providing a $4000 a year job for some one. Despite opposition the bill was passed on the calendar by a big majority and probably be passed.

Schuebel's bill providing that all department funds be included in the general fund passed the senate. It will save the state about $20,000 a year in interest. Now when a certain fund is exhausted the treasurer issues interest bearing warrants, although there may be hundreds of thousands of dollars in other funds. Under the new bill all warrants will be paid as long as there is money in the general fund.

COURT RULES SANDY RIVER NOT CLOSED

ATTORNEY BROWNELL FINDS DEFECT IN NOTICES OF FISH COMMISSION

That the Sandy river is not closed to net fishing was the point raised Thursday by Attorney George C. Brownell in his defense of August Logus and Andrew Friedhoff, who were charged with illegal fishing in the river. The point was sustained and Justice Sievers instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. Charles T. Sievers assisted in the defense and District Attorney Gilbert Hedges represented the state.

The state law provides that the fish commission in declaring a river closed shall post notices on the river bank file the original notice in the office of the county clerk and publish it in a county newspaper. The notices were posted along the bank of the stream and the notice duly published but the original document filed with the clerk was defective.

Logus and Friedhoff were arrested January 15 by Deputy Game Warden Ames and Patton.

COUNTY JUDGE VISITS BUTTE CREEK BRIDGE

County Judge Anderson returned to Oregon City Saturday morning after a tour of the southern and southeastern part of the county. The trip was made with Commissioner Knight.

Judge Anderson left Oregon City early Friday morning with Commissioner Knight to investigate a report that the Butte creek bridge was in need of repair. The two county officials found that the bridge was sound, although the roof was in poor condition. Road Supervisor Albright was with Judge Anderson and Commissioner Knight.

The return trip was made through Yoderville and Judge Anderson spent the night in Canby.

COUNTY BRIDGE IS MADE DEAD LINE BY AMENDMENT

SENATE APPROVES MEASURE MONDAY AFTERNOON AFTER LONG DEBATE

FISHERMEN'S UNION SEES HOPE IN REFERRING CASE TO VOTERS

Jack Albright Believes Voters Will Preserve Fishing Industry Here—Plan as Changed, Held Partial Victory

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 15.—(Special)—Although Senator Dimick made a good fight, the senate today fixed the deadline for net fishing in the Willamette at the suspension bridge, Oregon City. A minority report of the senate committee was adopted, Dimick advocating a minority report which was adverse to the Gill bill.

Representative Schuebel, who made a strong fight against the Gill bill in the house, and Dimick, after the decision, said it was a partial victory for the fishermen. Portland sportsmen came to this session determined to close the entire river to net fishermen, and for a time it seemed they would be successful. However, the determined stand of Oregon City representatives and the fight of the fishermen themselves caused several senators to change their attitude and a majority were glad of the opportunity to accept a compromise. It is estimated that it will cut down net fishing about 25 per cent.

Moser, leading the fight for the sportsmen, insisted that the bill be referred and the committee was instructed to report back the original bill. They lost and then came the test vote on the motion to substitute a minority report for the majority.

The senators voting to substitute were: Bishop, Butler, Dimick, Garland, Kiddle, LaFollette, Leinenweber, I. S. Smith and J. C. Smith.

Senators voting against reconsidering were: Barrett, Brigham, Burgess, Clarke, Cusick, Day, Farrell, Hawley, Hollis, Kellaher, Langguth, McBride, Moser, Perkins, Ragsdale, Stewart, Strayer, Vinton, Von der Hellen, Wood and Thompson.

On the passage of the bill as amended only Senators Dimick, J. C. Smith and I. S. Smith voted negative.

The original Gill bill closed the river to net fishing. The house amended it so as to make the mouth of the Clackamas the deadline.

Dimick in his speech against the bill declared that its passage would deprive fishermen of Oregon and Clackamas county of from $25,000 to $50,000 a year. He said there was no necessity for it, for fishing did not interfere with the supply. He read a petition signed by 509 Oregon City business men against the bill. He said Walter F. Backus, a Portland business man, was the "original candy kid back of the bill. His motive was a selfish one. He sells tackle and rents boats to the sportsmen to fish."

The senator scored Fish Warden Clanton and Game Warden Finley who urged the passage of the bill. He said Finley was assisting in spending $120,000 of the state money yearly and it was not for the protection of game and fish, but for the protection and support of Clanton had been opposed by sportsmen because he withdrew his opposition to the bill two years ago to take the power of closing streams from the state game and fish commission. This might of had some connection, Dimick said, with his supporting the present bill.

Moser said Dimick was pleading for 34 fishermen when the livelihood of 25,000 persons engaged in the fish industry was threatened. To continue the open river would mean the destruction of the fishing industry, Moser said.

Although the passage of the Gill bill, even in its amended form, is considered practically a defeat by local fishermen, they are by no means disheartened and will invoke the referendum on the bill according to a statement of Jack Albright, president of the Clackamas County Fishermen's union, Monday night.

"I believe that the people of the state will down a bill to close the river to commercial fishing when it is explained that the measure will take bread and butter from the mouths of hundreds in this part of the valley," said Mr. Albright. "We have not accepted the action of the legislature as final. We will still struggle to keep the river open."

A meeting of the Fishermen's union will be held here early next week, when plans will be made to fight the Gill bill. Petitions will be circulated at once, according to Mr. Albright.

The bill, in the form it was passed by the upper house, will close about half a mile of the river and end fishing in the deepest holes in the river. The measure will not go into effect until after the season has opened and the fishermen will probably take full advantage of the opportunity to fish above the bridge during that time.
