PORTLAND POSTAL STATION LOOTED BY HIGHWAYMEN

SUPERINTENDENT IS BOUND TO HEAVY MAILRACK BY ARMED DUO

POLICE THINK ROBBERS MAKE GETAWAY IN AN AUTOMOBILE

At Point of Gun, Head of Office Is Forced to Unlock Safe—At Least $500 Is Taken

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 12.—Hand-cutting A. G. Ott, superintendent of postoffice substation "A," at Union avenue and East Alder street, to a heavy mailrack after he had unlocked the safe at the point of a revolver, two armed highwaymen looted the office at 6:20 o'clock tonight, and escaped with between $500 and $600 in money and stamps.

Mr. Ott dragged the mailrack across to a telephone and notified the police as soon as the men left.

The loot consisted of between $200 and $300 in currency, besides a number of blank money order blanks, and about $250 worth of stamps. As no postoffice seal was taken, federal authorities believe that the money order blanks will be of no use to the robbers.

Mr. Ott says that one of the men has transacted business in the substation frequently. The police believe that the robbery was the work of experienced highwaymen, and that the robbers escaped in an automobile after the crime.

The station closes at 6:15 p. m. Mr. Ott had locked the station when he saw one of the men coming across the street.

"Stick up your hands, old fellow," one of the men told him, he says. "Put 'em up quick, we mean business."

Ott says he considered it an attempt at humor and walked on without replying. The other robber walked down East Alder street to meet him. The three came together at the rear door of the substation.

"Throw up your hands, you old—!" shouted one of the men, and each thrust a revolver against the man's stomach.

"I had nothing. What could I do?" Mr. Ott moaned to Postmaster Meyers later. "I opened the door and let them in. One drove me to the safe. The other switched off the lights. With a run pressing my back I turned the combination and threw back the door."

"Then my captor drove me across the room to a mail rack. Taking a pair of handcuffs from his pocket, he snapped one around my wrist and locked the other to the rail of the rack. The other man stood in the back of the room meanwhile."

"With a mail sack filled with loot in his hands, the robber walked past me to the door. 'You've screwed this handcuff too tight,' I protested as he passed. 'You won't have to stay there long,' he replied. 'Just give us about 15 minutes.'"

"The two walked unconcernedly out the door. From my position I saw them walk up to Grand avenue, still carrying the sack. When they were out of sight I dragged the rack across the room and telephoned the police. One hand was free, so I had no difficulty in using the telephone."

Guterson will be seen in several meets the coming season, and he is confident that the stimulus of competition will induce him to leap farther than any athlete has ever jumped before. He is in excellent condition and will take off but little weight in preparing for his supreme effort.

Asking Too Much.

Out of Work—Yes, sir, I once had a good situation at a Swiss hotel. I was the echo that answered when people shouted. But I got the sack.

Gentleman—How was that?

Out of Work—Why, a Russian fellow came one day and shouted out something and I couldn't answer back.

COLDS ARE OFTEN MORE SERIOUS STOP POSSIBLE COMPLICATIONS

The disregard of a Cold has often brought many a regret. The fact of sneezing, coughing, or a fever should be warning enough that your system needs immediate attention. Certainly Loss of Sleep is most serious. It is a warning given by Nature. It is man's duty to himself to assist by doing his part.
