DECIDE FOR KERKES AGAINST MR. GIVENS

$25,000 SLANDER ACTION FAILS
AFTER TRIAL IN CIRCUIT
COURT. NO DAMAGES

After a trial lasting most of the day, and into which many sensational features were injected, a jury in Judge J. U. Campbell's court Thursday found a verdict for M. J. Kerkess, who had been sued by Walter Givens, of Estacada, for $25,000 for slander. The suit was an outgrowth of alleged statements against the character and private life of Givens, said to have been made by Kerkess. Givens is a prominent eastern Clackamas county business man, and was formerly a minister in the Christian church. He still occupies the pulpit occasionally and has been suggested as the permanent supply for the Gladstone church. He was a leader in the fight before the last legislature for the creation of Cascade county.

Kerkess denied having made the statement attributed to him by Givens, which had to do with the latter's relations with a Portland woman. Kerkess did testify, however, that he had stated that Givens had been seen running around with a pretty woman. Judge Campbell held that the exact words need not be proved so long as Kerkess' meaning was made clear by what he did say. Attempts of attorneys for Kerkess to bring in features of Givens' life before he came to Oregon were not admitted by the court, and attorneys for Kerkess failed to pass a motion of non-suit on the ground that Givens had failed to prove Kerkess' exact language.

That Givens attempted to use the court as an agent to eliminate Kerkess as a competitor in livestock purchasing in eastern Clackamas county, was intimated by Judge Grant B. Dimick, who appeared as a counsel for Kerkess.

The jury which heard the case and found a verdict for the defendant, Kerkess, included A. J. Marrs, E. L. Palfrey, John R. Outfield, J. C. Sawyer, W. H. Zivney, J. C. Edmonds, A. B. Hibbard, Harry Ameels, A. Engle, W. G. Brickley, Chris Moehnke and G. C. Pelton.

SEVEN MORE MEN WILL RESPOND TO WAR CALL

Clackamas county will be called upon to send seven more men to American Lake to complete this county's quota for the first draft and there are 15 certified men to select from, according to County Clerk Iva Harrington. The first draft called 62 men from this county and the first quota to depart for the national army cantonment was 5 per cent. Forty per cent left late in September and an additional 40 per cent departed Friday. This leaves 15 per cent yet to go. Because of the fact that several in the first call in the draft were absent from their homes and others were ill and not be examined, more men could not be examined, which is responsible for the fact that there are 15 men from which to pick seven for the last quota.

The men who will answer the last call on the first draft will be the alternates for the last quota, with possibly one exception. The alternates were: Harry Crawford Reid, Estacada; Ennis Sherman Townsend, Bull Run; Walter Sidney Smith, Mulino; Ray Leigh Francisco, Oregon City; Ardius Stefani, Molalla.

THREE SEEK DIVORCE

Disgruntled Wives Ask Change in Conditions of Servitude

Three wives seek to alter the conditions of their servitude through divorce complaints filed in Judge Campbell's department of the circuit court Thursday. Bertha Fischer charges William Fischer, to whom she was married at Walla Walla, Wash., on March 29, 1916, with cruelty and non-support. She wants her maiden name, Bertha Powell, restored.

Desertion is the ground of the complaint filed by Elita Hayden against Herbert H. Hayden. The couple was married at Vancouver, Wash., on February 27, 1915. Mrs. Hayden says her husband left her in September last year. She also seeks the restoration of her maiden name, Elita Verville.

The custody of their three children and $2500 alimony in gross are asked in a complaint filed by Zada Akerill of Barlow, Clackamas county, against Harry Akerill. They were married at Walla Walla, Wash., on February 8, 1907. Mrs. Akerill charges cruelty and says she was forced to support herself during a continued absence of her husband. She also asks that her husband be restrained from disposing of the season's crops on several tracts of land which he controls. The crops are said to be worth $8000.

Stones Get Decree

W. M. and Nina Stone yesterday won a decree in Judge Campbell's court declaring them to have title to nine acres of land in the Ezra Fisher donation land claim. The suit was brought by Mr. and Mrs. Stone against T. S. Clapp and the First Congregational church of Portland to quiet title to the property.

HAWLEY DECLINES MAIN TRUNK JOB

LIVE WIRES TO SOW WHEAT
ON THEIR MODEL FARM
AT MOUNT PLEASANT

BIG SPAN DECLARED UNSAFE

Donations Made for Planting. Cost of New Bridge Would be Mostly Borne by State

Willard P. Hawley, Jr., Tuesday resigned as main trunk of the Live Wires of the Commercial club, giving pressure of private business as his reason, and Mort Latourette was elected to fill the vacancy. The position of chaplain, a new one on the roll of the Live Wires, was filled by the election of the Rev. C. H. L. Chandler of St. Paul's church.

At their meeting Tuesday the Wires gave the committee in charge of the club's bean demonstration farm the authority to continue the experiment with wheat and donations of $10 each made by W. P. Hawley and J. R. Jacobs will provide seed wheat for the patch. In addition to the donation the Wires will put $100 to the credit of the committee to cover the cost of the wheat experiment. Given a crop of 40 bushels of wheat to the acre at $2 a bushel, the Live Wires figure they could net $70 to the acre, as the cost of production is estimated at $10 an acre.

The beans grown on the same ground by the club will be dried on the top floor of the old armory building, which W. P. Hawley donated for that purpose. It is proposed by the Wires to hold a "bean" day in this city and sell the crop from their farm direct to the consumer at cost. Several grocers have volunteered to aid in the disposal of the beans in this manner.

A committee was appointed, upon recommendation of J. W. Moffatt, to take up the matter of condemning the suspension bridge over the Willamette here after the structure was declared to be in a serious condition that might at any time result in disaster. The state engineer's office will be called upon by the committee to inspect the bridge and advise as to what action should be taken toward declaring it unfit for use. The Wires were told that a new bridge would cost about $50,000 and that the chief part of the cost should be borne by the state, inasmuch as the bridge is a link in the Pacific highway and in no way is a distinct possession of Clackamas county. Oregon City and West Linn together would pay one-third the total cost of the new bridge if its construction was arranged for according to Live Wire ideas. The committee in charge of the bridge matter is C. A. Miller, city engineer; M. J. Lee and D. N. Byerlee.

POSTAL RATES CHANGE

Beginning November 2 all letters mailed under the first class rate will cost three cents for each two ounces, according to the announcement today of Postmaster J. J. Cooke of Oregon City. This does not include letters for city and rural route delivery from the local postoffice. All letters going outside the city and not on a rural route from this office must carry three cents in place of two as before.

All packages sent to soldiers in France, Postmaster Cooke announced, must be inspected by the postmaster at the office from which they are sent, before they will be accepted for delivery.

MRS. BROBST NAMED

Oswalt Estate Valued at $8000 Has Three Beneficiaries

Sophia Brobst was Tuesday appointed administratrix of the estate of her late husband, William Brobst. There are seven children to share with the widow in an estate valued at $1240.

Iida Oswalt filed in the probate court Tuesday a petition for letters of administration in the estate of Jacob Oswalt. The estate, valued at $8000, is to be shared between the widow and two children.

TOTAL WILL BE $400

Treasurer Hedges Sends in More than Amount Originally Asked

When complete returns are made on Oregon City's collection for the war library fund the total will be close to $400 according to Joseph E. Hedges, treasurer of the fund here. Tuesday Mr. Hedges forwarded to the central committee $332.40 as the major part of the collection in this city. The city was asked by the local committee to donate $300.

PIONEER MARKER ON OLD OREGON TRAIL

D. A. R. UNVEILING CEREMONY
TO BE HELD HERE ON NEXT SATURDAY

At the intersection of the old Oregon trail, over which many pioneers found their way into the new west of 50 years ago, and the Abernathy creek, the Daughters of the American Revolution are to unveil a marker on Saturday afternoon. The event will be attended with appropriate ceremonies conducted by the organization and a number of prominent men and women are to be here for the occasion. The marker will stand directly in front of Mayor E. C. Hackett's home.

The marker will be presented by Mrs. W. H. T. Green, regent of Willamette chapter, D. A. R. to Mrs. I. L. Patterson, state regent. It will be unveiled by Miss Ruby Starkweather and Miss Esther Scott, members of pioneer Oregon families. Miss Starkweather is a daughter of a '46 family and Miss Scott is a daughter of Mrs. W. D. Scott, chairman of the Children's society.

Mayor E. C. Hackett will make an address on behalf of Oregon City and W. H. Dufur, president of the Pioneer association, will speak for that organization. George H. Himes, secretary of the Oregon Historical society, will also speak. Mrs. E. A. Scott will read an original poem written for this particular occasion by June McMillan Ordway. Miss Metta Brown will have charge of the musical program and Dr. W. T. Milliken of the Oregon City Baptist church will lead the devotional exercise.

LOYAL CITIZENS BRING VICTORY'S DAY CLOSER

Declaring that "we owe it to those who are to do the fighting to stand behind them loyally, and bring near the day of victory," Governor Withycombe Wednesday issued a proclamation designating the week of October 14 to 20 as patriotic week, and urging the citizens of the state to invest their money liberally in Liberty bonds.

"Oregon's share of the fund required is from $16,500,000 to $24,000,000," says the proclamation. "This sum is too large to be raised without the co-operation of the whole people. Every Oregonian with an income should consider it a duty and privilege to purchase one or more bonds, in proportion to his means. The government asks us not to contribute, but to invest. There is no safer investment in the world than a loan to the United States. Oregon has thus far responded to every appeal. We have given the flower of our young manhood. Let us not be a sordid people; let us not place a greater store by our money than by our men. If our people can only be aroused to the necessities of the situation we cannot fail to have the co-operation which will spell success."

L. EBY SUFFERS UNDER WHEELS OF LIGHT AUTO

Loosened teeth, a broken jawbone and several cuts and bruises were sustained Monday evening by Louis Eby, a young woolen mill employee, when he was knocked down and run over by a small automobile. The young man had just left work at the woolen mills and was starting up the street on a bicycle when the automobile turned sharply into Main street and collided with the cyclist. Eby was thrown a considerable distance and two wheels of the car passed over his head. The injury to the young man's leg prevented him from telling the details of the accident, but it was learned that the car which ran over him, was driven by a Portland woman.

FRENCH RETURNS GUN

Insane Man's Weapon With Which He Threatened Parents Returned

Chief of Police Lee French on Saturday returned to the dealer, the gun and ammunition bought by Norman Seller after his release from the state hospital and with which he was threatening the lives of his parents when arrested some time ago. Seller, following his release from the asylum, worked for a short time in Portland and with his first money bought a high power rifle and a box of shells. After he had been arrested for brandishing the loaded gun menacingly near his parents, he was taken to Portland to undergo an operation to relieve the pressure on his brain.

VAUGHNS NOT GUILTY

Suit to Recover Hotel Property Denied for Renters

A verdict for the defense was returned in Judge Campbell's court here Monday after the trial of the case of Mrs. Cassie Evans Fuller against T. J. and Florence Vaughn, occupants of the Cottage hotel property at Canby, of which Mrs. Fuller was formerly in active charge. Mrs. Fuller charged the Vaughns with holding the property forcibly and the jury found for the defendants.

TALES OF MEN OF NORTHERN LANDS

FORT YUKON MOST NORTHERLY INHABITED PLACE IN UNITED STATES

SUMMER DAYS HAVE NO END

Country Where Man and Elements Constantly War. Gruesome Stories of Starvation

(M. J. Brown)

In the afternoon our boat crossed the Arctic Circle and in the evening we landed at Fort Yukon—the land of the midnight sun.

If you will look at your map of Alaska you will see that north of Fort Yukon there is nothing—not a habitation, not a dot, just one waste of white and desolation to the Arctic ocean.

North there is nothing but distance—the greatest silence of the map maker. It seemed to me that the little town on the banks of the Yukon was the last place on earth—the place where the white man could go no farther.

Two or three stores, a mission and a cluster of Indian cabins, that was Fort Yukon. A few white men, two missionaries, and no women. It was desolation, a place remote from civilization—a silent habitation of the great north.

Two weeks earlier we would have seen the midnight sun. As it was Old Sol went down for a little while, and before there was any sign of twilight or darkness, up he rose and started upon another 23-hour shift. It was all so unreal, so mysterious, so uncanny. It made me feel as if I was in some far away country. I could not appreciate I was in the United States under the Stars and Stripes.

There is no night in the Arctic circle in summer—darkness never comes. For three months there is almost continuous daylight, and the people make the most of it to prepare for the terrible winter that will soon set in, when there will be months of absolute darkness, and when a cold will come down over this north land, so intense at times that no animal can live in the open.

Fort Yukon is a trading point and supply station for the Indian trappers. Once there was an army post there, in the days of the gold stampede to Nome. But today, like all other Alaskan towns, it is going back. When the rush stopped, when the great tidal wave buried the rich gold diggings on the Nome beach, then the need for soldiers in this God-forsaken spot was past, and they were transferred.

"Do white men ever go north of here?" I asked a trader. "Yes, thousands of them have gone up every year," he answered. "Prospectors have traveled to the headwaters of Chandler and Porcupine rivers and their branches, far up into the Endicott, but the trouble is they don't carry outfit enough, they haven't got enough cash, and they have to start on the back track for grub about as soon as they get there."

And then he sat on the counter and explained the gold game to me. These men are so willing to talk to a newcomer. It is a treat to them.

He told me there was gold in the land north, and there wasn't any doubt about it. He said two prospectors picked up nuggets at the middle fork of the Chandler that weighed from $500 each, "but," he said, "the country is as spotted as a leopard's hide and men can't take the time to find the pockets."

He explained in detail the handicaps of the prospectors. With a small dog team two men would start out with all the supplies they could carry. Or they would start out with a boat in the summer time. He said there were no roads and few trails and it was terribly difficult to prospect, and that when a man had got to his destination and had started to work on a prospect, then his grub was running out and he must return. He said some day men with capital would "grubstake an outfit right" and then "there will be a strike that will make Bettles look sick." Bettles is a producing mining camp about 150 miles west of Fort Yukon at the headwaters of the Koyukuk.

The trader told me a graphic story of a tragedy that happened just before the break up this spring that illustrates what men have to stack up against in this forbidding land.

Two prospectors came in, outfitted with packs, and started up the Chandler. About 25 miles out the river winds like the letter U. It is 80 miles around the bend and 25 miles across the portage, and there is a trail. Both men were young, hardy, and had had years of roughing it in Alaska. One of them, he said was Tom Wheeler of St. Louis. He had forgotten the other's name.

In a blinding blizzard they missed the trail that cut across the high bend in the river, so they followed the stream day after day when the

BOYS WANT GOODIES OF MOTHERS' MAKING

COTTON NOT GOOD FOOD AND THE CORN IS TOUGH
KENT WILSON SAYS

"Once in awhile some of those wonderful home-made things to eat." That is what the Oregon boys at Camp Greene, Charlotte, North Carolina, want more than anything else. This is a plea for some of the goodies from mother's kitchen voiced by Sergeant Kent Wilson, son of Sheriff and Mrs. W. J. Wilson of Oregon City. Kent, who is a sergeant in the medical department with the Oregon troops, says in a letter received by his parents this week: "The only things that grow down here are cotton and corn. We can't eat the cotton and the corn is as tough as leather."

Kent finds the southern negroes interesting characters and tells of one coal-black gentleman who heard the boys were from Oregon. "What's dat?" the negro asked. "Is dat up in Vagin?" And the maidens of the southland—the white lassies whose dispositions are usually as sunny as home skies—Kent tells of them, too, in the following letter:

"I have just been watching a crowd of negroes working. They sing all the time while they are at work—as soon as the singing stops, the work stops. They certainly are interesting. One big negro, (they call them all negroes here, not COONS), asked me 'Wha' you-all from?' I told him Oregon, and then he said 'Is dat up in Vagin?'"

"The funny part of it is, all the people here talk just like negroes, too. Coming down on the train one of the boys said to a girl out of the window: 'You talk just like a negro.' 'Well!' she said, 'that is bettah than talking lak' a Yankee.'"

"This is 'some camp'; just loads upon loads of men, row after row of tents, and buildings innumerable. They say you can walk for three days and never get around the camp. It covers 50,000 acres. Just to give you an idea of its immensity, the Quartermaster says that as soon as all the men are here it will take 3,000 tons of food a day to feed them."

The weather here is ideal in the daytime, but the nights are awfully cold. You wake up about three in the morning and think sure you are in Clackamas, but thank heaven, the rain is absent.

"The city of Charlotte is three miles from camp. It is certainly different from the western towns—it's a regular church town. Just think—69 churches in the place. You have to go to church to meet anyone, for down here in the south you absolutely have to have an introduction to a person in order to talk to them. So, Sunday we are all going to 'doff' up and go to church."

"We are no longer the 3rd Oregon but the 162 infantry, 81st brigade, 41st division U. S. N. G.—some title, uh? Everything is military here; they are drilling the men 8 hours a day, and only allow them out of camp on Wednesday afternoons, Saturday evening and Sundays—and they absolutely have to be in camp every night at 10 o'clock."

"I can't think of anything I want you to send me except once in awhile some of those 'wonderful home-made things to eat'! The only things they grow here are cotton and corn, and we can't eat the cotton and the corn is as tough as leather."

PUBLIC RECEPTION FOR NATIONAL ARMY QUOTA

Judge Grant B. Dimick presided at the public reception given Thursday night to the 21 recruits and five alternates who compose the quota of soldiers which left here Friday morning for the national army cantonment at American Lake. An interesting program was featured by the address of District Attorney Gilbert L. Hedges and the vocal selections of Mrs. Carl Moore and James Chinn. George A. Harding, Civil war veteran and member of Meade post, G. A. R., closed the program with a story of military affairs during the Civil war and of the departure of the Oregon City company of which he was a member. The entire quota of 21 men reported to Sheriff Wilson Thursday noon and the five alternates were dismissed. The men who left Friday morning were allowed to spend the night at their homes where these were near enough to permit them to return next morning. The quota left here in charge of Maynard Cole and Ferdinand A. Scott.

ELKS SEND GLOVES

Reading Matter and Sporting Goods Go to Capt. Williams

The Oregon City lodge, B. P. O. Elks, Friday night voted to present magazines from its reading room and a set of boxing gloves to the soldiers at the national army cantonment at American Lake. The books and gloves will be forwarded to Captain Harry E. Williams, past exalted ruler of the local lodge. Captain Williams and Philip Hammond, leading knight of the local lodge, are among the Oregon City Elks at American Lake.

SAVING OF FOOD WILL BE TALKED

PLANS FOR SERIES OF CONSERVATION MEETINGS IN OREGON CITY

JUDGE APPOINTS ASSISTANTS

Committee Includes Members from All Parts of County. Public Meeting to be Held

A public meeting at the Commercial club will be a feature of the food conservation day program to be held in Oregon City on October 20, at which O. M. Plummer, assistant state food dictator, and Mrs. Millie Trumbull of Portland will speak. The first meeting of the day will be that of the county conservation committee at 9:30. An hour later Mr. Plummer will talk on "Why and How to Conserve Food," to an audience in the high school auditorium.

Following the high school conference luncheon will be served to the visitors and committee at the high school, the Flechtner orchestra will render selections and Mrs. Millie Trumbull of Portland will speak on "Child Conservation," under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher association. The county committee will hold a conference later in the afternoon. The meeting at the school and that to be held at the Commercial club in the evening are designed to arouse interest in the food conservation program of the week following October 20.

Judge H. S. Anderson of the county court is chairman of the county conservation commission and he has announced the appointment of the following committee chairman: John F. Risley, industrial labor; J. L. Kruse, farm labor; W. P. Hawley, manufacturers; Philip Hult, lumber; H. E. Cross, transportation; Sheriff W. J. Wilson, home defenses; E. H. Brodie, publicity; Dr. L. A. Morris, sanitation, medicine and morals; O. D. Eby, finance and law.

The food supply and conservation committee, including members from all parts of the county, is composed as follows: H. E. Gibson, Barton; C. E. Spence, Beaver Creek; Albert Erickson, Mulino; H. Trabue, Clackamas; J. G. Dregnie, Barlow; J. W. Draper, West Linn; O. E. Freytag, Gladstone; H. G. Starkweather, Oak Grove; W. S. Corbett, Colton; E. L. Pope, Parkplace; Paul R. Meinig, Sandy; F. P. Stangel, Wilsonville; O. W. Boring, Boring; John Bickner, Oswego; Philip Streib, Milwaukie; Judge Grant B. Dimick, Oregon City; A. O. Whitcomb, Estacada; T. H. Bair, Canby; A. W. Albright, Marquam; Otis Dougherty, Molalla; H. J. Rastall, Dickey Prairie, and A. H. Gribble, Mackaburg.

IT IS SOME HEN

Mrs. C. W. Miller, of Cherryville, owns one of the most remarkable hens in Oregon. The hen was hatched on December 27, last. It began laying when 4 months and 18 days old, and laid an egg a day for 28 days. Soon afterward bid-dy showed a desire to set, and being encouraged by Mrs. Miller, who placed 11 eggs under her, she hatched nine little chicks at the age of 6 months and 10 days. Mrs. Miller says the hen is "of no particular breed."

WOULD GUARD ESTATES

Mrs. Ellen C. Smith Seeks Papers for Late Husband and a Son

Ellen C. Smith, widow of John C. Smith, who died on September 25, Friday filed a petition for letters of administration in her late husband's estate. Mrs. Smith, who lives at Boring, and two sons and two daughters are heirs to the estate. Mrs. Smith also asks to be named administratrix of the estate of James Carlfield Smith, who died at Wallace, Idaho, on February 1, 1916.

Fred A. Calger Friday petitioned the county court for letters of administration in the estate of his brother, Emil R. Calger, who died on September 29. The estate is valued at $1500 and includes 31 acres of land in sections 2 and 3, T. 3 S., R. 2 E.

The will of William H. Hance was filed for probate Friday. It covers an estate valued at $1850 in land and personal property. The entire estate is bequeathed to a nephew, Maurice D. Hance, and wife, of Barton.

Powers Gets Verdict

A jury in Judge Campbell's court on Saturday found a verdict for G. A. Powers in his suit against Fred Alt for possession of 63½ cords of wood. The order signed by Judge Campbell calls upon Alt to pay Powers $178.50 in case the wood cannot be delivered to him.

PROMINENT TALKERS PREACH PATRIOTISM

MILLER AND BOWERMAN WILL HOLD LIBERTY BOND
MEETINGS IN COUNTY

Clackamas county's Liberty bond campaign will have added impetus after the visits and speeches of Milton A. Miller and Jay Bowerman prominent Oregonians, who will be among us next week. These gentlemen come to the county to arouse its people to a patriotic support of the second Liberty loan and they have scheduled a series of three public meetings during what has been designated as Liberty week by a proclamation made by Governor Withycombe.

The nation needs $16,500,000 of Oregon's money, and would like to get as much as $24,500,000 if possible. Clackamas county's share of this as one of the populous counties of the state, is large. Returns at local banks already show a remarkable support of the second bond issue which is providing money for the purchase of America's freedom. Local speakers have taken a great interest in the sale of Liberty bonds and through the Four Minute men have spoken to many county seat audiences. The Portland men, however, will take the bond campaign to other parts of the county as well as Oregon City.

The speakers will be at Oregon City on Monday at 7:30. On Tuesday evening at the same hour they will speak at Canby and the final meeting of the series will be held at Molalla at 7:30 on Wednesday evening. Mr. Miller is collector of internal revenue for Oregon and Jay Bowerman is a prominent attorney. He was once acting governor and later a candidate for that office after the death of the late Governor Benson.

GAMBLING AND LIQUOR ARE HUBBY'S UNDOING

Liquor and gambling are among the things that are alleged to have caused the matrimonial tangle of Rose and Hugh Mulkins and the result is a divorce complaint filed here Tuesday. Mrs. Mulkins charged her husband with cruelty and says that his conduct forced her to leave him on November 12, 1911. He took most of the available money, she says, and spent it for liquor and card games. They were married at The Dalles on October 29, 1908, and one child was born to them. The little one died. Mrs. Mulkins wants to resume her maiden name, Rose Callaghan.

Josephine Mathers, married to Martin L. Mathers, at Portland on November 27, 1906, charges her husband with desertion in a complaint filed in Judge Campbell's court Tuesday. He left her and their two children on March 11, 1915. Mrs. Mathers charges. She wants custody of the children.

Judge Campbell Tuesday signed a decree separating Lelah R. and Philip H. Tucker. Mrs. Tucker had her maiden name, Lelah Graves, restored to her.

KRAFT CONTINUES HIS EFFORTS FOR RELEASE

August Staehley, father-in-law of Jacob C. Kraft, who is at American Lake with the Clackamas county quota, Friday attempted to open, before the local board, the Kraft case, which has been passed upon by local and district boards, Adjutant General George A. White and United States Attorney Reames. Staehley met with little success before the local board and has gone to the adjutant general with a request that the latter instruct the local board to again take up the matter of dismissing his son-in-law, who is a Swiss subject, from military service.

Jacob Carl Kraft, living near Oregon City, owns 40 acres of choice farming land, and has lived in America since he was 6 years old. He is now 24 years old. Kraft was born in Russia, although he is a subject of Switzerland. At the time he was called before the board he fought to impress upon that body his claim for exemption on the ground that he was an alien. The board went to the highest authority in Oregon before it finally denied the claim and certified the young man for service. Kraft has two or three brothers, each owning 40 acres of land near his own, yet he enhances his exemption plea with the statement that his crops will be lost if he does not get out of the army. He left here for American Lake with the first 40 per cent quota on September 21. He was notified some time before to report for service, and on September 13 he appeared and secured a marriage license. On that day he married Emma Staehley, daughter of the American citizen who is now fighting for the young man's release.

Marriage License

A marriage license was issued here on Saturday to Theresa Carlson, of Berkeley, Cal., and F. A. Davis, a Scotts Mills farmer.

The Courier and The Oregon Farmer, one year for $1.
