

BOND SALE PICKS UP OVER COUNTY

PRO-GERMAN DISTRICT INVESTS HEAVILY IN LOAN. COMMITTEES WORK

HAWLEY SUBSCRIBES MUCH

Many Communities Respond to Personal Solicitation of Local Businessmen

W. P. Hawley, Sr., president of the Hawley Pulp & Paper Co., yesterday wired from California a subscription of $25,000 for Liberty bonds. The deal was handled by Willard P. Hawley, Jr., who is in charge of the business here in his father's absence. The Hawley mill employees yesterday added to Mr. Hawley's subscription by buying $2500 worth of bonds during two hours of personal solicitation by Henry Henningson, who canvassed among the men.

Armed with patriotic arguments, Oregon City businessmen yesterday invaded other sections of Clackamas county and made a clean sweep in the cause of Liberty bonds and democracy for the world. Although their sales were not the greatest of the day, the four men working in the country between the county seat and Sandy, which is considered a stronghold of pro-German sentiment in the county, have the most startling report to make. In that field bond subscriptions in the sum of $2600 were taken. The solicitors were Justice of the Peace John N. Sievers, C. W. Robey, William Hammond and Rev. C. H. L. Chandler.

Canvassing for bond sales in the Tualatin district at the same time were C. Schuebel and Livy Stipp and their total sales amounted to $5100. Mr. Schuebel will return to the district next Monday evening to address a Liberty bond meeting. George Tracy, Jr., L. E. Jones and Dr. A. L. Bente sold bonds yesterday about Beaver Creek and another group including William Stone and E. E. Brodie worked in the Redland country. W. A. Huntley and L. Adams devoted their attentions to Canby and New Era. A. A. Price and O. D. Eby were at Molalla, where they organized a local campaign committee of 13 members to carry on work similar to that started in this city.

In the Cottrell and Sandy districts the four men working found a strong pro-German sentiment in many cases. In certain instances this was effectively overcome and the sale of a bond was made, but in spite of the sentiment a total subscription of $2600 is reported. The Clackamas County Bank at Sandy bought another $1000 bond and County Commissioner Proctor, who is interested in the bank, added a $500 bond to his collection. The bank already owns $15,000 worth of bonds, bought in the first issue. M. A. Deaton, cashier, assisted in the solicitation of Sandy people, who have more than tripled their quota of bond purchases. Not content, the district threatens to subscribe an additional $2000 to the loan before the end of the campaign.

Among the purchasers of bonds from the Cottrell and Sandy committee were: W. A. Procter, Frank Beers, Alice Seales, Ruth Revenue, Anna McGugin, Alice McGugin, Melvin Smith, E. R. Leaf, P. T. Shelley, Paul R. Meinig, Alice M. Mackey, Arthur C. Baumbach, W. F. Krebs, Mary C. Wolf, Gilbert Hauglum, Max Kligel and the Clackamas County bank.

The campaign committee organized at Molalla by A. A. Price and O. D. Eby includes the following names: G. H. Gregory, Frank Dicken, G. J. Taylor, W. A. Shaver, M. J. Cockrell, W. A. Beck, L. W. Robbins, F. G. Havemann, W. W. Everhart, G. V. Adams, Rev. Mr. Snyder and Mr. Park, and Mr. Worth. The committee expects to more than double Molalla's present subscription before the end of the campaign.

The committee working in the Tualatin country, including C. Schuebel and Livy Stipp, sold a total of $5100 worth of bonds. They report active assistance by Charles Thompson of Stafford and report subscriptions of $200 each from Dr. Jobse and J. L. Kruse and the sale of $800 worth to Homer Kruse. Applications for $4350 worth of bonds had already been filed with the Farmers' Bank at Wilsonville, and the committee's report does not include any part of that.

PLANS FOR WALK OUT DO NOT MATERIALIZE

ARBITRATION PROBABLY WILL END LABOR DIFFICULTY AT CROWN MILLS HERE

The proposed strike of Crown-Willamette Paper Company employees, which was to have resulted in a general walk-out last evening, was called off at the last minute by the unions and many conflicting rumors are heard to account for the action. It is said, on one hand, that the unions have had no definite word from the state conciliation board; another rumor has it that the San Francisco office of the company has agreed to submit its problems to a board of arbitration, in which event the unions agreed not to publish their strike order.

The mill workers had voted unanimously to walk out on Wednesday in case the mill company refused to consider a demand for increases of 25 cents a day in the pay of all men and the payment of time and a half for overtime. Reports yesterday had it that the mills had made ready, under orders from headquarters at San Francisco, for an indefinite inoperation. Other reports said that the company would have to grant the demands inasmuch as Canadian law required the confiscation of inoperative plants, and out of sympathy for the local strike Canadian workmen would walk out of mills owned by the same company in Canada.

The matter is entirely in the hands of the San Francisco office, officials here say, and any action there cannot be anticipated at this end. B. T. McBain, local manager, has refused for some time to meet union delegations and what little business can be done at this end is taken up with the Portland offices by union committees.

SEVEN MORE CALLED TO NATIONAL ARMY CAMP

Clackamas county's final quota of 15 per cent of the first draft list will leave here for American Lake, Wash., about November 4, according to County Clerk Harrington and Sheriff Wilson, who late last week received orders to hold the men in readiness. The order calls for them to report here on November 2, but they will in all probability report on November 3 and depart the following day. The final quota will include seven men, and they will be selected from the 15 men who are certified for service. The certified list in the county is larger than was necessary to fill the county's quota because of injuries and illness of certain men who were unable to be examined at the time they were called, but who have since reported for duty.

Those called to fill the last demand of the first draft are: Ray Leigh Francisco, Oregon City, who will have charge of the party between here and Camp Lewis; Ennis Sherman Townsend, Bull Run; Walter Sidney Smith, Mulino; Harry Crawford Reid, Estacada; John William McCubbin, Oregon City; Lile Dalley, Oregon City; Herbert W. Holmes, Milwaukie. The alternates are: Russell C. Scramlin, Aurora, and David Humphrey Thomas, Oregon City.

BOYS ARE CAUGHT

To answer a charge of obstructing railway trains by pulling air valves on the cars of a freight train, John Dozier, Allen Hutchinson and W. E. Maple, Canemah youths, were brought here Tuesday. Dozier and Hutchinson were turned over to juvenile authorities and Maple was released by Justice of the Peace Sievers after pleading guilty and paying a $25 fine. The trio is said to have derailed a freight, which narrowly averted a collision with a passenger train one night last week, when they pulled air brakes and locked the brakes on every car on the train.

ably the largest single subscription reported in the county. Mr. Hawley is touring in California, but was not too busy to remember his great share in the county's work of raising its quota for liberty.

In addition to the subscription of Mr. Hawley, the employees of the mill here yesterday made application for $2500 worth of bonds as a result of the personal solicitation directed by Henry Henningson. Mr. Henningson spent two hours among the men and gathered in that much money. He says it only is an indication of what the employees will do before the end of the loan campaign. He expects that the amount will be more than doubled by that time.

It appears that the county has about $100,000 more to sell to complete its quota of $300,000. The First National bank has reported the sale to date of $85,000 worth of bonds and announces that the figure will be closer to $100,000 before the end of the week. Other banks in Oregon City and elsewhere in the county will have reports proportionately as large as that of the First National. It is said that a subscription from a local business man totals $10,000, but his name has not been made known as yet.

STARKWEATHER IS FIRST CANDIDATE

PROMINENT DEMOCRAT SEEKS ROBES OF STATE FROM GOV. WITHYCOMBE

HAS GREAT MANY FRIENDS

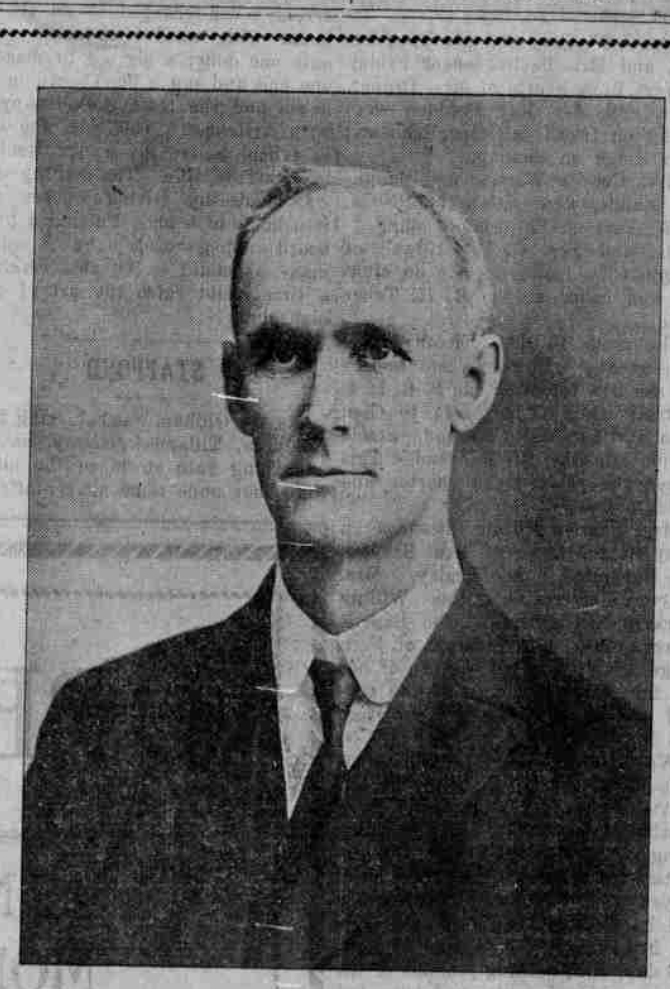

Political Pot Boils. Republicans Absorb Most of the Lime-light. Brodie In

The first avowed candidate for the office of governor is Harvey G. Starkweather, prominent Clackamas county democrat, who cast his hat into the political ring yesterday. And with Mr. Starkweather's announcement the political pot proceeds to boil merrily.

Harvey Starkweather is one of the best known of Clackamas county's citizens. He is a son of a pioneer family, has spent most of his life in this county, is a heavy taxpayer and prominent in business circles of Oregon City and Portland. He was once county school superintendent and has a statewide reputation as an educator. He will enter the 1918 primaries with a circle of friends that extends from corner to corner of Oregon, where he is well-known for the many public works he has taken an active part in.

Mr. Starkweather was one of the delegates appointed by Governor Oswald West to study the rural credit systems of Europe and it was from the report which he and Prof. Hector MacPherson of the O. A. C. brought back from the present war-torn nations across the waters that the famous Oregon rural credit system and laws were evolved. He took an active part in advancing the cause of the rural credit bill in this state last year.

In addition to his intensive activities on behalf of the state as a whole, Mr. Starkweather is prominent in grange work in his home county and elsewhere and numbers among his friends a greater number of farmers, probably, than any other one man in the state, unless it be C. E. Spence, master of the state grange. He is a regent of the State Normal school at Monmouth, an appointment that is a recognition of his efforts to develop the schools of this county and state.

The candidate is a resident of Concord Station, this county, but his interests are throughout the state. He has property holdings in many sections, and one of the most important of these is his share in a big Broadway building at Broadway and Morrison streets, Portland.

In speaking of Mr. Starkweather's candidacy yesterday afternoon, Joseph E. Hedges, a lifelong friend and himself a well-known democrat, said: "I am delighted at the announcement Harvey Starkweather has made. There is not a man in Oregon who would make a better, more capable governor. He deserves the united support of every voter in the state who is anxious to see fair and impartial government in Oregon, the support of every voter who wants a clean, capable administration in the hands of a clean and capable man."

The political goulash of Oregon will contain the names of Governor James Withycombe and Gus Moser, the latter of Portland, seeking the

MILLER WOULD HAVE COUNTY CLERK'S JOB

SHERIFF TO RUN AGAIN. ACTION OF OTHER OFFICIALS HARD TO ANTICIPATE

In connection with announcements of candidates for state political berths, come those of Clackamas county candidates, who will seek honors from the voters at the primary elections next spring. From a forecast of the county situation, it appears that there will be a merry contest for the several positions.

Fred A. Miller, for three years chief deputy in the office of County Clerk Iva Harrington, this morning announced his candidacy for the office upon the retirement of Miss Harrington, who has declined to heed the friends who would have her run for the third term. Miss Harrington has been a capable official and Mr. Miller has been her understudy throughout her terms in office. He is a strong republican, and has taken complete charge of the affairs of the office upon several occasions during Miss Harrington's absence. He has had full charge of all naturalization work and records, among the other duties of the office. Mr. Miller will have at least one republican opponent although he is the only one to have made a public announcement.

Sheriff William J. Wilson, republican incumbent, will be a candidate for a third term in that office. It has been said that his republican opponent will probably be D. E. Frost, present deputy sheriff and constable for the judicial district.

The intentions of Treasurer M. E. Dunn, County Surveyor H. H. Johnson and Commissioner Adam Knight, who will complete the second term of their respective incumbencies next year, have not been made public. At least one or more of these officers, however, will be candidates for a third term. Just who will oppose them is as yet a matter of pure speculation, although a number are known to look with envious eyes upon the positions. Dudley C. Boyles, county recorder, and W. W. Everhart, assessor, are finishing their first term in office and both will be candidates for another term.

COMMISSIONER'S YARN NOT EXACT

S. BENSON FAILED TO INFORM HIMSELF BEFORE HE SPREAD STORY

JUDGE ANDERSON ANSWERS

Court Shows Great Sums Have Been Spent in Road Dist. 35 on Bluff Road

"Those people have taxed themselves to the very limit that they may have roads over which to carry out their farm products and keep in touch with the other communities. The Clackamas county court has not helped them and is mainly absorbed in building roads around Oregon City. These people have raised their own funds and have gone ahead and built the road without supervision and general advice and the result is quite surprising."—Statement by Simon Benson, state highway commissioner, published in the Oregonian and reprinted in The Courier last Thursday.

This statement by S. Benson is branded as utterly false by figures in the records of the county court, and Judge H. S. Anderson calls attention to many of Mr. Benson's errors in the following statement. It appears on court records that the people of road district 35, which is that through which the Bluff road in question passes, have spent about 500 per cent more of the county court's money, raised by general taxation, than they were entitled to. Commissioner Benson must admit the falsity of his statement, given wide circulation by the Oregonian, in the face of this fact.

District 35 has a valuation of $159,231.82, on which was raised by taxation and returned to the district $756.83. This sum represents the 70 per cent which goes to the road district after deducting 30 per cent for the general county road fund. The general road fund has already been called upon to pay $3683.48 to district 35 over and above the $756.83 which is its share of the tax levy. The overdraw on the fund of the district will be larger before the end of the year. The district raised $1433.09 by special levies. It appears, then, that in the face of Commissioner Benson's misinformation on Monday night, every school child has something to do in the conservation program. Either Friday or Monday each pupil in the city schools will write a personal invitation to his or her parents urging them to attend the rousing public meeting on Monday evening. In addition to this each child will carry home food pledge cards and will see that parents sign and return them, pledging their households to do everything possible in the cause of conservation. The children also will take home the membership cards in the food conservation league, to be displayed in each house in the city.

The 70 per cent of the assessment in the district amounted to $756.83. By July that amount had been entirely spent and an overdraft of $854.39, more than the original share of the district, was listed. Overdrafts for August amount to $1270.03. In addition to these sums, in addition to the original return on the levy and in addition to the funds raised by special levy, the county court paid the following sums to district 35 from the general road fund, made up of the 30 per cent held by the court from the full tax of each district: June, $44.50; July, $786.35; August, $622.70; September, $55.51. And there will be other demands upon the general fund before the end of the year. These figures prove that Commissioner Benson, favored by the powers that be in state government, utterly failed to attempt to inform himself before he spread such a story as he did.

In a statement made to The Courier on Tuesday County Judge Anderson said:

"The article published in The Courier of October 18, under the caption of 'Benson praises the spirit of Eastern Clackamas County' and which purports to be an interview with F. W. Vogler and S. Benson, which was published in the Sunday Oregonian, October 14, seems to need some correction. We fully agree in the statement that the residents of the locality referred to deserve praise for their progressive spirit in road construction, having levied special road tax upon their property more than once in addition to the general county levy, but the statement made by Mr. Benson saying 'The Clackamas county court has not helped them and is mainly absorbed in building roads around Oregon City,' is not true. It is a matter of little concern to the county court of Clackamas county what the opinion of the automobile wind-jammers from Portland may be about Clackamas county roads, or the fairness of the county court, but this attempt to prejudice one part of our county against another and against the court we are inclined to resent."

Mr. Benson's illustrated article in the great Portland daily is a good illustration of the fact that the most unreasonable grumblers about roads and road management are those who get the use of the roads and wear them out at little or no cost to themselves.

DIVORCE CASE AGAINST CADIZ PRATT REOPENED

The divorce suit of Mrs. Sarah Bell Pratt against Cadiz Pratt was reopened Tuesday when the default of the latter was entered upon circuit court records at the instance of Mrs. Pratt, who is confined to the hospital here, suffering from injuries inflicted by her husband when he struck her on the head with a heavy iron bar. Mrs. Pratt sued for a divorce last July, but it did not come before the court for action until Tuesday, when Mr. Pratt's default was entered. The couple continued to live together at Paradise corners until the tragedy, which nearly caused the wife's death. Her complaint charges Pratt with cruel and inhuman treatment, non-support and repeated threats to take her life. His cruelty is said to have reached its climax a month ago when, after a long quarrel, he felled Mrs. Pratt with a vicious blow from an iron bar. Pratt is held in the county jail on an open charge and his case is before the grand jury in session this week.

Mary Janesch Friday brought suit against M. C. and Frances H. Davis to recover on a mortgage note for $2500 dated at Portland on June 24, 1914. The complaint asks interest on the sum and attorney fees.

PUBLIC HELP ASKED IN SAVING SUPPLIES

MONDAY NIGHT NOTED SPEAKERS WILL TALK ON CONSERVATION OF FOODS

Food conservation will be the subject of song, story, essay and speech in Clackamas county next week, and campaign managers and others interested are doing everything in their power to bring to the attention of homekeepers everywhere the great importance of conserving every bite of food that can be saved consistent with good health.

Every school house in the county will be the scene of a lively food conservation meeting on some evening next week, if the effort that J. E. Calavan, county school superintendent, is putting forth now, bears fruit. Mr. Calavan has enlisted a score of speakers to address audiences at school houses throughout the county and he has written letters to school boards and teachers urging them to arrange meetings and secure speakers for the conservation campaign.

Mr. Calavan calls attention to the fact that many people have proved themselves impassive upon this question, which is growing to be of utmost importance to the United States and her allies in the great war. The official points out that it will be necessary to conserve 14,000,000 bushels of wheat, or in any event, to add that much to our production during the next year. This is just an instance of the great things America is called upon to do as her part in the war, and that cannot be done, Mr. Calavan says, unless every man, woman and child in the nation does his or her part for the cause. Prominent speakers from this city and Portland will address schools in the county, and those who are not provided with outside speakers are asked to see to the success of their own meetings beyond the plans made by Mr. Calavan and his assistant, Brenton Vedder.

The campaign in Oregon City, in charge of F. J. Toozie, city school superintendent, has assumed big proportions. The climax will be a general public meeting at the court house on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. This meeting is to be addressed by prominent speakers, probably including J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of public instruction. Mr. Toozie is making an effort to bring ex-Governor Oswald West to Oregon City for the occasion.

The schools are taking a big part in the campaign, and aside from the fact that the high school orchestra will render music at the public meeting on Monday night, every school child has something to do in the conservation program. Either Friday or Monday each pupil in the city schools will write a personal invitation to his or her parents urging them to attend the rousing public meeting on Monday evening. In addition to this each child will carry home food pledge cards and will see that parents sign and return them, pledging their households to do everything possible in the cause of conservation. The children also will take home the membership cards in the food conservation league, to be displayed in each house in the city.

At the meeting on Monday night the speakers will occupy much attention, but Miss Zoe Brown, head of the domestic science department of the local high school, has a feature that should attract housewives. Miss Brown will prepare a list of substitute foods for those which should be conserved. Miss Brown will also discuss briefly the preparation of such foods.

WIFE CHARGES FRAUD IN SECURING DECREE

In an affidavit presented in the circuit court Friday, Ethel Beers alleges that her former husband, George E. Beers, who secured a divorce decree a short time ago, made false charges against her and deceived her in order to get the decree. The husband is said to have told his wife that he wanted her to get the divorce and brought her to the office of an attorney to prepare her complaint. At the office of the attorney, however, Mrs. Beers was served with papers in the action brought against her by her husband. She, not knowing the nature of the papers and presuming that they were handed her by some one in the employ of the attorney, returned to her home and the next she heard of the matter was that her husband had obtained a decree.

Mrs. Beers says she complained about the business and her husband and the attorney told her she could secure the decree, but that it would cost more money if brought in her name. But the decree was granted to her husband before she had time to act. She now asks to have the case reopened so that she may deny the false charges against her and contest the case. The couple was married at Portland on December 24, 1914, and in his complaint the husband charged wrongful relations, said his wife had a nagging disposition and cited instances of late hours she is said to have kept when away from home.

LIVE WIRES GET VARIED SUBJECTS

GOAT FARM, LIBERTY BONDS AND CONSERVATION ARE THEMES OF SPEAKERS

GOAT EXPERT FAVORS PLAN

School Officials Emphasize the Importance of Food Conservation Campaign

Liberty bonds, angora goats and food conservation absorbed an hour of the time of Oregon City businessmen at the regular meeting of the Live Wires of the Commercial club on Tuesday. In importance the Liberty bonds came first to the attention of the organization. John R. Humphrys and Judge Grant B. Dimick talked bonds. Judge Dimick told of his tour about the state in the interest of the Liberty loan and included a report on a meeting held in a Tillamook county lumber camp, where 80 hardened men of the woods, after a 15-minute talk, subscribed $1200 to the loan.

One of the subscribers was a huge German-American who effectively removed the hyphen by buying a bond with his meagre savings. He willingly gave his little mite, the judge said, to help the world in whipping the kaiser. In his talk, J. R. Humphrys said that the banks of Oregon City were anxious to do anything in their power to make possible the purchase of bonds. A proposal to have businessmen accept bonds at par in trade for merchandise was made by A. A. Price. L. Adams and G. J. Taylor, a visitor, spoke on this phase of the question.

F. J. Toozie, city school superintendent, and J. E. Calavan, superintendent of county schools, spoke on food conservation. Mr. Toozie explored the lack of interest in the conservation meetings last Saturday and called attention to the meeting next Monday and those to be held during the week in rural schools. A committee including W. A. Huntley, D. F. Skene, F. J. Toozie and A. C. Howland, was appointed to interest a group of speakers for the district meetings.

Mr. Calavan, in his talk, said the people of the county were impassive on this very important question and pointed out the necessity of saving or growing 14,000,000 bushels more of wheat than were saved or grown last year. He objected to a story in a Canby paper which criticized the efforts of the food administration and brought out many timely arguments for the great need of conserving food for the fighting men.

A. C. Gabe, an authority on the angora goat industry, presented a highly interesting demonstration and made a splendid talk on behalf of the goat farm the Wires propose to establish. He showed samples of mohair and pointed out the effects of feeding upon the growth of wool. He was brought to Oregon City by Judge Dimick, who is the originator of the goat demonstration farm idea. Mr. Gabe gave Judge Dimick credit for having the right ideas about the goat business, in that he considered the three essentials to success in starting in the business; namely, breeding, market and range. The angora goat industry should be separated from the sheep business, Mr. Gabe said. He called attention to the fact that one goat in two years would so clear an acre of ground that only blasting stumps would be necessary in order to prepare the soil for cultivation. The goat business is in its infancy and its possibilities are not even guessed, the speaker said.

The next meeting of the Live Wires will be a practical demonstration of food conservation. The features of the menu will be war bread and beans, the latter grown on the club's demonstration farm at Mount Pleasant. White bread will be eliminated from the table for the one meal at least.

YOUNG WOMAN GETS A VERY SERIOUS INJURY

A fractured skull and a broken nose are the result of Christina Iola's automobile ride on Saturday afternoon. The car in which Miss Iola and Ruth Felling, of Estacada, were riding with three soldiers from Clackamas, overturned on a curve in the road near Logan when a front tire was "shot." One of the soldiers, F. C. Kirgbaum, was thrown from the machine with such force as to knock him unconscious, but he recovered within a short time. The injured young woman was hurried to the Oregon City hospital, where her condition was considered serious. The other two soldiers in the machine were Clifford Upham and Alfred Hargreaves, both stationed at Camp Withycombe, Clackamas station.

No other paper in Clackamas county publishes as much Clackamas county news as The Courier.
