ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Makes delicious muffins, cakes and coarse flour breads

CORN MEAL MUFFINS

3/4 cup corn meal
1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 level teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons shortening

Mix thoroughly dry ingredients; add milk and melted shortening and beat well. Bake in greased muffin tin in hot oven about 20 minutes.

NUT BREAD

3 cups graham flour
5 level teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 1/2 cups milk and water
1 cup sugar or corn syrup
1 cup chopped nuts (not too fine) or 1 cup raisins, washed and floured

Mix together flour, baking powder and salt; add milk and water, sugar or corn syrup and nuts or raisins. Put into greased loaf pan, allow to stand 30 minutes in warm place. Bake in moderate oven 40 to 45 minutes.

BABY WANDERS

Tiny Tot Entertained by Officials About Court House

Eunice Fairclough, a 3-year-old adventuress, received much attention from officials about the court house Tuesday afternoon while waiting for her mother to claim her. The little lass was found on the road near Parkplace and told Morris Goldman, who brought her to the sheriff's office, that she was going to her mother and pointed toward Clackamas Heights. The mother had once taken the girl to that place and she decided that the parent was there again. The mother was at home, however, worrying about the babe's disappearance. Between bites of ice cream and candy, with which she was supplied by Mayor E. C. Hackett and others about the court house, the baby told her name and Mayor Hackett communicated with her mother, Mrs. James Fairclough.

Safe Diamond Buying

After all, the real safety in buying diamonds lies in your choice of a diamond house.

Since 1880 Burmeister & Andresen have maintained leadership in diamond merchandising in Clackamas County.

This has been due in a measure to financial strength, with consequent cash buying power—but most of all to the full confidence of the public which this institution enjoys.

Buy carefully, safely, satisfactorily—buy Burmeister & Andresen diamonds.

"We can't give too much. Nothing is too good for our soldier boys. If they could have feather beds and every thing, it wouldn't be too much."

W. A. Sellwood, the Y. M. C. A. secretary for the hospital writes: "There are soldiers in the hospital who are only homesick. A motherly or sisterly letter, or some little token sent to these boys, would do them a world of good."

Any thing sent in his care to Camp Lewis will reach the lonely boys in camp and hospital.

AMERICA SPEAKS

Oregon's official Liberty Loan campaign verse by William T. Perkins of Portland.

Ye sons of Freedom, bring to me With flaming hearts and bended knee Your offering to Liberty!

Ye are my sons; my bounteous breast Hath nourished you, and on you prest Its richest gifts; nor sought I rest.

Gaze now upon thy golden fields; Mark how the earth its fruitage yields Beneath the star-strewn flag that shields.

Behold thy cities, proud and strong; Behold thy homes, where evening Ascends to heaven, free from wrong.

My noble sons! awake! arise! Behold sad Europe's smoking skies; Gird ye my limbs ere Freedom dies.

Think now of Belgium's fields of red; Behold where stricken France hath bled; Remember Lusitania's dead.

My sons! my sons! your hearts I know; Bring, then, thy gifts and let me go With blazing sword, to meet the foe.

BOYS AT CAMP MILLS

ARE HAVING BIG TIME

George Kohl, popular Logan youth man who is with company E, 117th United States engineers, stationed at Camp Mills, Long Island, New York, writes the following interesting letter to Logan friends:

I received your letter some time ago, and I guess you thought I had forgotten you. Such not being the case I thought I'd better take time to write. I am not drilling this afternoon so that gives me a little time. I am half way laid up with a sore arm from the vaccination. We have all had one of the typhoid inoculations.

We do not get very much time to ourselves here. It's get up at 5:30, exercise till 6, then breakfast, then police duty till 7 and out for drill at 8. We get back from drill at 11:45 and just have time to wash up for dinner at 12. Then we go out again at 1 and get back at 4:45. We then have a few minutes to dash the dirt off our faces and fall in for retreat ceremonies and rifle inspection. At 6 we have supper and by the time we get through it's dark. It seems to get dark earlier here than in old Oregon.

I was in New York the night of the 15th and just kept going all night seeing the sights. I didn't go to Coney Island, but some of the boys who went there said it was a very dirty place. I have the same opinion of New York. Broadway is any better lighted than the streets of Portland, which are cleaner. Went through Chinatown and the Bowery just to see if it came up to its western reputation. But I don't think it does. Part of the city seems to be inhabited almost wholly by foreigners of the money-grabbing class, and places of business run by them, both here and in the west, are only too eager to soak a soldier for more than the value of things he buys. However, I can't say I've been a victim yet.

The things that interested me most in New York were the subways and the elevated roads. I rode on both just for the experience. On some of the streets the roadways are completely covered by the elevated, making them dark and gloomy. When we came here we passed under New York, stopped at the Pennsylvania station, the biggest station in the world, and it is some institution, even under the ground. It takes between six and seven minutes to pass through each of the tunnels between Jersey City and Manhattan, and Brooklyn.

We saw some fine country and certainly had fine weather to enjoy on the way. I didn't see any place on the way that came up to old Oregon till we struck Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. They certainly had some fine looking crops there.

Long Island is somewhat larger than I thought it was. It's about 100 miles long and 30 miles wide. We are about ten miles from the coast. The island is just full of villages and cities. There are a lot of summer homes of wealthy New York people here. Some of the land is very fertile but here in Hempstead Plains it is nearly barren. It is a gravelly top soil and pure gravel under that. It is something like the American Lake camp in that respect.

I was over to Hempstead a few evenings ago and also to Mineola, both towns, or villages, as these are called here, are filled with soldiers, and no wonder, as there are more than 30,000 camped on Hempstead Plains.

When the regiments march in and out of camp they look like an army. There are lots of southerners here and it's easy to tell them by their talk. The towns around here are patrolled by military police and it is funny to hear the southerners tell the people: "You all move on."

It's a fine day and the air machines are buzzing to beat the band. Wish you could be here to see them. They keep up a continual roar overhead, though they have ceased to be of interest now. One of them was buzzing around at 4:30 this morning. It must be pretty cold up there at that time of day. There was a frost this morning and the air was bracing. But it doesn't seem as cold as it was at American Lake.

New regiments are coming in every day and several companies are putting up their tents within a stone's throw of this one, now. We are getting better "hash" than before and I've been feeling fine until this vaccination and inoculation stuff grabbed hold of me. Army life seems to agree with me. I think I've been getting fatter since we have been here.

We had our final physical examination last Tuesday. It was a heart and lung test. I got by all O. K., so guess I won't die for a little while. I think there will be nearly 30 men discharged from this company. Only three failed in the exam. Those who have been on sick report on account of flat feet and rheumatism will be examined tomorrow. It will bring it up to nearly 30. There are few cases of "cold feet" in the camp.

According to reports we leave here soon for the other side (details omitted at request of censor. Editor), for training before we meet the Boche. We can hardly believe that and hope we don't have to wait too long.

We have several cases of mumps in this company and this morning one of the men, who was in quarantine and was released, woke up with a couple of big jowls. And the funny part of it is that he slept in my squad tent last night. But they are not going to quarantine us as it is so near sailing time. The "bird" who has it, though, is now in the hospital.

With best regards and "hello" to all the folks, your friend,

FRANK KOHL.

TO CONSERVE FOOD

Meetings Well Attended. Will Hold District Gatherings

A feature of the food conservation meetings here on Saturday was a decision to hold district meetings in every school house in the county on Monday evening of next week. Speakers will be enlisted for the great task from Oregon City and elsewhere in the county. O. M. Plummer and Mrs. Millie Trumbull, of Portland, were the chief speakers at the series of meetings held during the day here. The first session was held at the high school, where a luncheon was served by the domestic science classes, and other meetings were held during the afternoon and evening at the Commercial club. The County Council of Defense, of which County Judge H. S. Anderson is chairman, took an official interest in the meetings.
