

CORRESPONDENCE—Continued

(Continued from Page 2)

We are getting compensation for the long dismal spell of weather we had last winter and spring.

Archie Averill has been employed as a draughtsman on the municipal docks of Portland. Strange they didn't secure some costly technically educated young man, but his work was right.

Ray Murray will soon begin the erection of a bungalow on his place near the school house.

The fall season has been very favorable for road work, and all kinds of work, for that matter.

Garabed, the discoverer of free energy, and upon whose invention the government has secured an exclusive option, says he can light, heat and cook for an ordinary family at less expense than running a cook stove. Goodnight, John D!

Cherryville has plank sidewalks five miles long. What do you know about that? Some city all right.

We are getting right to the front and when the hard surface is put in running around the loop at Mount Hood, connecting us with the Columbia highway, we will be on the map in great shape.

EAGLE CREEK

Mrs. Martha Dauchy is visiting with Eagle Creek relatives.

Mrs. M. E. Judd is staying with her daughter, Mrs. John Douglass.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Douglass were Oregon City and Portland visitors Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holder and Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Morgan, of Eastacada, were dinner guests at the home of J. P. Woodie Sunday.

Eagle Creek grange met Saturday with about 40 members present. After partaking of a bountiful chicken dinner a very interesting meeting was held. R. J. Werner, county agriculturist, was present and gave a talk on the lime situation. The lecturer, Mrs. Phillips, had a very good program.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Thomas, Mrs. Annie Littlepage and James Bill, of Sandy, and Frank Ewing, of Springfield, were grange visitors last Saturday.

Murray and Carl Clark were Portland visitors on Sunday.

Mrs. Viola Douglass visited with her sister, Mrs. A. W. Cooke, of Damascus, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollander were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Orke Sunday.

W. B. Baker, who has been a resident of Eagle Creek for many years, died on Saturday, October 20, and was taken to his last resting place on Monday afternoon, October 22. Funeral services were held at the Eagle Creek church, Pastor Weld, of Springfield, officiating. There were quite a number of people out to pay their last respects to the deceased. Mr. Baker leaves three sons, Henry S., Louis and Alexander Baker, to mourn his death. The sympathy of all friends is extended to the bereaved ones.

H. S. Gibson bought some cattle of Mr. Marston last week.

Mrs. Annie Beckett was a Portland visitor Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Serranons, of Sellwood, were guests at the home of E. Naylor, Sunday.

Mrs. Updegrave and son, Charles, and Mr. Morrison, came down to Mrs. Viola Douglass' last week and made some cider.

S. A. Douglass was in Eagle Creek the first of the week.

TWILIGHT

A heavy white frost Wednesday morning fixed "spuds" for digging, and placed a coat of mourning on tomato vines.

F. E. Jones recently marketed 12 Duroc Jersey hogs that surely indicated the master hand in feed and attention. They averaged 240 pounds and in appearance resembled show stock.

Parents of our soldier boys in France all received letters from their sons the past week. They all wrote cheerful suggestions of their French surroundings and camp connections.

With Germany in possession of Russia and her vast resources, it will be in order for war prophets to extend their vision on the duration of hostilities.

Grapes are plentiful this season, and why more of us are not possessors of a few vines is unexplainable.

The Spicers now occupy their new bungalow on Rose Avenue.

Miss Ray McCord, of San Francisco, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William McCord.

It is not generally known to others than stock men, but some pigs are much more cleanly than others. Unfortunately the same conditions present themselves in the human family.

Potato diggers come high, $2.50 per day, and as yet few tubers are coming out.

The unfortunate condition of Russia can but mean an extension of the Kaiser's days. Great quantities of food stuffs will no doubt fall into the hands of the Germans as a result of their invasion.

A representative pucker and a representative banker accuse the farmer of hogging the wheat and potato markets by withholding their products. With exception of oil, no greater trust prevails than the meat combine. With the farmer there is no combination and their acceptance of market offerings is compulsory. With $2 wheat we must have $15 to $18 pork, or stop feeding and the farmer has nothing to do with the wheat basis. Spuds are as yet largely in the ground with offerings barely remunerative to the grower, and a sluggish market at that. Pat Cudahy had better confine himself to his slaughter pens and Banker Bennett to his boards of gold in the counting room, arrange-ing for spellers outside their calling to accuse the farmer for restraint of trade.

The six year old daughter, Alberta, of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mead, died of spinal meningitis Friday, October 19, interment taking place at the Canby cemetery the following Sunday.

The school teacher, Miss Miller, is making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Swick.

The club dance at the hall Saturday night was a very enjoyable gathering to those participating. The music was good and perfect order was maintained.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Last Friday afternoon the neighbors and relatives of Mrs. James Shelly met at her home on Hazel street to remind her of her birthday. The afternoon was pleasantly passed in a social manner and at four o'clock refreshments were served.

Mrs. Shelly received quite a number of presents, including flowers. All wished her many returns of the day. The following women were present: Mesdames Henrici, Egman, Dora Shelly, Schotz, Lewellen, Welsh, Gallinger, Hickman, Scott, Fairclough, Gibson, Van Hoy, Rose, Beard, May, Van Auker, Scouton, Brown, Dollie Hollenbeck, Wanda Hickman, Gilbert Terry.

Miss Ruby Gibson represented the Sunday school of the Little White church at the Sunday school convention at Wilsonville last Friday and Saturday. Mrs. Singletary also attended as a delegate from the Oregon City M. E. church.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson, late owners of the Lillian apartment house on Sixth street, Portland, have disposed of the same and are investing in Oregon City realty. They bought one acre adjoining the white church and expect to improve and build on it in the near future.

A class from the M. E. church was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Scouton last Friday evening at their home on Duane street. The rooms were decorated with pretty flowers. The evening passed in games and music. Refreshments were served and about 15 young people were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Darling returned Saturday from a two-months' visit in Iowa and Idaho, both much improved in health.

Mrs. Ed May returned from eastern Washington, where she visited a son for a few weeks.

Mrs. Maggie Harrington arrived home Tuesday from Salem and other points, where she had visited several weeks.

EAST CLACKAMAS

Mrs. J. W. Bennett and daughter, Lucile, were Portland shoppers Monday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Kelnhofer and sons were Carus country visitors last Sunday.

The E. C. S. C. gave the first of a series of parties at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wansbrough last Saturday night.

Mrs. L. Erickson was on the sick list a few days last week but is up and around again.

Mr. Paleraus was looking after property interests in this vicinity last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Boyer, Earl Boyer and Edna Boyer were Sunday evening visitors with Mr. and Mrs. L. Kelnhofer last Sunday.

H. S. Bruce, wife and daughter, were Oregon City visitors last Monday.

G. Haberlach delivered a load of grapes to Portland parties last Tuesday.

A couple of our west side young folks went to Logan last Saturday night to visit a couple of dear friends located in that neck of the woods.

H. Kliney, Otto Kliney and Emelia Kliney motored to Portland Thursday evening of last week to see one of the shows.

Mr. and Mrs. Kliney were Columbia highway tourists last Sunday.

"Grandma" Kelnhofer visited at Carus last Sunday.

Mrs. H. Sandstone and son of Portland and Areline Haworth were in our vicinity last Saturday.

Last Wednesday officers in the E. C. S. C. were elected as follows: Mrs. A. C. Kelnhofer, president; Mrs. Frank Haberlach, vice president; Mrs. E. R. Boyer, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. L. Rasmussen, librarian. The meeting was well attended.

Mr. Editor, you will have to sit up and take notice of how the scribbles spruced up on their writings. It plainly shows that competition is the life of trade. We hope they will not lag in the future. Keep it up, good people; do not be quitters because I am.

HIGHLAND

T. Cornwell made a business trip to Oregon City Tuesday. R. B. Mason is on the sick list. J. Wallace and August Martin were business visitors at Portland Monday.

J. Schram was an Oregon City visitor the latter part of last week. Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Kandle, who spent the last two weeks at the coast, returned home last week and reported a very pleasant trip.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Roth returned home from southern Oregon Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Kandle entertained Saturday evening for the Misses Annie Schmidt, Ethel Mason, Mae McNaught, Josephine Adams and Messrs. J. Smith, Albert Burner, Will Schmidt.

Mrs. J. Hanhart was a Beaver Creek visitor Monday.

Mrs. Schmidt is visiting friends in Portland.

Mrs. F. Cornwell is visiting her parents in Seattle.

SERVING TIME IN AN ALASKA TOWN

(M. J. Brown)

(Continued from Last Week)

After seven days the steamer Alice came in. It arrived in the night and early the next morning I paid my bill took my grip and went aboard. The big gang plank was not yet down, only a long, limber plank, about a foot wide. It took some nerve to walk it, but I was desperate to get aboard—and I made it safely.

The purser was just getting up. I presented my ticket. He looked over his list, handed it back and remarked: "Nothing doing, full up." In vain I argued I had a through ticket, and must go on that boat or I would miss the Umatilla at St. Michaels. "Can't take you, everything full. See the agent."

Again I negotiated the narrow plank and found the "agent," and I insisted that I had a through return ticket and it was up to the company to give me passage, but he said the best he could was a "standee." This he explained was a canvass covering, with some blankets, and the passenger could hunt his place on the lower deck—he could sleep on the wood pile. It didn't do any good to protest that my ticket was not steerage—take it or leave it.

Then the purser came ashore and sang a ditty of hope to me. He said I simply could not endure a "standee" for four days and nights, but he said the Sarah was due in three days; she was an oil burner and didn't have to stop for wood; she would go down empty and would not have any long stops, and she would make the Umatilla with time to spare.

I went again to the agent and he sang the same song. I showed him my ticket and asked him if it was good on the Victoria, if the Umatilla was missed, and he answered me it was good on either line and pointed out the printed provisions, good on either the Alaska or Pacific Steamship Companies from St. Michaels to Seattle. But he assured me there would be no doubt about making the Umatilla, "no doubt at all."

And right here I want to remark that after a boat leaves Dawson, everything is chance. Nobody knows anything positive. Each steamer runs to its division point and none know anything about what is ahead, what time a boat will get in or out, or what connections will be made. At the same time there is a river Masonry, to which every boat official and employee is in good standing, and the passengers are told what they want to hear—assured that everything will turn out just as they want it to go.

So I was pumped full of hope and decided to wait—or rather it was decided for me. Several others, among them my friend Wilson, were in the same fix, so we sat on the bank and watched the Alice depart.

Later I learned that the steamer was packed with locals, prisoners and court witnesses, who were going down to Holy Cross or some other official town, and that through passengers were sidetracked to give them passage.

And we went back to our misery—back to serve another term.

I noted the men on the street began to address me as "Doctor." "Good morning Doctor," they would greet me, or "how do you find business, Doctor?" Finally I held up a man and asked what the big joke was. He said there wasn't any joke that he knew of, but that I was Doctor Brown, a traveling dentist. Then I discovered there was another Brown in town, a tooth-jerk who went from house to house, pulling and plugging. Then Wilson dubbed me "Doctor Brown" and it stuck to me for many days.

There is no money smaller than two-bits in Alaska and no purchase can be made for a less sum. If you buy a trifling article, for instance a package of chewing gum, you will be handed three packages and charged a quarter. If tourists have small change in their clothes they ditch it until they get back outside. Lay down two dimes and a nickel and the merchant will take it, but the way he will look at you plainly says, "he's pretty near all in."

Three days later the Sarah paddled in and our spirits revived, only to be shower bathed by the official announcement that it would not leave until a boat got in from Fairbanks with some empty barges, so the passengers on board came ashore and we had some new faces for a change, so for two days more we walked the bent, fought mosquitoes and tried to pass away the hours.

In a drawer on the registering desk at the hotel I found an old tattered, coverless book, "Puddin' Head Wilson." I had read it years ago, but I pounced on it with glee. One after another of the passengers would ask me to let them have it after I had finished it. I carried it to my room with me nights for safe keeping.

One appreciated treat we had in Tananana, each afternoon a wireless bulletin was received from the government radio station at the fort. It was only a skeleton of the most important world events, but it was a link to former civilization, waited for and welcomed. For this service the six saloons of the 200 population town paid $6 per month each.

Usually when the bulletin came in the bartender would read it aloud. He would comment on the most important dispatches, and the crowd would chew over them and argue. And between the discussions and serving drinks the bulletin would last for some time. And then in turn every fellow had to read it over for himself.

At first I would listen with keen interest to the talk of the prospectors, as hour after hour they would tell each other of the prospects hard luck, hopes, etc., but after a time I hated the very word "mine," and I would leave the room to get away from the talk.

After five days more of servitude it was announced that the Sarah would leave that night, and passengers could come aboard. About 550 came in from different places, and the one question was, "Will we reach St. Michael in time to catch the Umatilla?" More than half of them did not care to go outside on this boat, as they were booked for the inside passage, but all were anxious to get across the bay to Nome, for as one who had made the trip before said, "God pity us if we have to wait ten days in St. Mike."

But everyone from the captain to the deck hands assured us "To be sure you will catch it. If we are late she will wait—she always does." Yet there was not a man on board who knew, or would admit he did, what date the Umatilla was scheduled to sail.

Tananana was the first and only town on the Yukon river that was not going back. There wasn't much to go back there. A bakery had tried it and given up the ghost, and a jewelry store had the same appearance of waiting for a foreclosure. The Northern Commercial Co., which has branch stores in nearly every river town, had all the trade. When the six saloons are put out of business January 1, I wonder what the rough necks will do for a home. That "it will be hell" was the general verdict.

As I sat in a deck chair, waiting for the steamer to move and blot out this nightmare of a river town, a lady tourist sat down beside me, and asked if this was my first trip down the Yukon.

"No ma'am," I answered, "IT IS MY LAST."

We had been in that town an even two weeks, and ever since I have had a heap of sympathy for Napoleon.

showed bathed by the official announcement that it would not leave until a boat got in from Fairbanks with some empty barges, so the passengers on board came ashore and we had some new faces for a change, so for two days more we walked the bent, fought mosquitoes and tried to pass away the hours.

In a drawer on the registering desk at the hotel I found an old tattered, coverless book, "Puddin' Head Wilson." I had read it years ago, but I pounced on it with glee. One after another of the passengers would ask me to let them have it after I had finished it. I carried it to my room with me nights for safe keeping.

One appreciated treat we had in Tananana, each afternoon a wireless bulletin was received from the government radio station at the fort. It was only a skeleton of the most important world events, but it was a link to former civilization, waited for and welcomed. For this service the six saloons of the 200 population town paid $6 per month each.

Usually when the bulletin came in the bartender would read it aloud. He would comment on the most important dispatches, and the crowd would chew over them and argue. And between the discussions and serving drinks the bulletin would last for some time. And then in turn every fellow had to read it over for himself.

At first I would listen with keen interest to the talk of the prospectors, as hour after hour they would tell each other of the prospects hard luck, hopes, etc., but after a time I hated the very word "mine," and I would leave the room to get away from the talk.

After five days more of servitude it was announced that the Sarah would leave that night, and passengers could come aboard. About 550 came in from different places, and the one question was, "Will we reach St. Michael in time to catch the Umatilla?" More than half of them did not care to go outside on this boat, as they were booked for the inside passage, but all were anxious to get across the bay to Nome, for as one who had made the trip before said, "God pity us if we have to wait ten days in St. Mike."

But everyone from the captain to the deck hands assured us "To be sure you will catch it. If we are late she will wait—she always does." Yet there was not a man on board who knew, or would admit he did, what date the Umatilla was scheduled to sail.

Tananana was the first and only town on the Yukon river that was not going back. There wasn't much to go back there. A bakery had tried it and given up the ghost, and a jewelry store had the same appearance of waiting for a foreclosure. The Northern Commercial Co., which has branch stores in nearly every river town, had all the trade. When the six saloons are put out of business January 1, I wonder what the rough necks will do for a home. That "it will be hell" was the general verdict.

As I sat in a deck chair, waiting for the steamer to move and blot out this nightmare of a river town, a lady tourist sat down beside me, and asked if this was my first trip down the Yukon.

"No ma'am," I answered, "IT IS MY LAST."

We had been in that town an even two weeks, and ever since I have had a heap of sympathy for Napoleon.

HE PAID HIS SUB

Before the hairs of his head were gray and when the enthusiasm of young manhood was at its height, G. R. H. Miller of Oregon City tramped over the ground that now gives quarter to the soldiers of the United States army at American Lake, Wash. Mr. Miller's mission in those good old days was the same as the missions of the thousands of young men at American Lake today—war.

His war, though, was against the red skin, whose evil depredations had thrown fear into hearts of settlers of western wilds. Mr. Miller helped to quiet the spirit of the Indian—the boys at American Lake now will help to put the skids under Kaiser "Bill."

Mr. Miller came into the COURIER office this week to pay his subscription to the best weekly newspaper in Oregon. It was long after the days of the Indian uprisings that The Courier came into being, and Mr. Miller is credited with helping this paper to ward its present thriftiness.

He was once interested in the business and before that he used sturdy young muscles in pulling the roller on the ancient hand press that printed The Courier before the present highly modern machinery was installed.

W. A. HUNTLEY VISITS LOCAL BOYS AT LAKE

W. A. Huntley Oregon City businessman, motored to Camp Lewis, American Lake, Wash., last week and spent some time finding the Clackamas county boys who are members of the great force stationed there. The confusion that prevails there for a stranger made the task of visiting all the soldiers from this city and county a most difficult one, for Mr. Huntley found streets without names and buildings without numbers. When one knows the camp Store Opens Daily at 8:30 A. M. Saturdays at 9 A. M.

The Most in Value

The Best in Quality

Store Closes Daily at 5:30 P. M. Saturdays at 6 P. M.

Robert Bros. THIRD & MORRISON

Pacific Phone: Marshall 5080

THE MOST IN VALUE—

—THE BEST IN QUALITY.

Home Phone: A 2112

"THE STORE THAT UNDERSELLS BECAUSE IT SELLS FOR CASH"

Another Great Showing of

Women's Smart Fall Suits

In Latest Fashions at

$13.95 to $40.00

Without any exaggeration these groups represent the finest and most stylish suits in town. They have come direct from the fashion center and from manufacturers who are authorities on Women's Fashions.

Featured are clever reproductions and adaptations from French ateliers, embracing both mannish type and costume suits. There are many distinctive and individual models, and the collection includes all the season's favored materials, as well as all fashionable colors and style features.

The moderate prices at which we have marked these suits will be found to be equally as attractive as the garments themselves.

Come, at your earliest opportunity, and profit by an immediate selection.

LION SPECIAL

SUITS — OVERCOATS — RAINCOATS

at these prices offer the most your money can buy in

Quality, Style, Fit and Lasting Satisfaction

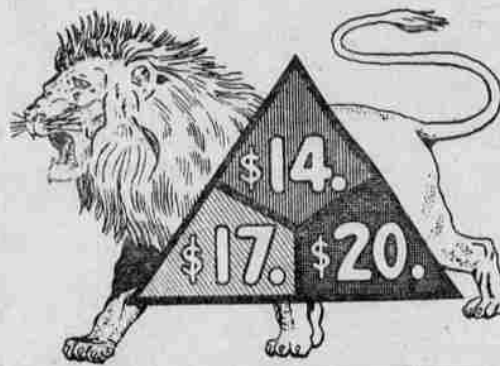

The long standing dependability of this concern is back of everything you buy for men and boys wear.

Two Stores in Portland—Morrison at Fourth and 166 Third St.

Lion Clothing Co.

GUS KUHN, President

"The Kuppenheimer House in Portland"

city it probably would be simple to find one's way about through the sea of buildings that has been erected on the shores of the lake, Mr. Huntley said.

The young men whom he visited appear, as a general rule, to be in fine health and good spirits, many of them with only the thought of "going over the top" after the Kaiser in mind. Capt. Harry Williams, Philip L. Hammond and Charles R. Moulton were among the Oregon City boys who Mr. Huntley succeeded in finding in the brief time he had to spend at the great camp. He was especially impressed with the magnitude of the military city that exists at Camp Lewis, and with the appearance of the men who are rapidly becoming real soldiers under the guidance of their well trained officers.

Courier and Daily Journal—$4.75.

Cut This Out—It Is Worth Money

DON'T MISS THIS. Cut out this slip, enclose with 5c and mail it to Foley & Co., 2835 Sheffield Ave., Chicago, Ill., writing your name and address clearly. You will receive in return a trial package containing Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, for coughs, colds and croup; Foley Kidney Pills, for pain in sides and back, rheumatism, backache, kidney and bladder ailments; and Foley Cathartic Tablets, a wholesome and thoroughly cleansing cathartic for constipation, biliousness, headache and sluggish bowels.—Jones Drug Co.

LARGE SHOW COMING

Oldest Man and Woman in Quaker Show Audience Get Prize

The amusement loving public will be pleased to hear that we are going to have with us next week the Big Quaker Show at the Oregon City opera house, this company consists of ten star performers and offer to the public the best that can be had in public class vaudeville acts, during aerial acts, marvelous educated dogs and funny farce comedies. The admission Monday evening will be free, the oldest lady and gentleman in the audience Monday evening will each receive a valuable present. Children must be accompanied by their parents on the first night.

Successful Service

The Scandinavian service at the Methodist church last Sunday afternoon was well attended and new members joined the church. The pastor, Rev. John Oval, is very hopeful for the future of the Scandinavian work in this city.

The Real Test is Now Before Us

BUY A LIBERTY BOND

Over 500 Clackamas County boys have gone to WAR.

YOU must help the UNITED STATES to feed them, to clothe them, to protect them, to bring them back soon.

The best way you can do this is to BUY A LIBERTY BOND.

BUY ONE FOR YOURSELF. BUY ONE FOR YOUR SON.

Do not let our boys go thinking that YOU HAVE NOT DONE YOUR BEST TO BACK THEM UP.

Go to one of the TEN BANKS in Clackamas County and BUY a BOND today.

CLACKAMAS COUNTY MUST RAISE $300,000 BOND SALES by Saturday Night.

This Bank and its TRULY PATRIOTIC PATRONS have subscribed $82,600.00 in 4% Liberty Bonds to date.

The First National Bank

OREGON CITY, OREGON