RECRUITING LOCALLY STOPS TEMPORARILY

GANTENBEIN WISHES OFFICERS
TO ASSIST IN ENLISTING
FOR THIRD OREGON

Local activity in connection with the organization of a volunteer infantry company to be a part of the regiment in course of formation in this state by Colonel C. U. Gantenbein, has come to a halt, temporarily and perhaps finally, as a result of the letter sent to all officers of the proposed regiment by its commanding officer late last week.

In Oregon City the letter and other things caused the abandonment of the recruiting office that had been established and a cessation of all efforts to add others to the list of 46 names of men and youths willing to join a volunteer company. The men themselves foresee no immediate prospect of border or foreign service and the spirit that prompted them to ally themselves with Colonel Gantenbein's regiment is in repose until such a time as actual enlistment is asked for.

The war department has announced that no troops shall move from this state, except the men now assembling at Clackamas to fill up the ranks of the Third Infantry and other Oregon units now on the border, until congress increases the quota of troops for this state. In other parts of the state, according to the statement of Colonel Gantenbein, a number of his prospective recruits have enlisted in the Third Infantry and will go to the border as soon as enough men have enlisted to make the chartering of a troop train possible. A congressional enactment will be necessary, in any event, before volunteer troops can be called out.

The letter from Colonel Gantenbein to his officers says, in part:

"Refute all stories of a controversy between myself, or the proposed regiment, and General White of the Third Oregon. I started the organization of this regiment under an agreement with General White, and allowed him to designate the date on which enrolling was to begin.

"Moreover, it has been and is our policy to support the regiment now at the front in every way. You are instructed to urge any men, enrolled with you, who desire active service immediately, to enlist for the Third Oregon. Please assist in the recruiting of that regiment wherever you can. We are working for the best interests of Oregon in our undertaking.

"At present we have 1,148 signatures for the organization, a sufficient proof of the widespread confidence in the undertaking. I am satisfied that in the event of a call for troops the regiment would be recruited to war strength in a rush.

"Our slogan is preparedness. We fully believe that sooner or later there will be a call for troops to aid in intervening in and pacifying Mexico. When it comes we should be ready."

YOUTH COMMITTED

Gladstone Youngster Steals Bicycle and Goes to Reform School

Arthur McKinnis, 14-year-old Gladstone youngster, was sent to the state reform school at Salem on Monday by County Judge Anderson because of his incorrigibility. Arthur and his cousin, Robert McKinnis, stole two bicycles from a Gladstone home last week and were taken in charge soon after by Sheriff Wilson.

The cousins maintained their innocence by saying that the wheels had been given to them, but when Judge Anderson questioned Arthur on Monday the youth confessed and was ordered to Salem. This commitment came after his sixth appearance in the juvenile court.

Robert was to have been given a hearing yesterday afternoon but he did not appear at the county judge's office. It is not thought probable that Robert will be sentenced to the reform school as this is one of his first offenses.

IMAGINES FACE TWISTED

Sheriff Incarcerates Man Supposedly Insane. To Be Tried

Steve Zassey, of Milwaukie, imagines that the dentist who worked upon his teeth at Oakland, Cal., some time ago, put his face all out of shape; so badly out of shape, in fact, that Mr. Zassey suffers from lack of company, for, he says, no one will associate with him because of his facial appearance. Mr. Zassey is the only person who notices the distortion, as his face appears to be normal.

Zassey was arrested last yesterday at Milwaukie by Deputy Sheriff Riley and was taken into custody last night by Sheriff Wilson. A charge of insanity, leading to a medical examination, will be filed against him today.

Students Released

Several members of Company G. O. N. G., doing patrol duty on the Mexican border, will be released from service early in September if the troops are not mustered out before that time, as a result of a decision of the war department this week effecting student soldiers. The department has decided to allow college and high school students with the troops to return to their school work at the beginning of the next term.

TAXES TRIPLE IN THE PAST DECADE

ASSESSOR JACK SAYS BLAME IS UPON PEOPLE, AND NOT UPON COURT

U. S. RESERVES HALF COUNTY

Road District Taxation Brings County
$312,909.58 Through Court and Special Levy

Taxes in Clackamas county have increased more than 386 per cent in the last ten years; taxation brought the county, all funds included, $211,622.48 in 1905 and $312,909.58 in 1915. The special road district taxes of the county have increased 2,576 per cent in a decade. And for all of this the county court is responsible for only a small fraction, while the voters are directly to blame for the greater part of it.

These are statements made by County Assessor J. E. Jack, in an address before the Eastern Clackamas Taxpayers' league at Barton school house on Monday evening on the subject of "Assessment and Taxation."

"The increase in tax assessment is not the fault of the county court, as most people are anxious to believe, or of any other group or person connected with taxation, but blame should rest directly upon the people of the county and state," said Mr. Jack.

Figures showing the percentage of increase in taxation within the past decade were presented by Mr. Jack, who, with E. F. Riley of Portland addressed the taxpayers' meeting.

Mr. Jack brought his statements home to his audience by dealing in facts concerning Clackamas county and showed the extent of and the reason for the tax increase in the ten year period closed with the assessment of 1915. This increase amounts to an average of 917.5 per cent. The compilations of the county assessor are astounding, but they serve to refute absolutely the belief that taxpayers love to cherish to the effect that their government, their county court, their school district officers or other groups or individuals are responsible for the heavy increase in the assessment each year. Average annual increase in the Clackamas county assessment for all purposes has been very close to 40 per cent, according to Mr. Jack's compilations.

The following tabulations, showing the exact sum of the increase and the source of the same, was prepared by Mr. Jack. It will be noticed that in the summary of taxes for 1905 the poll tax is included and in 1915 the timber patrol tax is included. If the poll tax were omitted from the compilation the increase of 1915 over 1905 would be considerably larger.

Taxes for 1905
Poll Tax.....	$ 1,180.00
State School, Road, etc.....	171,078.03
Special School tax.....	26,087.93
Special Road tax.....	2,625.60
Special City tax.....	10,650.92
Total tax for 1905.....	$211,622.48

Taxes for 1915
State, school, road, etc.....	$ 545,916.57
Special School tax.....	141,711.38
Special Road tax.....	70,281.28
Special City tax.....	61,075.55
Timber Patrol tax.....	334.53

Total tax for 1915.....	$819,318.99
Increase in Taxes for 10 Years State, School, Road, etc. (by county levy) 214 per cent.
Special School tax (by vote of people) 443 per cent.
Special Road tax (by vote of people) 2,576 per cent.
Special City tax (by vote of people) 473 per cent.
Total per cent increase, 386 per cent.

From these figures it is evident that Mr. Jack's statement as to the blame for the increase is undoubtedly correct. The county court has increased taxation in its department in 10 years to the extent of 214 per cent, while the people themselves have voted an increase, which they have in their direct control through the ballot, amounting to 652 per cent. There is little wonder that the good citizens of Barton exclaimed aloud in their amazement when these facts were presented to them.

The greatest increase has been in the road department, and the entire amount of the increase has been voted by the people. The same good folk are those who complain about the increase, according to tax authorities here. In this department the total increase in the past decade has been 2,576 per cent. That is in contrast to the total increase for all county court expenditures in all departments of 214 per cent. In 1905 road assessments amounted to $70,281.28.

In connection with the increase in the road department Mr. Jack told his audience at Barton that tax shaving would produce greater results all around in any other department and he advised voters to leave the road business alone that the good work of improvement might go on. He encouraged economy in all departments

JUDGE DECIDES DRY LAW IS VIOLATION

CIRCUIT JUDGE MORROW MAKES DECISION EFFECTING
PROHIBITION

Circuit Judge Morrow Tuesday rendered decision from his bench in Portland overruling demurrer to the complaint in the suit of Wadhams & Co. against the San Francisco & Portland Steamship Co., which, in the opinion of the district attorney of Multnomah county, practically puts Oregon's prohibition law out of business if the decision should be sustained by the higher courts.

Judge Morrow holds that the provision of the prohibition law limiting to wholesale druggists the right to import alcohol in large quantities is in violation of the interstate commerce clause of the federal constitution. He holds that any genuine manufacturer may import as much alcohol as he desires for his own use.

"The Webb-Kenyon act, which was relied upon by the state in this suit," said Judge Morrow, "is so phrased that it reads to prohibit the importation of liquor or alcohol for use in violation of law. It applies in states which have absolute prohibition, but the Oregon law provides a manufacturer can have alcohol but he cannot import it. As the possession of alcohol by a genuine manufacturer is not unlawful, it is in violation of the interstate commerce clause of the federal constitution to attempt to prohibit him from importing such alcohol directly himself."

PUT IN BIG LIGHTS

Hawley Mills Will Rush Construction
Work on Mill Addition

A set of three 300-candlepower electric flood lights were installed at the Hawley Pulp and Paper company's mill here yesterday to make it possible for workmen who are constructing the new mill addition to work night and day at their tasks. The builders fear high water, which will put an end to the work on the foundation and the dam and all are anxious to have the dam in and to avoid any delay.

It is anticipated that the foundation will be completed within six weeks and then all danger from the effects of the high water will be evaded. The new flood lights, a modern electrical illuminating device, were tried out on Wednesday evening and their rays furnish plenty of light for any kind of work. The powerful lamps light up the scene of activities in a way that almost rivals old sol and thus a double amount of work can be done by the contractors. The power of the lights comes from the reflectors, which are a new departure in search-light construction.

COUNTY SEAT PAYS $760

Mayor Hackett Receives Bill for Park-place Road Work

Oregon City's share of the cost of the hard surfacing of the Oregon City-Parkplace road is $760, according to a bill for the work received by Mayor Hackett from the county court on Wednesday. This city is expected to pay for the improvement of 900 feet of the road which is within the city limits.

and the effective expenditure of tax money, but as a benefit to the taxpayers, farmers especially, he suggested that there be no reduction in road taxation.

In summarizing his report Mr. Jack said that 33 1/2 per cent of the entire tax levy in Clackamas county is voted by the people. This, he repeated, puts the blame for any increase upon the public generally rather than upon the county or any other agency connected with tax assessment and collection.

Fifty-four and one-half per cent of the entire area of Clackamas county is in government reservation, and is entirely exempt from taxation, said Mr. Jack. For this reason he advanced the idea that the government should contribute to the county road fund and aid more in the construction, improvement and maintenance of county and state roads. The government receives as much direct benefit from road improvement in and about its reserves as does the state or county, according to Mr. Jack's theory, and should cooperate with the state and county in improving roads outside the reserves and should construct better roads within the reserves.

The road fund in 1915 collected $312,909.58 from county and special levy and the total school tax collected amounted in the same year to $241,188.98, with an additional $21,000 turned over to the county from the state school fund.

Mr. Jack dwelt in his talk especially upon the responsibility of the federal government because of the fact that more than one-half the total area of the county, including some of the most valuable land in the county, is in government reservation, and upon the causes for the astounding increase in tax levies during the ten years just past.

The encouragement of strict economy on the part of the public and its officers and the judicious expenditure of public money was advocated as the only remedy for the rapid increase in assessments.

PAVEMENT COSTS 98 CENTS A YARD

JUDGE H. S. ANDERSON BELIEVES
NEXT COST BILL GREAT-LY REDUCED

COST PER MILE IS $9,308

Many Items Paid Will Lessen the Construction Cost of All Future Work

Although county officials consider the cost of the first bit of county paving an unfair reflection upon that which is yet to be laid, and which will undoubtedly be accomplished at a much less expense, the compilation of the cost of the Oregon City-Parkplace road by County Judge Anderson is interesting. The judge figures the total cost per mile of the new roadway at 98 1/2 cents a square yard, including the cost of bringing the road up to sub-grade.

The fact that the stretch between Oregon City and the Clackamas river bridge beyond Parkplace is so short and the fact that it is the first piece of surface to be applied by the county court under the direction of the federal road department is presented as evidence that future work will cost much less. It is said that if the first undertaking had been over a greater distance the cost for each yard would have been materially reduced.

This cost entirely eliminates any contractor's profit as the work was done directly under the supervision and direction of the county road department. The court purchased its own paving plant, already owned its own rollers and other necessary equipment and hired the hands who did the work on the road. The first paving covers the county road between the Abernathy bridge at the northern outskirts of Oregon City and the Clackamas river bridge beyond Parkplace, a distance of 7,072 feet or more than a mile and one-third. There are 12,600 square yards of pavement on this road, laid at a total cost for pavement, labor and materials, of $11,034.69.

In addition to the above costs the county expended $1,409.54 for grading and rolling the base of the road, bringing the total cost per square yard up to 98 1/2 cents. The cost for the surface alone, including labor and material, amounted to 87 1/2 cents per square yard.

The width of the roadway is 16 feet on the straight-away courses and 20 feet on turns and railroad crossings. The cost per mile of the pavement, as figured by Judge Anderson, was $8,276 and the total cost per mile of the road, including all items of expense, was $9,308.25.

"There is no doubt," says Judge Anderson, "that, as we progress with the work of hard surfacing these figures will be greatly lessened. There were many items of expense in the first hard-surface work that will be eliminated; many costs estimated in the first bill which we will have no need to duplicate. It is certain that the bill for the surface now being laid will be much more creditable than this has been. These costs are somewhat higher than the cost estimated in the beginning, but it is apparent that they are not nearly so great as the cost of such work under the contract system."

"For instance, the cost of renovating the plant which we purchased for this work is figured against the Parkplace road. This will be eliminated in the next bill of costs."

In connection with the surfacing work now being carried on, County Roadmaster T. A. Roots said:

"Everything favors the lessening of the cost per yard of the pavement that is being laid on the Milwaukie-Sellwood road. Many handicaps were presented in the first work, but now even the location of the plant is an advantage that will tend to cheapen the cost of the work. Long hauls have been done away with and the facilities at hand are such that I can see no reason whatever for not effecting a great reduction in the cost of future undertakings."

The county paving plant is located at the Wills' gravel pit on the Milwaukie-Sellwood road and before it is removed the county court plans to improve a two-mile stretch of the east Eighty-Second street road.

County officials are pleased with the feeling in regard to this road improvement that exists in most parts of the county. A very few complaints have been heard about favoritism, or any of the many familiar cries. People realize that the court cannot accomplish all its plans in one season and are patiently awaiting the completion of the most neglected roads before urging the improvement of those in other sections of the county. It is certain that the county will be netted with hard surface if the first few miles produce the desired result at a reasonable cost.

The Oregon City Commercial club has sent its regrets to the Yellowstone Highway association, denying its members the pleasure of participation in a meeting of the association

JITNEY WILL RUN TO OSWEGO--MT. VIEW

ALDERMEN GRANT FRANCHISE WHICH PROTECTS CITY AND PROVIDES SERVICE

The city council on last Thursday evening considered two requests for a jitney franchise and granted to one of the applicants, Harry M. Shaw, the right to operate passenger motor cars between Oregon City and Oswego and between Seventh street and Mountain View. The franchise carried a rider to allow Mr. Shaw to start the service between these points at once pending the final passage of the franchise, which will be taken up at the first meeting next month.

The contract with the city, drawn up by attorneys for Mr. Shaw is binding on the part of the operator but allows the city considerable leeway in the matter of controlling the service. There are to be no transfers and no split fares at Oswego, which will prevent a service extending beyond that community. Stops at Main and Seventh streets in this city are limited to 15 minutes and there are to be lights in the cars at night, with an absolute ban on liquors within the cars.

Three trips daily are provided between Oregon City and Oswego and return, the fare to be 15 cents one way, 25 cents round trip. There are to be at least 12 trips daily to Mountain View and return, and the operator reserves the right to start the Mountain View trip either at Seventh and Main streets or at Seventh and High streets. The franchise covers a one-year period.

Drivers of the Shaw cars are required to pass a medical examination and a test as to their ability at handling cars. Character testimonials will also be required.

The passage of this franchise ordinance does away with the source of complaints from Oswego residents; a source which aroused much strife in that community and prompted one person to delegate himself as an ardent advocate of the division of the east and west halves of the county. The jitney service will not extend beyond the north boundary of Oswego and unless the citizens of that hamlet choose to "double cross" the city council and establish a service between Oswego and Portland the problem of transportation between Oswego and the county seat is solved.

LITTLE GIRLS RUN AWAY

With Dolls Firmly Clamped Misses
Walk Long Distance

Raggedy dollies clutched tightly to each little breast, childhood's visions of life in the broad fields, in God's great out-of-doors, before them, Martha Heisig of Eugene and Minnie Shields of Silverton, tiny misses of eleven years, had most expended their energies when they arrived at Wilsonville on Monday after tramping all the thirty-one miles from Portland. Martha and Minnie had "escaped," they told Deputy Sheriff Murray, who accosted them at Wilsonville. They had escaped from the Boys' and Girls' home in Portland on the previous night, sliding down a fire-escape to make an exit unobserved by the careful attendants. That night they walked and walked, and finally dropped, weary, in a thicket near Tualatin and spent one night at least in the fresh air.

On Monday they were on their way to Wilsonville where Deputy Murray took them in charge, dollies and all. Attendants from the Home in Portland arrived soon to take the little adventure seekers back to Portland. And they hadn't loosened their hold on the dollies for a moment.

Martha is the daughter of Thomas Heisig of Eugene and Minnie, whose home is at Silverton, is a daughter of William Shields.

MANY GO TO MEDFORD

Ten from This County to Attend Annual Editorial Convention

At least sixty reservations have been made by Oregon newspaper men for the special excursion to the State Editorial association's convention at Medford and Crater Lake on August 4 to 7. President Brodie of Oregon City predicts a record attendance at the convention. A program of unusual interest has been arranged, including a visit to the famous Crater Lake.

Among those who will attend the convention from this county are R. M. Standish and Mrs. Standish, of Estacada; Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Taylor of Molalla; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brodie, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Robey and J. David Olson of Oregon City. Others may make reservations later.

ELEVATOR STOPS

Pebbles in Valve of Municipal Elevator Yesterday

The municipal elevator suspended operations yesterday between 9 o'clock in the morning and 2:30 in the afternoon while City Engineer Miller repaired worn out valves. In the course of his work Mr. Miller found several small pebbles in the valves he replaced, for which he cannot account unless they were carried from the water system intake on the South Fork to the elevator.

ROAKE NAMED FOR SCHOOL DIRECTOR

SCHOOL BOARD WILL IMPROVE
PROPERTIES BEFORE FALL
CLASSES START

INCREASE TEACHERS' WAGES

J. O. Staats Resigns From School
Board and Enters Business
Field at Clarks

The purchase of a store at Clarks caused the removal from this city of J. O. Staats, a member of the Oregon City school board, and on Saturday evening the other members of the board gathered to elect James Albert Roake, former city councilman, to serve in place of Mr. Staats until the next school election. Mr. Staats presented his resignation to the board several days before the meeting. His successor was once a member of the city council, and is prominent in the industrial life of the city as manager of the Oregon City foundry.

The term of Mr. Staats would have expired in 1920. Mr. Roake will serve only until June of next year when the regular school election is held.

Sixteen teachers in the city schools will benefit by the new scale of wages authorized at the meeting of the school board. The new scale provides an increase generally of $5 monthly on the salaries of all teachers. The first year teachers heretofore have been paid $55 a month, but under the new scale will receive $60. Second year teachers have received $60, will, at the opening of school in the fall, receive $65. Those teachers who have been in the city schools for three years or more have received $65 and under the new scale will be paid at the rate of $70 a month. The latter is the maximum remuneration for teachers in Oregon City grade schools. The new scale is to be put into effect when class work is started in the fall.

As a result of a decision reached at the meeting on Saturday evening the board on Monday visited and inspected the two grade schools of the city and the high school building, a plan for the improvement of the three buildings was outlined by the members.

At the high school the board has decided to grade and level the block to provide a gentle slope from the building to the walks about the block. Lawn seed will be planted as soon as this work is completed. The science department with its two laboratories will be transferred from the top floor of the building to the basement and there set up to provide the greatest possible facilities for the pupils. The rooms vacated on the top floor will be equipped for class work by installing the furniture now in the temporary class-room building, which will be utilized as a manual training shop. A building on the Barclay school grounds has been used as a manual training shop and may later be renovated for use as a gymnasium.

The roofs of both grade schools are in an unfavorable condition and the board had trouble in solving the problem as to which most needed repair. On Saturday it was decided to ask for bids on the repair of the Eastham school roof, but on Monday, after an examination, the members concluded that the Barclay school roof was in the poorer condition. Therefore, bids will be called for upon the repair of the Barclay school roof.

The improvement outline also provides for a number of minor repairs and changes about each of the three city school structures. The contractors who erected the addition to the high school last year have done some little work about the building within the past month in order to bring their work up to the final detail of specifications. The work has consisted of a slight retouching of painted surfaces and other small tasks.

PREMIUM LIST READY

Horse Show Given Prominent Place
This Year at State Fair

The horse show is to be a feature this year judging from the premium list of the fifty-fifth annual state fair at Salem, September 25 to 30. Entries have been received from San Francisco, Sacramento, British Columbia and many Oregon towns. The racing program is the best in years. Early closing events have 16 entries in each class. The track has recently been put in condition and, with favorable weather, those who follow the horses may look forward to some excellent racing. Enticing premiums have already called forth a large number of entries in the livestock division, which promises to be the best in years.

Relief Corps Meets

Meade Relief Corps met on Monday for the usual birthday dinner and had a good attendance. The regular monthly session was held in the afternoon, with 45 members in attendance. The meetings are growing in interest.

W.V.S. ROUTE SCENIC ATTRACTIVE PLEASE

"BILL" STRANDBORG ENTHUS-
ED OVER RICHLY ENDOWED
CLACKAMAS COUNTRY

Not long ago the Willamette Valley Southern railroad was built from Oregon City into a district southeast of Portland. The first reports were concerned with the agricultural opportunities along the new line. Now it is said that it has scenic attractions which give it a merited place. Concerning the road, W. P. (Bill) Stranborg of Portland Railway, Light & Power company, writes for the Journal:

"What would perhaps carry the strongest appeal to the average seeker after rest, recreation and new forms of diversion in hitherto unexplored places, were he to take a trip over the line, is the human interest factor of the picturesque road.

"The richly endowed country through which the comparatively new interurban passes had, for over 30 years—in fact, ever since it was settled—enjoyed the 'agony of isolation.' It was a splendidly promising country and the settlers knew it, but they couldn't get any 'empire builders' to put the money into any form of transportation enterprise that would give the products of the country an outlet to a market.

"So after 30 years, when a more or less hopeful plan for tapping the country was projected, the farmers said among themselves:

"Let's help the boys with some of our own money and make it our road."

"And they did.

"So the Willamette Valley Southern is referred to by the busy and thriving communities along the way as 'Our Road.'

"So much by way of introduction. 'The average citizen would unquestionably enjoy a trip out over the line, for the ride itself and a view of the country through which it runs, if for no other reason.

"For the first few miles out of Oregon City, the road winds, climbs and wriggles along forest-clad hill slopes and crawls through canyons and gorges, and of these the famous Buckner Creek canyon, 12 miles from Oregon City, is of wonderful scenic beauty.

"The picture changes with almost every mile. It's up hill and down dale, through shaded stretches of solemn, silent forest vastness, rolling, well-kept farming lands, whose richness of soil is evident more and more as one glimpses the growing crops of varied character.

"And then the brooks, dashing down from the mountain wilds, purr and babble of the frisky trout, and the true disciple of Izaak Walton need never go home with empty creel if he tries his luck on any one of the four principal streams that are reached by this electric line.

"Buckner creek has already been spoken of.

"There's Milk creek, with excellent fishing eight or 10 miles above Mulino and for several miles below.

"The Molalla river, familiar to the majority of the anglers of this vicinity affords a fine day's sport and it skirts the railroad for more than a mile. North Liberal is the favorite starting point for a fishing trip on this stream.

"Butte creek, reached from Monitor station, 29 miles from Oregon City, is regarded as one of the best of all the trout streams in that entire section.

"Molalla is reached by this road and is an exceedingly progressive and thrifty little city, full of energetic enthusiasts, and has immediately back of it billions of feet of fine timber that some day will be seeking world markets; and in the meantime, Molalla is flourishing through the development of rich agricultural resources of the surrounding valley.

"Mount Angel, at the end of the line, is a very picturesque community, the seat of the famous Mount Angel college and academy, and the home of the great Benedictine Press. It boasts the finest church in the state, and its community life blood is drawn from the fertile agricultural region around it—one of the most productive sections of the Willamette valley.

"A little side trip may be taken from Molalla, where an auto stage line meets all trains and takes the pleasure seeker over an eight mile drive to the noted watering place, Wilhoit Springs, and Trout Creek, where a new summer resort has recently been opened. These springs are said to have curative properties and attract many city folk during the course of the year.

"Fine fishing is afforded from the Trout Creek resort on the Molalla river, the north fork of the Molalla, and Trout creek."

Messenger Injured

While at work Monday on his farm near Mulino, repairing a cultivator, John Messner, a well-known farmer, suffered a severe injury to his right arm, necessitating eight stitches being taken to close the wound by Dr. C. A. Stuart, who was called from Oregon City. Mr. Messner was using a wrench, when it slipped, throwing his hand and arm into the teeth of the cultivator with such force as to inflict a long and deep gash.
