Passing in Review

News of the Week from War Zones of Europe and Mexico

Denial that British war vessels have captured the submarine freighter Bremen, sister ship to the Deutschland, was given out this week by official authorities to the United Press.

Further attacks by the Russians in strong force have been made on the Teutonic lines northwest of Berestek in southern Volhynia near the Galician border, the war office announced Monday. The Russian efforts to advance however, were completely repulsed.

Thirty thousand militiamen on the border are living under excellent conditions and the men themselves pronounce reports to the contrary as falsehoods, General Bliss reported to the war department after an inspection trip that extended to camps containing that many soldiers.

The state department will immediately acknowledge to Ambassador Page receipt of the "interference with mails" reply from Great Britain, and inform him that it is not considered a response to the American note. The request for an early reply on the principles involved will be repeated. This was the official declaration at the state department Monday.

"Out of the tents by Christmas." That is a new slogan which some pessimists are starting about the O. N. G. camp at Palm City, Cal. It is not entirely in jest, either, because it is well recognized that there is a chance, and a depressingly likely one, that the Oregon men may be rooted in Southern California for a good long time. But Christmas is a long way off.

Italian troops have completed the occupation of the upper Trevignone and St. Pellegrina valleys, the Rome war office announced this week. The summit of Monte Stradone also has been wrested from the Austrians. Heavy bombardments continue on the rest of the front. Vienna announces the repulse of a series of attacks and the bombardment of Monfalcone and San Giorgio by a naval aeroplane.

"The black-list difficulty will be adjusted," Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia declared after a talk with the president. "I believe Great Britain will withdraw either the whole or the major part of this blacklist order," he said. Smith has been a leader of the opposition in this country to England's blockade policies most of which opposition has been unsuccessful. The fact that he sees defeat for the present British plan was regarded as significant.

General Francisco Gonzales, commandant at Juarez, has formally protested to General George Bell, Jr., commanding the American forces at El Paso against the conduct of the outpost guards of the Ninth Massachusetts infantry, who, he said, crossed into Mexican territory Sunday morning "in violation of Mexican rights" and last night shot up "without provocation, a number of homes of Mexicans south of the border."

Charges that the national guard was sent to the Mexican border under false pretenses were made by Senator Townsend during debate on the army appropriation bill in the senate. He urged that the military forces not in actual service ought to be sent home. "It is now apparent to everybody that the national guard is not going to Mexico and they were mobilized under false pretenses," said the senator. "Diplomatic correspondence between the United States and Mexico discloses that there was not any intention of sending them into Mexico."

London reports important advantages gained by the British in their fight for Bozeries, the present focal point of their attack in the Somme region. A large portion of the town is now in British hands. General Sir Douglas Haig reports gains of ground near High wood and in the vicinity of Guillemont on the British left flank. The repulses of German counter attacks between High wood and Guillemont is reported. Paris announces the continuance of bad weather along the French front in the Somme region and a cessation for the time being of active operations there.

Casualty lists issued by the war office show that during June the British army lost 423 officers killed, 1032 wounded and 64 missing—a total of 1519. These figures bring the aggregate losses to date to 29,424, of which number 8997 have been killed or died; 18,456 wounded and 1971 missing. Heavy fighting around Ypres caused losses among officers in the Canadian contingent of 109 killed, 309 wounded and 51 missing. Of the Australians 14 were killed and 32 wounded. Brigadier-General Kirk and Mercer were killed and Brigadier-General Williams was reported to be a prisoner.

Asked this week when the German submarine merchantman Deutschland would sail on her return voyage to Germany, Paul G. L. Hilken, member of the Eastern Forwarding company, the boat's American agent, said she would start "just as soon as we can get her ready, and that will not be much longer. Hitherto questions regarding the sailing of the Deutschland have been met with refusals to discuss the question. From a source regarded as reliable it was ascertained that the Eastern Forwarding company has closed negotiations for a large consignment of gold to be taken back on the submersible.

The Germans have been driven back twelve miles at one point on the Riga front, according to a Reuter's despatch from Petrograd. Progress for the Russians is claimed on a front running from the gulf of Riga to Uxkull, a distance of more than thirty miles, the greatest advance being made along the coast line. The despatch says that fighting went on without pause for four days prior to Sunday. It has now halted as the Russians require time to consolidate the ground they have gained and the Germans are awaiting for reinforcements being brought from other sectors of the eastern front.

The house of commons Monday night passed a $2,250,000,000 vote of credit to carry on the war. This brings the total voted this far up to 1,050,000,000 pounds, and the total since the beginning of the war to 2,832,000,000 pounds, or about $14,160,000,000. Asquith stated that the government's total expenditures between April 1 and July 22 were $2,795,000,000. The war, he stated, was costing $25,000,000 a day. Recent announcement that the government's expenditures were now $30,000,000 daily was meant to include expenditures of every nature, both ordinary and extraordinary.

CAR SHORTAGE AGAIN

Public Service Commission Appeals to Railroad and Shipper

The railroad car shortage is again becoming a serious problem in the Willamette valley and the Public Service Commission of Oregon has taken the matter into its own hands in an effort to solve the trouble through a general appeal to shippers.

"Owing to our unique location at the extreme end of the transcontinental lines," says the Commission's appeal, "and the unprecedented scarcity of ocean carriers, which will necessitate the movement eastward of all Oregon's bountiful crops by rail, the transportation situation in Oregon is now serious and threatens daily to become acute in the extreme. Past experience teaches that these car shortages result in the absolute demoralization of business, and to assist in relieving the present serious shortage, with its attendant damages, and prevent it becoming more acute the commission asks that railroads place all cars without unnecessary delay that they move loaded cars promptly and that they cooperate with shippers to the fullest extent. Shippers are requested to load and unload freight with utmost promptness; to load cars to full capacity; to give the railroad company immediate notice when car is released; to order cars in writing and to bear in mind that freight cars are for the transportation of goods and are not warehouses."

STOCK MARKET LIGHT

Portland Yards Announce Advance in Hog Prices for the Week

The stock market in Portland opened on Monday with a light offering of about 800 head. The demand was very limited. The prices on prime steers were a quarter lower. Tops sold at $8 for one load and others at $7.90, which would have realized 25 cents more last week. There were but a few loads of cows here, but they found very slow outlet at about the same loss as did steers. Very good cows sold at $5.50 with the bulk selling $5 to $5.25. Bulls sold at $4.25 for the best, calves were unchanged at $7.50.

Hog prices were advanced another 10 cents over last week with quite a liberal offering. Tops sold at $9.10, which was also the bulk price. Quality was very good. Pigs were scarce with a $7.50 top.

Sheep prices still remain unchanged. The receipts have been only moderate, but enough to supply the demand. Choice lambs continue to sell at $8.25 with culls bringing $5.50 and $6. Yearlings are selling $6 with ewes at 5 cents.

THE GRAND PROMOTOR

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Major Crofoot stood looking out of one of his office windows with his hands thrust deep in his pockets and a look of meditation on his face. He was meditating about his landlord. He was now $70 in arrears for his room and board, and when he came home to dinner he might find his trunk in the hall.

Then, too, here at his office he expected every day to be hindered for office rent long in arrears.

In the midst of his meditations the major felt a touch on his elbow, and he turned around to behold his landlord with hand outstretched and to hear him say:

"Major Crofoot, your back rent of this office now amounts to $300. Come down."

"Only $300?" smiled the major after swallowing hard for half a minute. "Why, I thought it was near a hundred! It won't take me over five minutes to fill out a bond in your name. I shall make one for $500."

"No bonds—no checks—no promises—the cash in hand!" warned the landlord.

"Have you lost confidence in me?" asked the major, with a worried look on his face.

"I lost it long ago, sir."

"I am sorry—very sorry. I was going to fill you out a bond of my Egg Forcing company, and the bonds stand at a premium, and you can take one over to the bank and sell it at par and carry the gold home in your pocket."

"No bonds," repeated the landlord.

"Well, Mr. Blake, I have just sent a thousand dollar bill over to the bank to get changed. If you will sit down for five minutes the boy will be back."

Mr. Blake sat down. There were several looks of doubt on his face. After one minute he was uneasy and shuffled his feet. After two minutes he was more uneasy and got up and walked to the door and back. After five minutes he looked out of the window to see if the major's boy was coming on the run with the handful of money.

Mr. Blake waited for twelve minutes and then rose and said:

"Major Crofoot, I believe you have lied to me!"

"I am getting uneasy myself," was the reply. "Do you think it possible, Mr. Blake, that the boy cribbed the money and has run away with it?"

"I think it possible that this office will be vacant within an hour."

Mr. Blake stalked out of the room and downstairs, while the major sat down to his desk and said to himself with a great sigh of relief:

"Well, that is off my mind for another three months. Mr. Blake is not the man to climb four flights of stairs for a few dollars back rent."

Forty minutes had passed away and then the landlord, a deputy sheriff and two husky men entered the room, and a legal paper was served on the major, who read it and replied:

"Gentlemen, have you called to see about investments? I have a large list of them and none that pay less than 5 per cent."

The landlord and the others paid no attention to this statement, but seized the furniture and carried it downstairs to the sidewalk. The task was quickly over. There was only the old desk, an old swiveled chair and two common chairs with lame legs. There was also a small coal stove which had been heated cold nearly all winter. The major was a man who felt that it was cheaper to be frost bitten than to buy a quarter of a ton of coal.

He made no objections to the removal of the furniture, but followed downstairs and calmly took a seat at his desk and began writing out a protest.

The landlord and the men went away, but a crowd gathered and there was a block of the sidewalk. Pretty soon a policeman came up and asked:

"Is this an eviction for nonpayment of rent?"

"It has that appearance," was the reply, "but it being a warm, balmy day, I shall continue to do business as usual."

"But you can't," was protested. "This crowd has got to be dispersed if you don't find a room somewhere to move your things into I shall have to call the patrol wagon and have them carried to the station house."

"I will look for a room, sir," said the major, with proper dignity. "If I find one I shall hope that you will come around soon and let me show you my list of investments. There is some that I sell to policemen only."

The major rose up and walked half a block and then to the shop where his clothes cleaner did business. He went in and told the men how he was fixed. He was a German, and, having heard his story, he said:

"But you vas owing me a bill of $4 and I can't get it," said the major, with a liberal smile, "and I will pay you next week."

"You always say next week when I comes about my bill."

"But next week I shall probably sell $10,000 worth of stock."

"Well, maybe you will," said the cleaner, after taking two minutes to think it over. "If you vas in my shop I don't have to climb your stairs and you can't go out by der roof when you expect me to call."

And so Major Crofoot, grand promoter and with millions of money in the bank or elsewhere, moved into the humble shop and amid hanging suits and the smell of benzine is continuing his joyous career.

Tells What She Thinks

Anna Hawn, Cedar Grove, Mo., writes: "We think Foley Cathartic Tablets are the best liver pill we ever got hold of, as they do not nauseate or gripe, but act freely on the liver. Any one in need of a liver pill, if he once tries them, would not be without them." Recommended for indigestion, constipation, bloating, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, bad breath or other condition caused by clogged or irregular bowels. Stout persons like the light, easy, buoyant feeling they give.—Jones Drug Co.

WELFARE EXHIBIT COMES

Believing that the welfare of the state demanded that its children should be well-born, Governor Oswald West appointed an "Oregon Child Welfare Commission" in January of 1915. In January 1915 Governor Withcombe re-appointed the commission and asked it to continue the good work it had begun. Its findings are shown upon the panels presented in this exhibit.

Oregon is in the fore-front in its effort to weed out scrub stock, and to eliminate the scabby apple and the inferior berry. Consequently the average farmer will not allow his brood stock to associate with every scrub that comes along. Why should he not exercise the same care in rearing his son or his daughter? Epilepsy, idiocy, blindness, sexual perversion and beer go hand in hand. Why then should special legislation be enacted for the brewer in Oregon? Or why should delinquents not be as carefully segregated as runt stock on a farm given over to the propagation of thoroughbreds? The findings of the commission along these lines are illustrated by ten exhibits worthy of anyone's close study.

When we learn that of 29 crippled children examined by the commission all but three could be cured, or at least permanently helped, by proper treatment at the right age, it shows what might be done for this class of unfortunates in all sections of the state. The eastern papers have been full of the horrors of New York's scourge of infantile paralysis. Oregon has cases of this disease constantly. The commission shows how to deal with the scourge should it enter your home.

Twenty-five per cent of all blindness is preventable. This disease and feeble mentality are the usual accompaniments of illegitimacy, and sexual excess. Fifty-two illegitimate feeble minded babies were brought to one rescue home alone. One imbecile woman has had a progeny of 259 feeble-minded persons in five generations. Sterilization is the only cure—except segregation. It works little hardship, and does not mean a species of imprisonment for the poor unfortunates. One fifth of New York's great revenue, and nearly half of that of Ohio go to support this class. Why not purify the fountain at its source? See what the State Commission has to say on the subject.

The exhibit is shown here under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and the Woman's Club. All visitors are cordially welcomed.

OPTIMIST.

About the State

Resume of the News of the Week from All Parts of Oregon

Seventeen teachers, two more than last season, will be employed in the Enterprise schools next year, five in the high school and 12 in the grades. Most have been engaged already, but the whole staff has not been arranged for. To accommodate the grade pupils four new rooms will be provided.

The improvement of Tenino avenue from East 17th to East 21st is about completed. The cement walks are all down and the grading the street between curbs almost done. This will be quite an improvement of that portion of Tenino avenue as there have been no sidewalks of any kind since the street was laid out.—Sellwood Bee

Forest Grove is taking on metropolitan airs, sure enough, says the News. A short time ago a business man surprised a burglar in his home, and chased him away with a shot-gun. That was only a striver. Last Tuesday night a hold-up was attempted in the heart of the residence section just after 9 o'clock.

The bankers of Coos Bay were guests of the Coos Bay Realty board at luncheon in the grill room in the Chandler hotel one day last week. After the report of the question of the relations between the bankers and the real estate men was discussed. The conclusion arrived at was that their interests were identical and that they should cooperate.

A visit to the Pleasant fruit juice plant at Woodburn, that is now operating at almost full capacity, is very interesting and instructive. Interesting from the standpoint of seeing how the delicious product of the loganberry vine is converted into a rich dark red liquid that delights the palate and without harmful results.—Hubbard Enterprise.

District Fire Warden Allan Rice announces that the work of patrolling Washington county for fires, is now on and the men are keeping a sharp lookout for fires that may be started in the great forests of this county, and advises people to be very careful in starting fires that cannot be controlled or that might lead to serious conflagrations.

An ordinance has been introduced in the Dallas council praying for a franchise for a period of fifty years for the construction, maintenance and use of pipes and other equipment for the transmission of heat over two of the principal thoroughfares in the downtown district, the height of such pipes to be not less than thirty feet from the surface of the streets, and supported by wire cable.

A deal was completed last week by which the mill of the Hillsboro Lumber company at Hillsboro and all the logging apparatus and equipment of J. C. Hare is purchased by a syndicate composed of G. Garthofner and J. H. Patterson of Portland and O. F. Hensing, an eastern mill man. The syndicate takes over the lease of the mill, held by C. P. Merrell, and has purchased the stock of lumber in the mill yards.

Southern Oregon, so bountifully supplied with those elements which bring fortunes to men of open mind and keen perception, seems just to be on the threshold of an era of rare discoveries and wonderful development. Particularly in the Rogue River valley tributary to Ashland, indeed practically within her very borders, are coming to light during recent months the evidences of hidden treasure trampled upon and disregarded through past centuries by the clumsy foot and under the clouded eye of man.

The Crescent Flouring mills, located at Carnation, pretty southern suburb of Forest Grove, at which the big Carnation condensed milk plant is located, which was formerly South Forest Grove, but was some months ago re-christened "Carnation" in honor of the splendid industry that is carried on there, were purchased some six months ago by F. F. Johnson, of Portland, and the past week or two Mr. Johnson has been busy getting the milling plant in readiness for operation.

Albany College came out on top at the meeting of the Synod of Oregon, of the Presbyterian church, at Eugene, Thursday afternoon. The synod very generously ordered $2500 towards the support of the college the coming year, and the good work of the institution will continue, in charge of a splendid faculty. The Synod referred the matter of merger to the committee on schools and colleges, and also ordered appointed a commission of nine, five ministers and four elders to make a canvass of the field.

There is every prospect now that the full width improvement on Main street will extend to Fifth, excepting 50 feet in front of G. F. Parker's property. Mr. Parker has positively refused to sign the petition for the hard surface, and his refusal nearly caused the abandonment of the proposed improvement beyond Third street. But the work will proceed as originally planned under an arrangement that will be satisfactory to the other property holders, the county commissioners and the Warren Construction company.—Gresham Outlook.

In order to make the concern more nearly co-operative, a meeting was held late last week by the stockholders of the Eugene Farmers' creamery for the purpose of amending the constitution of the organization. Under laws passed by the last session of the legislature as they apply to the present form of the organization, it is not possible to pay dividends according to amounts of butter fat furnished, but the dividends must be paid according to stock holdings. Under the purely co-operative system of organization, the dividends can be paid according to the butterfat furnished.

The third cooperative shipment of livestock was made from Dayton last Tuesday. The car was made up of 63 hogs and four steers, owned by C. A. Hubbard, D. D. Warnock, M. French, J. A. Surgeon, H. Willard and J. Newhouse. The bulk of the hogs were sold at $8.80 which was considered the top of the market although Mr. Willard's hogs sprung the market 10 cents, bringing $8.90. The total shipping cost was 43 cents per cwt., the same as the car shipped from Yamhill a month ago. Another car of hogs will be shipped from Carlton in a few days and a car of beef cattle two weeks later.

Lumbermen of the Pacific coast have launched a big move to sell fir timber to the world. Douglas fir is to be pushed into every market of Europe and even into the more remote quarters of the world as soon as the restoration of peace will make its transoceanic transportation possible. Tentative plans for a world-wide campaign of exploitation and exportation were concluded at a meeting of representative lumbermen from all the Pacific coast states at the Benson hotel last week. The proposed work will be carried on through the Douglas Fir Exploitation & Exportation company, a $200,000 concern, which was organized about two years ago and which has been compelled to lie dormant ever since then on account of the depressing effects of the war.
