

RAILROAD WAGES

Shall they be determined by Industrial Warfare or Federal Inquiry?

To the American Public:

Do you believe in arbitration or industrial warfare?

The train employes on all the railroads are voting whether they will give their leaders authority to tie up the commerce of the country to enforce their demands for a 100 million dollar wage increase.

The railroads are in the public service—your service. This army of employes is in the public service—your service.

You pay for rail transportation 3 billion dollars a year, and 44 cents out of every dollar from you goes to the employes.

On all the Western railroads in 1915, seventy-five per cent of the train employes earned these wages (lowest, highest and average of all) as shown by the pay rolls—

	Passenger		Freight		Yard
	Range	Average	Range	Average	Range	Average
Engineers	$1747	$2195	$1537	$2071	$1056	$1378
	3094		3076		2445
Conductors	1543	1878	1454	1935	1151	1355
	2789		2933		2045
Firemen	1033	1317	751	1181	418	973
	2078		2059		1552
Brakemen	854	967	874	1135	862	1107
	1719		1961		1821

The average yearly wage payments to all Western train employes (including those who worked only part of the year) as shown by the 1915 payrolls were—

	Passenger	Freight	Yard
Engineers	$2038	$1737	$1218
Conductors	1772	1624	1292
Firemen	1218	973	832
Brakemen	921	1000	1026

A 100 million dollar wage increase for men in freight and yard service (less than one-fifth of all employes) is equal to a 5 per cent advance in all freight rates.

The managers of the railroads, as trustees for the public, have no right to place this burden on the cost of transportation to you without a clear mandate from a public tribunal speaking for you.

The railroads have proposed the settlement of this controversy either under the existing national arbitration law, or by reference to the Interstate Commerce Commission. This offer has been refused by the employes' representatives.

Shall a nation-wide strike or an investigation under the Government determine this issue?

THE FASHIONS

and taffetas, for Fashion now decrees that taffeta and the flowered summer silks are not too grown-up for small people. One especially pretty little frock of taffeta and net shown in a shop devoted almost entirely to children's things, is trimmed with daisies, a band of them forming the girdle, a cluster here and there on the skirt, and one on either shoulder. Another Frenchy little party frock of taffeta and crepe is made sleeveless, with a smartly flaring ruffled skirt; this design, however, will hardly appeal to American mothers although it is charming as a picture. An effectively simple dress for summer is of plain white voile, trimmed with bands of old-time fagoting arranged to form a round yoke and banding the cuffs.

Children's and Junior's Millinery Most Charming

For the very small person there are charming little fitted caps of lace and net, and fetching little close-fitting bonnets of pale pink and blue Georgette trimmed with a cluster of tiny flowers or a rosette of ribbon. For the older girls the wide brimmed Bankok and Wen-Chows are appropriate, trimmed with a touch of bright color in wool or ribbon, or a simple band of velvet or elastic silk banding the crown. These sports bands with the stripes running around or up and down, are very becoming to the young girl and harmonize well with a plain wash frock or a dark serge or linen suit.

Pongee Popular for Girls

As usual, misses', juniors' and tiny tots' frocks and outer garments follow the same general lines of grown-up designs. The shop windows are gay with flowered muslins, voiles and dainty party frocks of bouclings and embroidered batistes, and even nets the tub silks and satins, crepe de Chine, China silk and pongee. The light colored lawns, dimities and linens are also popular for girls, being fashioned into simple frocks, middie dresses and like models. The wide stripes, so popular for grown-up sport skirts and suits, are also popular with the younger generation being fashioned into Norfolk suits, modified Russian and middie frocks and similar loose-lined models, becoming to the growing girl. The sports styles are popular, too, smart little coats of silk and wool jersey in the popular bright tones being worn over tub dresses of linen, duck, pique, and the softer cottons, voiles, crepes and the like.

In the shoe-top suits also, the Poiret twills, novelty wool mixtures, shepherd checks, gabardines, and serges are equally as popular as the pongees and Shantunges.

Net and Taffeta Dresses for Afternoons

For party and summer afternoons there are simple net frocks for juniors and misses, trimmed very effectively with lace and the simplest of ribbon trimmings, tucks, smocking and ruffles, narrow ruffles and shirtings.

The very tiny tot in her first short frock, wears lawn, batiste, dotted Swiss, crepe and fine linen. Most of these little dresses are fashioned into straight hanging, box-pleated dresses—as the merriest toddlers are wearing these models nowadays.

Smocking and tucks are effective trimming and hand embroidery plays an important part. White is most favored for the very small maid, although the pale pinks, blues and other soft shades are used considerably, too.

The separate coat to wear over the fluffy dress, is fashioned of taffeta, the novelty checks, serge, and Bedford cord. One of the prettiest coats of the season is developed in dark blue Bedford cord with collar and cuffs of white broadcloth, closed with large white bone buttons. The collar and cuffs may be made removable, thus doing away with the impractical side of the white.

She Told Her Neighbor

"I told a neighbor whose very young child had croup, about Foley's Honey and Tar," writes Mrs. Rehkamp, 2404 Herman St., Covington, Ky. "She thought that the child would surely die, it was so bad. When she gave it a couple of doses of Foley's Honey and Tar she was so pleased with the changes she did not know what to say." This old reliable cough syrup immediately helps coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Just as good for old as young folks.—Jones Drug Co.

AUTO FEES FOR ROADS

Sixteen Million Dollars Applied to Work on Highways in 1915

Ninety per cent of the registration and license fees paid in 1915 by automobilists to the states, or $16,213,387 was spent for the building and maintenance of county and state roads, according to a compilation just published by the Office of Public Roads of the department. In all, 2,445,664 motor vehicles were registered in that year, and their owners paid a total of $18,245,713 for registrations and drivers' and dealers' licenses. This is an increase of $5,863,760 over 1914, and an increase of 734,325 in the number of vehicles registered. Automobile fees now defray nearly 7 per cent of the total amount spent on rural road and bridge building, whereas in 1906 the income from this source was less than three-tenths of 1 per cent of the total expenditure.

The growth of the volume of fees and registrations is noted by the fact that in 1901 New York, the first state to require fees, collected only $954. In 1906 only 48,000 cars were registered throughout the entire United States. By 1915, however, the number had jumped to the figure given, so that there is slightly more than one motor car registered for each of the 2,375,000 miles of road outside of the incorporated towns and cities.

The relation between cars and road mileage varies widely in different sections. There is only one motor car for every 6 miles of rural road in Nevada, but nearly six motor cars for every mile of such road in New Jersey. There is an average of one motor car registration for every 44 persons in the United States. Iowa apparently leads, however, with one motor car for every 16 persons, while only one for every 200 persons is registered for Alabama.

GILBERT HEDGES ELECTED

At the meeting of the State Association of District Attorneys held in Portland on Friday, Gilbert L. Hedges of this county was elected vice-president of the organization. The meeting was given over altogether to the election and to personal discussion among the prosecutors of their enforcement of the prohibition statute.

Among the other officers elected are Gale Hill, Albany, president; George Neunern, secretary. The district attorneys motored over the Columbia River highway after their meeting.

CITY NOT HEARD FROM

Camp Withycombe Grows But Has No Oregon City Boys in Ranks

(Official Statement by L. A. Ferns-worth, Camp Clerk.)

Oregon City is yet to be heard from in the way of a recruit to be added to the ranks at Camp Withycombe.

Men from all parts of the state and from all stations in life have assembled at Camp Withycombe and are waiting to join the Oregon troops at the Mexican border, but the muster roll does not show the name of Oregon City.

An active recruiting campaign is now under way. Recruiting officers are touring the state to secure good men to be sent to Mexico, and it is expected that in a short time there will be enough additions to the camp to make it possible to send out the first train.

In this connection a statement issued by Colonel C. U. Gantenbein, who is organizing a volunteer regiment, is expected to increase the ranks of the recruits. In his statement, which has been sent to all company and platoon commanders of the volunteer regiment, Colonel Gantenbein says:

"It has been, and is our policy to support the regiment now at the front in every way. You are instructed to urge every man enrolled with you, who desires active service immediately, to enlist for the Third Oregon. Please assist in the recruiting for that regiment wherever you can. We are working for the best interests of Oregon in our undertaking."

It is reported that many of those that have signed up in the volunteer regiment are thinking of enlisting at Camp Withycombe for the Oregon troops now at the border, as by doing so they will see active service immediately.

In connection with the campaign for recruiting, Captain Kenneth P. Williams, chief mustering officer, in command, has issued the following appeal for men:

"Young man, your country needs you!"

"You will be fully equipped and thoroughly trained and obtain experience that will be valuable to you in years to come, no matter what vocation you may follow."

"When your comrades return from the front covered with glory, do you want to be among the ones that remained at home? Are you a true American?"

"Young man, think seriously and if there are any points you do not understand please apply to your local postmaster for information, and if the information you seek cannot be furnished by him, address Captain Kenneth P. Williams, Infantry, United States Army, Mustering Officer, Clackamas, Oregon."

"If you believe in preparedness, now is the time to act."

"Men accepted for enlistment will be sent directly to the border. Transportation will be furnished free of cost to you from your nearest railroad station to the mobilization camp, Clackamas, Oregon, upon application to your local postmaster, who will report your name to this office. In addition to pay all clothing, rations and medical attendance are furnished free."

Men who two weeks ago pleaded guilty to awkwardness in its most accentuated stages, today have the carriage and stride and the conception of army discipline that is demanded of the soldier of the United States army.

The routine and discipline of the regular army post have been established, and men are daily drilled and instructed.

Men from all walks of life—cowboys, an aviator, a newspaper editor, a theatrical booking agent, a dentist, students, farmers, an insurance agent, an ex-city and county official—these are the men who rub shoulders and become acquainted with each other here in what is probably the greatest crucible of democracy—an army training camp.

A WORD FOR MOTHERS

It is a grave mistake for mothers to neglect their aches and pains and suffer in silence—this only leads to chronic sickness and often shortens life.

If your work is tiring; if your nerves are excited; if you feel languid, weary or depressed, you should know that Scott's Emulsion overcomes just such conditions. It possesses in concentrated form the very elements to invigorate the blood, strengthen the tissues, nourish the nerves and build strength.

Scott's is strengthening thousands of mothers—and will help you. No alcohol. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

THE RURAL CREDIT LAW

Statute Will Be Applied on Cooperative Basis, Borrower Subscribes

The rural-credits law recently enacted by congress makes about forty billions of American realty available as a basis for credits. Farms, which have long been regarded in this country as objectionable security for long-time loans, will be used as collateral for such loans at low interest. The working of the new measure may revolutionize rural life and industry in the United States.

The law is known as the federal farm-loan act. It aims to render liquid assets and capital of the rural realty which hitherto has been a relatively immobile medium in the mechanism of finance. Long continuance of the mortgage-loan, low interest and amortization form the cardinal features of the new instrument.

Farm-mortgages have usually meant short-time loans and heavy charges to the borrower. Long loans and low rates mean monetary alleviation for the farmer and lessening of the farm to liability of exhaustion from severe drains on the soil. Amortization means the periodic payment of the principal of the loan in small installments when the half-yearly or annual interest is paid. At the close of the loan's life, according to some economists, these payments will not only have covered the interest, but will have wiped out the principal. The mortgaging farmer, they think, will then find himself the free owner of land unincumbered.

The law is to be applied on the cooperative basis. The borrower will become a stockholder in whatever association procures the loan for him. He must subscribe for an amount of stock in a farm-loan society which will equal five per cent of the sum he would borrow. If the loan be granted when experts have appraised the farm, the applicant owns one share of stock for every hundred dollars borrowed. Its par is five dollars and he pays this price for each share. This stock is taken by the association as additional security for the loan, but is redeemed to the owner at par when the loan is repaid. He receives dividends on it during the duration of the loan; that is, if the association makes money.

These farm-loan associations are governmental agencies and are erected by the law as elements in its system. There will be a bureau of farm-loans in the national department of the treasury and this bureau will be administered by a board. National land-banks are to be established to the number of twelve. Joint-stock land-banks may also be founded. European experience of rural credits renders it likely that the system will greatly benefit American agriculture.

DIVORCES ASKED

Couples From Everywhere Would End Marital Bliss Here

This week the divorce market contains offerings from as far distant as New York state with only one prayer for decree from Clackamas county. Couples come from such noted ballistics as Vancouver, Wash., and Skaneateles to sever the bonds of matrimony in Judge Campbell's increasingly popular court room.

On Friday Leona Scheideinan filed complaint against her mate, Joseph Scheideinan alleging cruelty and asking for the restoration of her maiden name, Leona Palmer. The couple was married at Vancouver, Wash., on June 21, 1913, and the life that followed, according to the complaint of Mrs. Scheideinan, was spiced with beating administered by the husband and leavened with other forms of intolerable cruelty.

Orva Fish, married to Merton Fish at Canby on December 21, 1911, doesn't think life's pool is large enough for this particular pair of fish. She alleges cruelty on the part of Mr. Fish and gives that as her reason for leaving the home early this year. One child has been born to the union and Mrs. Fish asks its custody. The complaint was filed on Friday.

Skaneateles, N. Y., was the scene of the pretty wedding of Anna and T. H. Cook on March 16, 1901. That was the first chapter. The last bids fair to be opened in Judge Campbell's court in the very near future when Mrs. Cook's request for a divorce decree is heard. She charges Mr. Cook with cruelty and asks that the court grant a reasonable alimony.

Cecelia Dunn exchanged her last name for that offered by one Carl Halverson at Albany on February 12, 1913. Cecelia tried to acustom herself to the new name for three years, four months and some days, but gave up hope and told Carl that his appellation was obnoxious, revolting and nauseous and otherwise perfectly unbearable. That is one of the allegations in the divorce complaint filed on Tuesday by attorneys for Mr. Halverson. He asks that the court restore to the wife, from whom he is about to be separated by court action, the name of her maidenhood, Cecelia Dunn, which will be done if legally consistent.

Milwaukie Laws Enforced

Marshal Sam Riley of Milwaukie is enforcing the dog ordinance, which provides that every female and every male dog more than three months old is subject to an annual tax, the former $4 and the latter $2 a year. Unless paid the ordinance provides a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $50, or a jail sentence of not less than 25 days. Also the dog may be put out of the way unless the fine is paid. Marshal Riley, also is notifying owners of property that they must remove weeds and grass in front of their premises, or the city will do the work and assess the cost to the property owner.

Experts of the forest service estimate that the farm woodlots of the United States contain from 200 to 300 billion board feet of lumber and from one to one and a half billion cords of wood.

CAMP TAKES NEW LIFE

Guard Recruits Assemble in Large Numbers at Clackamas

Camp Withycombe at Clackamas station is again taking on the military appearance of the days of Third Infantry mobilization. There are some 150 men at the camp and more are coming in each day. Captain Kenneth P. Williams, United States army officer in charge of the camp and recruiting campaign, is receiving favorable reports from several groups of recruiting officers who are working in all sections of the state to get men for the Third Infantry commands at the border.

Captain Williams points out the impossibility of sending volunteer companies to the border until the Third Infantry and other regular guard commands are recruited to their full strength. There will be no other troops movement from this state, with the exception of sending the men now assembling at Clackamas to join border commands, until congress authorizes an addition to the quota of citizen troops for this state. At best that will take considerable time, says Captain Williams.

Men accepted for enlistment at Clackamas will be sent to the front as soon as there are enough of them together to warrant the charter of a troop train. Transportation is furnished free of cost from the nearest railroad station to the mobilization camp and from the time of arrival at Clackamas the pay of the recruit commences and food, shelter and clothing are free. These men will undoubtedly be sent south within a few days, according to Captain Williams.

All of the 28 counties of Utah contain portions of national forests and consequently all share in the 25 per cent of the national forest receipts which is paid over to the road and school funds. This is true of another state.
