WIFE WORTH $700?

Circuit Court Jury Places This Amount for Heart Balm

A jury in the circuit court last week awarded Elmer E. Everton $700 damages in his suit against H. A. Kaylor, for $40,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections. Kaylor, who is a Molalla farmer, was accused of having been over-intimate with Mrs. Everton, and with having escorted her to various Portland amusement resorts. Mrs. Everton has a suit for divorce pending against Everton, and the husband alleges that Kaylor is the cause of his domestic troubles.

In the hopes of hearing entertaining testimony a large crowd of men and women were present in the court room throughout the trial. Kaylor was defended by George C. Brownell, who is reported to have said that he was satisfied with the verdict and would not ask for an appeal.

steadily, inevitably as fate itself. Amid the clatter of their unintelligible tongues the few, and even fewer, English-speaking foremen and skilled workers feel as lonesome as light-houses. And this chasm between hostile castes of workers serves, by the by, to make unionism additionally impossible.

"There used to be big money for the workers who handled iron and steel. There is still fairly good money to be made by a very few of them. But for 15 years the cutting of wages has been going on until today in many cases the best workers make less than half of what they used to earn. It has been figured out that every hundred workers in the steel mills and blast furnaces includes 60 men who make less than two dollars a day and only two who make more than $5 in the same time. The average daily wages of Allegheny County's 9,000 blast-furnace men were found to be below $2.50 in 1907. In October of that year the entire force of 12-hour men in the open hearth department of the Homestead Steel Works was averaging $2.76 a day. The highest paid skilled workers in some of the most important branches of the steel industry are incapable of earning more than $3.75 per day.

"The main thing asked of the worker is speed, or, maybe one ought to say, speed without waste. To the achievement of this result everything is adapted, but, above all, the wage schedules. The underlying idea of the whole system is to get more out of a man by paying him less. Its fundamental rule is that if the man drives the machine he is paid by the piece; if the machine drives him he is paid for time. A trick constantly practiced is to urge the workers into exceeding their previous capacity for the purpose of earning more and then to adapt the wage rate to the new record in order that they may work still harder to retain their old earnings. This has proved one of the most effective means of increasing the output.

"Among 16,000 men employed in the three largest plants of the United States Steel Corporation in 1907 there were 120 men working only eight hours a day. Among the steel and iron workers the eight hour day is practically a law now, so that, for instance, there were only ninety-three 10-hour men to one thousand five hundred and seventeen 12-hour men at the Homestead Steel Works in 1907.

"This law, slightly modified—and modified largely for the worse—holds good seven days of the week all the year through. Neither Sundays nor holidays exist for these toilers. Once every fortnight they work twenty-four hours in a stretch, in order that they may have a full day of twenty-four hours free for the next week."

OREGON CATTLE WIN

Remarkable Records Made by State Herds at San Francisco Fair

Oregon milk and beef cattle made a magnificent showing in the great stock show at the Panama fair, still in progress. The Swiss herd brought down by Inman, of Junction City, had no competition and landed everything. The judges, however, were confident that the Junction City animals would win anywhere and against any sort of competition.

The Harry West Jerseys, from Scappoose, captured all but two of the blue ribbons for this breed of milkers. Among these was the champion two-year-old-bull, G. G. Hewitt and Frank Loughry, of Monmouth, contributed to the West group. The Hereford animals brought down by George Chandler, of Baker, captured the big prizes for that class, and Mr. Looney, of Jefferson, came in for several winnings, as did W. L. Dome, of Polk County. The Porter Red Polled animals won several first places. Only in the Holsteins did Washington pose us out of anything worth while. The Stock Show was not a large as hoped for but many fine animals were on exhibition.

Former Oregon City Boy Dies

On October the 25th, a sad funeral took place at the Gilliland graveyard at Foster, when Clarence John Hill, the 12-year-old boy of W. D. Hill and Josi M. Hill, was laid to his last rest. About a week ago he had to leave school on account of a sudden attack of inflammatory rheumatism. Nobody expected complications and every one was shocked when it was learned that the boy had died on October 25th, at about ten o'clock at night.

The members of the Sunday School class, of which the boy had been a faithful member, acted as pall bearers. Rev. Jacob Stocker officiated at the funeral services. Mrs. Hill at the time of the funeral was in a very critical condition, owing to the suddenness of the shock, but hopes for her recovery are now entertained. The boy is survived by his parents, three brothers and one sister.

Views on Hofer

"Our old friend, Col. Hofer, must want a Democratic governor to succeed Withycombe. If not, why should he wish for the Republican nomination?—(Independence Monitor.) Anybody can wish to be governor—there is no law to forbid it yet. Will Purdy of Newberg wished to be two years ago. "Col. Hofer can be a candidate in the primaries but that's all he ever can be. Aside from a few manufacturers and big business men who tolerate him, he is a joke.—(Benton County Courier.)

Card of Thanks

Sheriff's Sale

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Clackamas.

Cora L. Stead, Plaintiff, vs. O. W. Elliott, and Leonora B. Elliott and Azalia M. Conyers, Defendants. State of Oregon, County of Clackamas, ss.

By virtue of a judgment order, decree and an execution, duly issued out of and under the seal of the above entitled court, in the above entitled cause, to me duly directed and dated the 27th day of October, 1915, upon a judgment rendered and entered in said court on the 25th day of September, 1915, in favor of Cora L. Stead, Plaintiff, and against O. W. Elliott and Leonora B. Elliott and Azalia M. Conyers, Defendants, for the sum of $2000, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the 18th day of August, 1915, and the further sum of $100.00 as attorney's fee, and the further sum of $24.20 costs and disbursements, and the costs of and upon this writ, commanding me to make sale of the following described real property, situate in the county of Clackamas, state of Oregon, to-wit: being a part of Section 34 in township 3, South Range 3 East of W. M. described as follows, to-wit: Beginning at the quarter section corner on the line between Sections 34 and 35 of said township; and running thence West on line dividing said section into North and South halves 100 rods to a point; thence South parallel to East line of said section 113 rods to the center of county road; thence East 20 feet; thence north parallel to second corner above described 49 rods to a point; thence East 100 rods less 20 feet to a point on the East line of said section; thence north 64 rods to the place of beginning, containing forty acres of land more or less.

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of said execution, judgment order and decree, and in compliance with the commands of said writ, I will, on Saturday, the 24th day of November, 1915, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M. at the front door of the County Court House in the City of Oregon City, in said County and State, sell at public auction, subject to redemption, to the highest bidder, for U. S. gold coin cash in hand, all the right, title and interest which the within named defendants or either of them, had on the date of the mortgage herein or since had in or to the above described real property or any part thereof, to satisfy said execution, judgment order, decree, interest, costs and all accruing costs.

Dated, Oregon City, Ore., Oct. 28, 1915.
W. J. WILSON,
Sheriff of Clackamas County, Ore.
By E. S. HACKETT,
Deputy.

Scene from "Dr. Rameau." Big Film at the Grand

In the recent William Fox success, "Dr. Rameau," Jean Sothern, the pretty little ingenue who plays the part of "Pamela," was informed by Director Davis that it would be necessary for her to make certain scenes in a heavy rainstorm, clad only in a light frock. Needless to say the idea did not appeal to the little lady, but she was game. With a pout and a shrug of her shoulders she prepared for the wetting. At the word "camera" she dashed out into the rain. The scene was made, but was not satisfactory to the director.

"Quickly, Miss Sothern," he called, "do that over." Again she dashed out into the rain. This time the scene was satisfactorily done, and Miss Sothern retired to her dressing room to change her clothes. When she came out a newspaper man who happened to be present asked her how it felt to be wetted so thoroughly. Miss Sothern smiled a bit and answered: "I experienced three distinct sensations during this bath. First, while waiting to go out into the rain, I felt as though I was about to have a tooth pulled. Then I felt an almost overpowering desire to giggle. After that, while I was in the rain, it felt like Coney Island."

Mock Trial Held

The Henric Literary Society met Tuesday evening, Oct. 26th. A good crowd enjoyed the mock trial. The next meeting will be held Friday, Nov. 5th. The program will include a good debate and the first issue of the Hornet, as well as several other numbers.

Amazing Appetites.

If a baby had the appetite of a young potato beetle it would eat from 50 to 100 pounds of food every twenty-four hours. If a horse ate as much as a caterpillar in proportion to its size it would consume a ton of hay every twenty-four hours. A caterpillar eats twice its weight of leaves every day, but a potato beetle devours every day at least five times its weight of foliage, every bit of which represents just so much money to the farmer. The most destructive of all insects, however, is the grasshopper, which, when in good health, consumes in a day ten times its weight of vegetation. No wonder that whole districts are devastated by its multitudinous swarms.

SHORT AND UGLY WORD SAID IN COUNCIL

"appraise property at somewhere near a good price." Appraisers who had served in times before, Mayor Jones said, "had been getting lack-a-daisical in their work."

At five minutes of nine the council took a quarter of an hour off while Recorder Loder read the minutes of the last six meetings. It so happened that these minutes contained, among other things, the history of the efforts of Mr. Templeton to put skids under the jitneys, and all the councilmen but he smiled every time the word "jitney" was read. And just to fill Templeton's cup to overflowing, later in the evening Mr. Francis asked the mayor if there was any law in the city compelling jitneys to apply for franchises. Mayor Jones ruled that all jitney legislation had been knocked out by the injunction granted by Circuit Judge Bagley—and Mr. Templeton said nothing.

At the request of the committee that was to have had charge of the pure mountain water celebration, the council eradicated from the minutes all reference to the appropriation of $500 for this celebration. Mr. Hackett said that he thought the minutes ought to stand, and that new action should be taken to kill the disputed appropriation, but Mr. Templeton said that the matter was illegal anyway. The $500 is not appropriated, and there will be no immediate celebration.

November 10 was fixed as the date for final action in the matter of the assessment of Main street property for the $14, 154 improvement of the city's chief business thoroughfare, and a meeting to wind this up will be held at half past five in the afternoon on that date.

The ordinance appropriating $1300 for the purchase of a power flusher for use on the hard surface streets was quietly postponed until next week and in the meantime Robert Sarton will experiment with cleaning the street with a stream from a two-inch hose. For this work he will be paid $1.25 a night extra.

Discussion of the power-flusher brought out some interesting things, among them being estimates as to the cost of gasoline that the engine on the flusher would use. One councilman thought the gasoline would cost 25 cents a week, and Chris Schuebel thought it would cost $25 a week. There were other guesses in between, and Councilman Hackett said that he had been told that the auto engine on top of the flusher wouldn't last very long. Councilman Cox didn't think the budget estimate would cover the cost of using the flusher. In discussing the possible use of a hose, as suggested by Mr. Sarton, Mr. Templeton remarked that the additional pressure in a two-inch hose, with which successful experiments have already been made. This moved Mr. McKee, of the Enterprise, to ask Mr. Templeton "what would a one-inch hose do, according to your figuring, knock a man down?" Mr. Templeton opined that the Enterprise man ought to be knocked down.

Mr. Sarton told the council that with a two-inch hose he could flush Seventh street and the heart of Main street every night, that he could make three trips a week over Main street from the Woolen mills to Eleventh street, and that he could probably get down to Seventeenth street once a week. The proposition looked good to the council and appears to be more economical than the flusher idea, and it will be thoroughly tried out.

Ballot titles for William E. Stone's initiated amendments to the charter were approved with some hesitancy by the council, and it appeared that Mr. Stone's measure wouldn't get many votes from the city dads. The proposed charter amendment providing for a $275,000 bond issue and a 14-mill levy was approved by the council, and its ballot title adopted.

City Attorney Schuebel suggested the transfer of outstanding High, Fifteenth and Seventh street warrants to the general fund, and this was put up to the finance committee. Mr. Schuebel also asked for a committee to look into the value of four lots at Madison and Eleventh street, held by D. C. Latourette, and against which there were some $1,600 in unpaid liens and delinquent taxes. If it is found to be worth while, the city will bring foreclosure proceedings on these lots. Hackett and Metzner were appointed to look into the question.

Mr. Schuebel also said he hoped the city recorder would take active and sudden interest in the matter of codifying the city ordinances, and Recorder Loder said he was already doing so.

After a report on the status of the W. V. S. P. R. L. & P. transfer question, mentioned elsewhere in this paper, council adjourned.

And now, by rights, this story ought to end—but there is one little thing more to add. It is tacked on here because it is an incidental, and doesn't rightfully belong in the main account of the council meeting.

When the council was discussing flushing Main street with hose, instead of a flusher, Mr. Templeton asked Fire Chief Jack Frost if two-inch hose could be bought at fifty cents a foot.

"It depends on the grade of hose," answered Mr. Frost. "I suppose you can get hose at fifty cents a foot."

And then Mr. Ponso, flying scout of the Worswick interests broke into the game.

"Gentlemen," he said, "you can get hose for two feet for fifty cents if you want to—or you can pay three dollars for the silk kind."

NOTED BARRISTER RETIRES

to young men is to attend strictly to business, stay out of politics, live economically and work hard."

Such is the epitome of his professional life that Gordon E. Hayes draws in blunt words on the eve of his retirement from active legal practice. On the first of November Judge Hayes will take his "shingle" from the door of the offices he has so long occupied, and will step aside to give younger barristers a chance.

"Long ago I promised myself that when I had accumulated sufficient for my old age I would retire from practice," said the Judge. "That time has now come, and the well-known barrister believes that he ought, in duty to the rising generation of lawyers, stand aside so that younger talent may have the same chance that he had."

Judge Hayes was the son of H. E. Hayes, an Oregon pioneer of 1852, and was born 56 years ago on the Hayes homestead, six miles west of the county seat. He studied law in Portland under Edwin Mendenhall, and on coming to Oregon City went into partnership with the Hon. L. T. Barin, at that time registrar of the land office, and a leading republican.

Later Judge McBride appointed Mr. Hayes deputy district attorney, which office he held for five years. During that time he was active in politics, and in 1892 was elected to the state senate. In 1894 he was elected county judge of this county, and at the close of his term determined to quit political office and devote himself entirely to the practice of law.

Since then Judge Hayes has figured in many cases, and has been retained as legal counsel by many large firms and railroads. In retiring from active legal work Judge Hayes says that he will devote himself to his hobbies, which are "fine stock and country life," though he will still maintain headquarters in the county seat. Judge Hayes is a member of the Knights of Pythias, Elks and Moose, and says that "in all my career I never did a professional deed of which I have been ashamed."

FARMER IS HOPE OF NEWEST BUNK

do, figuring that the farmer is a poor fool who will swallow anything that looks like a newspaper. But the farmer is not such a fool as the "city guy" takes him for, and all such attempts usually fail.

The Courier does not know what sort of a "bull-dog" edition the Journal is going to try and "circulate on rural routes." But in view of the foregoing the Courier does not see that it is showing its friendship for Clackamas county farmers in telling them at this time the above chapters from newspaper history in the Northwest.

And incidentally it may be added that the newspaper world has not heard of any great cry for reporters and editors for the Journal's morning "bull-dog" going up from the whitened pulch in which the Journal is daily born.

"WAR TRUST" FOE OF FREE LABOR

ly beneath contempt that even competition with them is out of the question. Wherever they get in, the natives and the northerners withdraw. Wherever the latter find conditions too hard or wages too low, the "Hunkies" apply eagerly. Everywhere they have been kept at the bottom so far. The worst jobs, and only these, are for them. But still they are coming in even greater numbers and by slow degrees they are pushing upward—
