MRS. BERT CRAIG WRITES LETTERS TO INTEREST YOUNG

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY TO BE ORGANIZED AT OSWEGO.

OSWEGO, Ore., Jan. 4.—(Special)—Mrs. Bert Craig has written a letter of interest to the young people which speaks for itself.

Many friends interested in the Congregational church at Oswego will be glad to know of the prospect of renewed activities there during the New year.

For some time several have worked faithfully and many have contributed generously toward improving the church building. The interior has been about finished and looks very inviting. The outside has been repainted and shingled; the grounds cleaned up, and now the basement, which has been excavated and finished with cement, will be ready shortly, and help greatly in making it all a "home" in the highest sense of the word, for all who attend there.

Now the building is about ready, are those who attend, and many more, ready to enjoy the real good, profitable times in store for all? We are trying to do our best to attain that end. One good beginning is well worthy of notice. For some time we have felt the need of a good, live Christian Endeavor, which would be a great assistance, and we were more than pleased to receive from the Christian Endeavor society of Oregon City an offer, that, if we wished such an organization in our church, they would come over, five or ten strong, and help us to get started. This kind offer was most heartily appreciated by everyone who heard of it, and a letter was written, cordially inviting them to come, as soon as possible. We do want to see the work accomplished and the brightness radiated from this center, that might well be and we expect to make the best of the possibilities before us.

The young people have health and heartiness to go ahead, if there is only an outlet for their young spirits, and we hope many will thoroughly enjoy identifying themselves with us.

The Sunday school, too, is making special efforts to brighten its sphere of work. Some interested have taken it upon themselves to try to increase the attendance, by offering prizes to those who attend a certain length of time, and bring new, regular scholars. Now, young people, boys and girls, wouldn't you like to help onward this new purpose? You will thoroughly enjoy taking part in this scheme to make Oswego even a better place than it is already for you and your friends. If you are particularly interested in Bible study come with us, or if you would enjoy the socials and pleasant evenings we plan to have by all means COME.

LODGE BACHELORS HOSTS TO MARRIED MEMBERS

I. O. O. F. HALL IS SCENE OF MERRY GATHERING MONDAY EVENING.

OSWEGO, Ore., Jan. 4.—(Special)—A very enjoyable evening was spent Monday evening, January 1st, when A. McVey, Hugh M. Fox, Joe E. Thomas and Dolmar Erickson, resident bachelors of Oswego lodge No. 93, I. O. F., entertained the members and families of the lodge and Dena Rebekah lodge No. 71, at the I. O. F. hall. This being the regular meeting night of Oswego lodge. After session the doors were thrown open to the visitors and Keo H. Malley, N. G., surrendered his chair to D. D. G. M. Arthur McVey, who gave a few remarks, welcoming the visitors and wishing all a very happy new year, and stating that he wished all to make a few remarks. Several responded to the invitation.

A musical program was rendered consisting of a piano duet by Mrs. Wm. Bickner and Miss Lillian Bickner; a duet ukulele and piano, by Miss Lillian Bickner and Gladys Yates. In addition, Mrs. Geo. Miller gave a recitation and Arthur McVey gave an interesting talk upon the good of the order, its aims and purposes, etc.

After the program was rendered all proceeded to the dining room where the surprise of the evening was enjoyed by all present. It being a sumptuous luncheon and with the bachelors serving.

After lunch the members and guests retired to the hall where the remainder of the evening was spent in games, etc. It would be hard to say whether the guests wished the bachelors better success in the matrimonial line in the ensuing years, or whether they wished them to remain bachelors with a repetition of the same again, and they being invited to partake of another delicious luncheon. It is self-evident that the bachelors are not lacking in modesty and are enjoying the full amount of praise and credit due them. Plans are being formed to have another social time April 26th, by the two branches of the I. O. F. here.

MAYOR A. KING WILSON ANSWERS LETTER

ANNEXATION OF OSWEGO CAUSES
MUCH CONCERN AMONG LOCAL RESIDENTS.

OSWEGO, Ore., Jan. 4.—(Special)—The Oregon City Enterprise, Oregon City, Ore.—To the Editor: I beg permission for space in your paper to answer the letter of Mr. V. F. Cooper, of Oswego.

I heard Eli Perkins lecture once, and he made comment on the old adage "Birds of a feather flock together," and he said: "Wouldn't a bird look funny flocking by himself?" Now, as far as Oswego and the surrounding territory is concerned, Mr. Cooper is flocking by himself.

The city attorney of Portland recently rendered an opinion that a city could be in two counties in Oregon; therefore, if Oswego wanted to become a part of Portland, it could do so now without any change of the county boundary. As far as I know, there is no one in the territory who opposes the annexation to Multnomah county, except Mr. Cooper.

Mr. Cooper makes the statement that Multnomah annexation means more taxes. After a careful examination of the matter, I have reached the conclusion, with others who have also examined it, that it means less taxes.

There is some criticism in Mr. Cooper's letter of the officials at Oregon City and also of the Oregon Iron & Steel Co. These statements I do not care to answer.

Parties have come to me and urged that the entire county of Clackamas be annexed to Multnomah county because Multnomah county is so very small, being the smallest county in the state. It is our opinion that we have been modest and reasonable in asking that the Multnomah county line be extended south three miles only. They have taken no territory except that which is tributary to the city of Portland as a trade center. There are no people in this territory who go to Oregon City to work, nor do they market their products there. They all come to Portland with everything they raise and also to labor. We have no transportation except the county road between Oswego and Oregon City.

This move does not arise out of any animosity or ill feeling towards Oregon City on the part of the citizens of Oswego. These are 3000 miles of county road in Clackamas county, and with all the diverging views as to what kind of a road should be built, and every person a law unto himself in forming an opinion as to character of road improvement, it is impossible to please everyone. This fact is fully appreciated by the people of Oswego, but we have felt that we would be a great deal better off in Multnomah county, and that Clackamas county would be practically as well off without us. We have asked that we be permitted to join Multnomah county. With the exception of Mr. Cooper, we all want to go in, and it only seems reasonable that we should be permitted to join Multnomah county.

As the result of the change, Oregon City would get a road on the west side of the river which would practically cost them nothing, and all the county money could be used on the east side of the river, which would be beneficial to the east side as well as the west side. This is not a private matter. It is a public matter.

Very truly yours,

A. KING WILSON

Alaska's Great Forest.

The Tongass forest comprises about 15,000,000 acres and is described by the forest service as one of the most extensive bodies of timber remaining in the United States. Single trees in this great forest often reach a diameter of seven or more feet and tower to a height of 200 feet. One log brought to a local Alaskan mill was 154 feet long and cut 18,000 board feet. Many parts of this forest will cut from 50,000 to 75,000 feet per acre, and some areas carry 100,000 feet per acre.—Tree Talk.
