CORN MEAL ECONOMICAL FOOD

Many Tempting Dishes May be Prepared at Little Cost

Corn meal, as compared with other foods, is a low priced material and may be used as the basis for many appetizing dishes. The white and yellow meals differ somewhat in flavor but are much alike in composition, there being no difference in food values. The following excellent recipes are offered by Laura J. Cheney, of O. A. C.:

CORN MEAL PUFFS

1 quart milk; two thirds cupful corn meal; 1/4 cupful sugar; 1 teaspoonful salt; 8 eggs; grated nutmeg. Cook the milk and meal together 15 minutes with the salt and sugar. When cool add the egg well beaten. Bake in cups. Serve with stewed fruit or jam.

SOUR MILK CORN BREAD

2 cupfuls corn meal; 2 cupfuls sour milk; 2 tablespoonfuls fat; 2 tablespoonfuls brown sugar; 1 1/2 teaspoonfuls salt; 2 eggs; 1 teaspoonful soda; 1 tablespoonful cold water. Cook the meal, milk, salt, butter and sugar in a double boiler for about ten minutes. When the mixture is cool, add the eggs well beaten and the soda dissolved in the water. Bake in a shallow iron or granite pan for about 30 minutes.

BUTTERMILK WAFFLES

3 cupfuls water; 2 cupfuls corn meal; 2 cupfuls wheat flour; 1 cupful sweet milk; 4 eggs; 2 tablespoonfuls fat; 2 teaspoonfuls salt; 1 1/2 teaspoonfuls soda; buttermilk or sour milk enough to make a thin batter. Cook the meal, water, salt and fat together in a double boiler for 10 minutes. When the mush is cool add the well beaten eggs. Sift the flour and soda together, add the flour and the soda together alternately to the corn mixture, finally add the buttermilk and beat thoroughly. This mixture is improved by standing a short time.

CORN MEAL PUFFS

1 quart milk; two thirds cupful corn meal; 1/4 cupful sugar; 1 teaspoonful salt; 8 eggs; grated nutmeg. Cook the milk and meal together 15 minutes with the salt and sugar. When cool add the egg well beaten. Bake in cups. Serve with stewed fruit or jam.

CORN BREAD

3 cupfuls yellow corn meal; 1 cupful flour; 1/4 cupful fat; 1 tablespoonful granulated sugar; 1 teaspoonful salt; 2 tablespoonfuls baking powder. Sift all dry ingredients together and work in the fat. Add enough milk or water to make a stiff batter. Bake about 15 minutes.

Potato growing is an important industry of Oregon and is generally a profitable one. The acreage in potatoes, however, and the average yield per acre have been decreasing during recent years, particularly in certain sections of the state where the soil diseases have been especially prevalent, for this decrease in the production of potatoes has been very largely due to disease. The comparatively rapid increase in the number of diseases affecting potatoes is due in part to the continuous culture of potatoes on the same land for a period of several years. This unfortunate practice furnishes excellent conditions for the propagation of the common diseases and for the origination of new ones.

It is fortunate that practically all the diseases attacking the potato can be successfully controlled by comparatively simple and inexpensive measures. It should be borne in mind that the control of these diseases depends entirely on prevention and not on cure. If, for instance, a potato leaf is infected with late blight, it cannot be cured of the disease, although the spread of this disease to other leaves or other plants can be prevented by spraying properly.

Spraying—In order to control certain of the leaf diseases, such as late blight or early blight, spraying of the potato plants must frequently be resorted to. For this purpose Bordeaux mixture has proved to be the most efficient spray mixture used, of which the following formula is most frequently employed and is apparently best for potatoes: Copper sulfate (bluestone), 5 pounds; lump lime, 5 pounds; water, 50 gallons. This is briefly and commonly expressed as 5-5-50 Bordeaux. A weaker solution, such as 3-4-50, may often be used with good results if it is thoroughly applied.

Early Blight—Early blight attacks only the potato leaves, causing brown spots thereon, which, as they enlarge, develop concentric rings or markings, producing a "target" effect. When the spots are numerous, they kill the leaves with a consequent reduction in the yield of the potatoes. In contrast to late blight this disease develops best in warm dry periods. It is not serious in this state, but where prevalent it can be successfully prevented by thorough and timely spraying with Bordeaux mixture.

Tip Burn—Tip burn is a drying and dying of the leaves, beginning at the tips and margins and working inward. The leaves often roll and become brown, presenting a scorched appearance. This trouble is usually most pronounced on light soils and during hot, dry periods. If possible, maintain an adequate soil-moisture supply by irrigation or careful cultivation. This disease can be largely prevented by timely spraying with Bordeaux mixture, due probably to the shading effect which this spray has on the foliage of the potato plant. All growers of potatoes should write to O. A. C. for Bulletin 186.—M. B. McKay, Asst. Plant Pathologist at O. A. C.

Some men are like typewriter ribbons. They give out only what is pounded into them.—Printers' Ink.
