

FIVE NEAR DEATH IN CRASH WHEN MOTOR STALLS ON CAR TRACK AT GRAY'S CROSSING

A party composed of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Theroux, Mrs. Marguerite Olinger, Miss Cecelia Spotts and Miss Mable Volkmar, of this city, while returning by automobile from Portland on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock had a narrow escape from death, when an electric car at Gray's crossings struck their automobile.

Mr. Theroux was in charge of the engine, while his wife was at the steering wheel. As they approached the track that crosses the wagon road the electric bell failed to give the alarm of the incoming electric car.

Just as the automobile reached the track, Mrs. Theroux called to her husband to shut off the engine. In doing so he brought the car to a halt in the center of the track in front of the car.

The automobile was struck with terrific force, but the three members of the party, except Mrs. Theroux and Mrs. Volkmar, remained with the automobile.

Mrs. Theroux in jumping from the automobile received injuries to her head, and was unconscious when picked up by the car crew. She was carried for some distance by the car.

Miss Volkmar, who also jumped, was not injured. Those remaining in the car were uninjured.

The automobile was slightly damaged, but the party was able to return to Oregon City in it.

Mrs. Theroux is a teacher in the Oregon City schools, and was unable to take up her studies at the institution this morning, as she was suffering from the injuries to her head and from shock.

All members of the automobile party are well known in this city. Mr. Theroux is in charge of a local music house. Mrs. Olinger is a vocal instructor; Miss Volkmar is a piano instructor, and Miss Cecelia Spotts is instructor in the Oregon City schools.

GAS PIPE CANG FELLS WORKMAN IN DARK TUNNEL

PETER ERICKSON, 50, FALLS SECOND VICTIM OF HIGHWAY. MEN IN THREE DAYS

Oregon City's gang of gas-pipe bandits found a second victim in Peter Erickson, 50-year-old employee of the Hawley Pulp & Paper company, shortly after midnight Monday night.

Erickson was returning to his home from the mills. As he came to the end of the tunnel under the Southern Pacific tracks at the foot of the Fourth street steps he was assaulted by two men.

One of them struck him across the head three times with a piece of gas-pipe, cutting a long gash in his forehead. The iron club, which was formed by a wooden stick driven into a seven inch length of one-inch pipe, was broken by the vigor of the blow.

Erickson was dazed and helpless, but did not lose his feet. Fellow-workers, by this time, were entering the tunnel and it is believed by the police that the sound of their footsteps frightened away the highway-men.

Night Officers Cook and Long immediately began a search, which was kept up for several hours. A detachment of soldiers with rifles aided them in the hunt. By two o'clock Larry Brizette, 30, Frank Lewis and Larry Lewis were in jail as suspects. All of the men are strangers in Oregon City.

Erickson walked to his home in Falls View, about a mile distant. Dr. Mount was called to attend him. Wong Ching, a Chinese gardener, suffered a similar attack Saturday night.

Little Runaway Returned To Arms After Eighteen Months Disappearance

"Well, I had to milk cows, do the chores, cut wood and other things," said Merle.

Before Breakfast

Later he told the officers that he had to milk six cows every morning before breakfast, and that although he went to school every day his working day ran from six in the morning until nine or ten at night. According to the boy's story he had received a total of $1.75 from Wettlaufer during the year and a half he had been working for him. Of this 90 cents had been given him for chopping wood, 60 cents for shocking wheat, and a quarter for just "being good." He was well fed, however, the boy said.

Wettlaufer used to be a preacher.

Fond Mother

So impressed with the little fellow's story were the officials that they immediately started a search to find the lad's mother. The boy had not heard from her during his stay on the Wettlaufer farm. His father was dead, he said. Later, Mrs. Barbur said she had tried, but had been refused information about the boy.

Frost finally located the mother at the Oregon City Woolen Mills where she was employed, through William Hammond who was in the court house at the time. Hammond, a lawyer, recently filed a divorce suit for Mrs. Barbur against Orange L. Barbur.

Sent Home

After the mother had arrived at the office, Frost and Deputy District Attorney Burke hunted through the juvenile court records and learned that the boy was still a ward of the juvenile court.

"You take him home with you tonight and we'll look into this," Frost said.

"Would you rather come home with grandma and me or go back—out there?" ask d the little mother.

"I'd rather go with grandma and you," said the boy.

So they went out the doorway together.
