Teacher Gets Leave

The city school board at its meeting last Thursday extended a leave of absence to Mrs. Lillian Holsworth, a grade teacher. Miss Holsworth will leave immediately for the east, where a near relative is ill. She will resume her duties upon her return from the east.

IT WAS HIS OWN FIGHT.

So Plucky Enver Pasha Wanted the Scrap All to Himself.

I have known Enver Pasha for some years now, said a British vice consul to a traveler who writes to an exchange. The beginning of our friendship dates from the Young Turk revolution of 1908. On the morning that the revolution broke out in Constantinople I went to the bazaars with a guard of marines to see that the shops of British subjects were not attacked. I found the Hindus unmolested, but the shops of the Armenians, Jews, Syrians and Greeks were being ruthlessly plundered, and I observed men armed or wounded lying on the pavement tried to defend. The climax was reached when a hulking trooper came staggering over the body of a murdered Armenian rug merchant, carrying a sack of loot in one hand and with the other dragging by the hair a half senseless girl of fourteen or fifteen.

I had been ordered to refrain from interfering, except to protect British subjects, and I was still hesitating when an Ottoman cavalry officer galloped up, leaped from his horse and flung himself upon the soldier. A vicious saber cut, shearing through the turban and scalp, sent the hulking wretch to the pavement. Instantly the youthful Galahad stooped to raise the fainting girl, and it was only by a catlike spring that he was able to oppose any guard to a descending saber that one of the other looters aimed at the exposed back of his neck.

A moment later he had backed into an angle of the wall and was calmly meeting the furious but ill directed attack of the ruffians.

I wish the fight could have gone on to a finish, for so coolly and adroitly did the young officer stand his ground that I am confident he would have out-matched his clumsy assailants. But my jacks got out of hand and started in to equalize a contest that outraged their sense of sportsmanship. The Bazaris scattered at the sight of the ominously leveled bayonets, but it was a very angry Turkish officer who strode up to the big sergeant of marines and in voluble French demanded to know what he meant by mixing up in another man's fight.

"I am K. of the British Embassy," I interposed in halting Turkish. "The marines thought you were in danger and with the best of intentions tried to create a diversion in your favor."

"I am Enver, captain in the Young Turk army," he replied stiffly in precise English. "In the circumstances my apology is accepted. As you and these men appear to have wandered away from that portion of the city where protection has been provided for foreigners, may I not require your kindness by conducting all of you safely back to the British Embassy?"

And, in spite of my protests to the contrary, come he did. But he unbent on the way, and our meeting of that morning was the beginning of a warm friendship.

CHAMPION TREE FELLERS.

Beavers Are More Expert Than the Best Lumberjacks.

The most expert lumberjack is inferior to the beaver as a tree feller. He cuts down trees in the most scientific way. He can fell a tree so it will fall toward the pond where he wishes to construct his home, thus saving himself unnecessary work.

After the trees are felled the construction work begins. He works chiefly by night, for he is a nocturnal prowler. The moon is his lantern, the quiet of the night his inspiration, his sharp teeth are his hatchet and chisel, and his little paws are his means of conveyance, his spade, his hammer and his trowel. His hard, flat hairless and scaly tail is a propeller when swimming and a balance when he is cutting timber, for he stands on his hind legs while gnawing down trees.

The beaver is a strict vegetarian, and his diet consists chiefly of bark, tender shoots and water plants.

To flood low grounds the beavers sometimes have to build a dam exceeding fifty feet in length. They usually lay it out with the curve facing upstream. The foundation is built of poles four or five feet long by an inch or two thick. These they lay crosswise, filling all crevices with mud. The beaver digs up mud with his fore feet, then holds it close to his breast with his fore legs, swims to where he has started his dam, and having deposited it in its proper place beats the mud down with his paws—not with his tail, as has been believed.

Henley and Stevenson.

W. E. Henley once met Robert Louis Stevenson and found his friend distressed because he was not a Voltair or a Dumas, though he had an equipment which ought to have made him their peer. Stevenson put his "failure" down to the weakness of his lungs. "Perhaps you are right, Louis," said Henley. "I've always felt that if I had not been a blessed cripple I could have taken the earth in my hand and hurled it into the sun."

Fine Excuse.

The Heavy—I hear that your interpretation of Hamlet was hissed at the High Forehead theater last night. The Lead—Ah, yes! The performance was billed as a Shakespearean revival and I suspect some partisans of Bacon resented it.—Pack.

Willie Did.

Teacher—Willie, give me a sentence in which the term hook and eye is used. Willie—Me an' pa went fishin'. Pa told me t' bait me hook, an' I did.

LOGAN

Harding grange held the usual interesting meeting on the third. A strong resolution was passed against county division and in favor of postal notification of delinquent taxes for the entire state as well as Multnomah county. Mr. Bateson led the discussion on tile draining and showed himself well posted on the subject. The discussion on co-operation took a wide range, from creameries and cheese factories, co-operative buying and selling to electric lighting and steam laundering. Some thought the latter impractical and that good washing machines and plenty of hot water and steam are good enough.

Oliver Gerber has been buying potatoes and is going into the feed business in Estacada, the city with county seat aspirations and expectations.

Mrs. L. E. Robbins is slowly improving in health.

The coldest day of the year here was the last day of January. The thermometer registered 16 degrees above zero.

There were 11 inches of snow here and in places is drifted to a depth of two feet.

Butchering seems to be the order for the day. Mr. Shminsky and the Updegrave boys butchered four hogs and a beef and made all the meat into sausage.

A. J. Morrison is also butchering hogs and making sausage.
