Resume of the News of the Week from All Parts of Oregon

Inland Empire grain growers formally demanded of the Portland dock commission last Friday morning the construction of a public bulk grain elevator of an initial capacity of 1,000,000 bushels, if this port wishes to handle the export grain of the territory naturally tributary to it. The dock commission pledges its utmost efforts to induce the people at the June election to authorize bonds sufficient to meet the cost. At later deliberations the exact amount will be determined. The growers will cooperate in the campaign.

The commercial fishermen of Yaquina bay have forwarded to Joint Representative Fuller of Polk and Lincoln counties a petition to amend the fishing law governing Yaquina bay to close it to salmon fishing during the open season from 6 p. m. Saturday to 6 p. m. Sunday evening of each week.

John E. Johnson, an engineer of Vale, has a crew of surveyors at work north and east of Malheur lake making a survey of the lands for the purpose of installing a large pumping plant to irrigate the lands directly west of Crane and east and north of the lake. The plant will be furnished from a power site in the mountains owned by Johnson and Johnson of Vale, and they expect to place water on at least 50,000 acres of land.

The general activity in lumber manufacture and new development on Coos bay seems likely to bring about the reopening of the old box factory in North Bend. It was purchased with right of way by the Southern Pacific company several years ago and closed down through expectation the company would need the land on which it stands. The box factory was established in 1905.

Frank J. Miller, chairman of the public service commission, declared Thursday that railroad companies doing business in the west have but little excuse for basing the present car shortage on increased shipments. "If the railroad companies find that they cannot handle the immense shipments that are confronting them, the solution is to build more cars," said Mr. Miller. "I take it as a poor excuse to say that shipments are piling up so rapidly that there are no facilities to handle them."

Pacific University, co-operating with a company now existent, is to establish a plant in Forest Grove for the manufacture of willow furniture. College students will be employed in the factory and will thus be enabled to work their way through school. The factory will be built on the campus or near it, and it is estimated that a student can earn his way through college by working three hours a day.

A number of people at and near Salem are interested in pushing the flax industry and securing a linen factory there, and the Commercial club is ready to enter actively into the development of the industry, according to a report reaching the state board of control. The club proposes to contract for 5000 to 6000 acres of flax for the coming season and the board will probably be able to supply the required seed.

Because of the unusually heavy snows in the Blue mountains, many people have fears of high water if a rapid thaw should come. At Kamela and other places in the mountains the snow is reported to be six and eight feet deep. The O.-W. R. & N. officials are also apprehensive of high water, which would greatly damage their tracks.

The board of directors of the Lane county fair association on Saturday officially decided to hold no round-up next fall in connection with the fair. An executive board was chosen by the directors as follows: C. J. Hurd, M. H. Harlow, Amos Wilkins, E. M. Werren, Henry W. Stewart, George W. Taylor, E. E. Morrison, Alton Hampton and E. A. Bond.

After a meeting of the board of control, Secretary of State Olcott said he may ask legislative authority to turn back the property of the Salem Hospital association, acquired under condemnation proceedings, and secure a refund of the $15,000 paid. The purchase was authorized in 1915. The hospital has continued to occupy the buildings.

Forty-two dollars per day is a neat little sum of wages. But that is what one Dallas farmer cleared up last Monday. Jack Lynn, residing near the Portland cement quarry 4 miles southwest of town on route 2, killed 12 pole cats on that day. The skins of these animals are worth an average of $3.50 each. Mr. Lynn will ship the skins to an eastern fur company.

Giving a brilliant light and being odorless and smokeless, the gas discovered on the Cass Riggs place between Rickreall and McCoy, in Polk county, has been tested recently by a Los Angeles gas expert and declared to be the best natural gas in Oregon. The Polk County Observer says: "Mr. Riggs has taken advantage of his discovery and lights every room in his house with gas. He also uses it to cook with and says there hasn't been a fire in his cook-stove since April. The gas can be brought to a heating temperature in five minutes."

Because of the railroad embargo east of Chicago on hops, this commodity has been slow to move this winter. On Wednesday H. L. Fenton of Polk county shipped a car to Chicago and another car followed within a few days. Warehousemen estimate that there are about 2000 bales of hops still in storage at Dallas. With the exception of two crops all of the hops in the territory have been sold by growers.

A fire, started by Pere Siivola, an insane man, did fully $250,000 damage Friday to the Clatsop Mill company's plant in Astoria. The flames started in the box factory and the sash and door plant at about the same time and spread to four dry kilns, all of which were destroyed, with their contents. Considerable lumber in the yard was also burned. The main mill was saved. The loss probably is three-fourths covered by insurance. Two hundred men will be thrown out of employment until the plant can be rebuilt.

The first eastern mail to arrive at the Corvallis post office for four days was delivered Thursday morning, having arrived Wednesday night. A second arrival of eastern mail came the next morning. The mail that arrived Wednesday night should have been there Saturday and that which came Thursday morning should have arrived there Sunday.

Seventeen head of fine Jersey milk cows and one registered bull were killed near Yoncalla last week by R. W. Long, one of the most prominent dairymen of this state, after he had ascertained that they were afflicted with tuberculosis. Mr. Long's herd was considered one of the finest in the state, and for some time the milk and cream from his ranch has been in demand. During the last few weeks Mr. Long noticed that there was an increasing amount of sickness in the herd, and immediately stopped the sale of the products, and wrote to the state stock inspector to come to Yoncalla at once and make an examination.

Approximately 10,000 acres of farm land, many of which heretofore have been unyielding, probably will be brought under a network of 30 miles of gravity irrigation ditches, as the result of an election held Saturday in certain precincts of Josephine county for the purpose of obtaining authorization in the formation of such a district. Only five votes were cast against the project. Only land owners whose names appeared upon the assessment rolls in precincts within the proposed district were eligible to vote at the election.

Committees to work on the organization of a drainage district, which will include a large portion of French prairie, were appointed at a meeting held at Gervais last week. About 60 land holders of the district attended the meeting. Professor W. L. Powers and J. E. Larson of the Oregon Agricultural college discussed the water courses, elevations, qualities of various kinds of soils in the district and other phases of the blue prints prepared recently by federal engineers. The district affected is about 15 miles long and four or five miles wide, reaching from Lake Labish to Wilsonville.

Sam Storey, field manager of the Utah-Idaho sugar factory at Grants Pass, was in Cottage Grove the latter part of the week visiting farmers and endeavoring to interest them in the culture of the sugar beet, the product to be contracted by his firm. He offered the farmers contracts for $6.50 a ton, f. o. b. Cottage Grove. He presented the sugar beet proposition to the grange. All bottom land in that vicinity is declared by experienced growers to be ideal for the culture of this product, which has a ready cash market awaiting it each year.

At a meeting of the Hillsboro school board Saturday notice was ordered posted calling an election on February 17 to vote upon a proposed bond issue of $14,000 to build an addition to the Hillsboro high school. The building was constructed four years ago at an expense of $25,000, and at that time it was believed ample facilities were provided for many years to come. This year the building is crowded to capacity and a large eighth-grade class will be graduated in the spring and must be provided for.

ALBRIGHT ARRESTED
Not Guilty is Plea of Councilman Who Drove Car on Walk

John F. Albright, city councilman and candidate for sheriff at the last primary election, was arrested here Sunday for an attempt to drive his automobile into the Grand theater, where, it is said, he desired to show his paces on the stage. Albright was arrested when he had driven the machine onto the sidewalk in front of the show house. He was put in jail on a charge of drunkenness, but was later released upon his promise to appear for hearing Monday morning. The big automobile was held by the officers until the following day. While in jail Mr. Albright, who has been fined several times by Portland officials for his antics at the wheel of his machine while intoxicated, intimated that his political enemies were after him and that his arrest was a frame-up on their part. Albright entered a plea of not guilty before Recorder Loder on Tuesday and his hearing was set for this afternoon in the city council chambers. Albright claims he was not intoxicated, but the officers who arrested him and witnesses are ready to testify to the contrary, it is said. Albright has retained Joseph E. Hedges as his legal counsel.

Would Quiet Title
Burton Brown and Bertha Harper brought suit Wednesday against J. W. Ladd and W. C. Johnson to quiet title to property sold to Brown and Harper 40 years ago. The property was sold to them for taxes, it appears, and they now desire to dispose of it.

REV. HAWKINS LEAVES

The Rev. J. K. Hawkins, pastor of the First M. E. church in this city, is preparing to leave within a month for Le Mars, Iowa, where he will assume the pastorate of the First church. The move is a result of transfer negotiations with the Rev. E. E. Gilbert of Le Mars, who will come to Oregon City. The church there is said to be one of the finest, being practically new. The Rev. Mr. Hawkins has been a very active worker in the local pulpit, and he has taken a great interest in civic affairs. Last year he served as a term as chairman of the program committee of the Live Wires. He has carried the standard of Methodism into many parts of the county which were not affiliated and has surrounded himself with a wide circle of friends who will regret his departure. It is said that Mr. Hawkins refused to consider the same transfer about two years ago.

AMES KILLS COUGAR

Estacada Hunter Profits Richly from Game Killed on Mountain Trip
A. G. Ames of Estacada believes he has found the best way yet of making money and at the same time enjoying himself in the great outdoors. Mr. Ames on Monday presented the perfect skins of five large cougar and four bob cats to County Clerk Harrington for county bounty. He had just returned from the Oak Grove country about 50 miles beyond Estacada, where he spent 17 days on a hunting trip. Considering the total value of the skins Mr. Ames will profit about $16 for each day of his trip. The county bounty paid to Mr. Ames on the cougars was $10 each. For the bob cats he received $2 each, or a total of $58. The state game commission pays an additional bounty, which was collected by Mr. Ames, of $15 on each cougar skin and the value of the skin on the market is about $25 each. The bob cats should bring about $3 each, so that the total earnings for the trip are reasonably placed at $270.

THREE ASK DIVORCE
Judge Signs Decree in Favor of Frank Cross Against Wife

Helen Helmig, married to William Helmig at Jamestown, N. D., on November 28, 1903, charges in a divorce complaint filed here Saturday that her husband did not provide her and her four children with sufficient clothing. She bases her complaint on non-support, asks the custody of the children and $100 monthly alimony in addition to $500 gross alimony. Judge Campbell awarded Mrs. Helmig $200 to pay the costs of the action while it is pending. Pearl Smith asks a divorce from Fred Smith on a charge of desertion. They were married at Portland on April 27, 1904. Mrs. Smith would resume here maiden name, Pearl Shaffer. Non-support and cruelty are charges brought by Harriet L. Lund against Olaf Lund in a complaint filed Saturday. The Lunds were married in Idaho on August 24, 1912. Judge Campbell signed a decree Saturday separating Frank E. and Bessie Cross. The case went by default of Mrs. Cross.

Summons
In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Clackamas.

Ida A. Sappington, Plaintiff, vs. Henry Herbert Sappington, Defendant.
To Henry Herbert Sappington, the defendant above named:
In the name of the State of Oregon you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint of the plaintiff filed against you in the above entitled suit on or before six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons, to-wit: before the 22nd day of March, 1917, that being the date fixed by the Court for the last date of publication, and if you fail to so appear and answer, the plaintiff will apply to the above entitled Court for the relief sought in her complaint, to-wit: for a decree of absolute divorce, dissolving and terminating the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant.
This summons is served upon you by order of the Honorable J. U. Campbell, Judge of the above entitled Court, which order was made on the 8th day of February, 1917, and requires that said summons be published once a week for six consecutive weeks in the Courier, a paper of general circulation, published in Oregon City, Oregon.
Date of first publication, February 8, 1917.

GIRL ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

J. C. Watson, Oregon City Man, Named by California Lass
Miss Bertena Becom, the 19-year-old Oakland, Cal., girl who attempted to commit suicide at a Portland hotel on Friday evening, has named J. C. Watson of Oregon City as the man with whom she quarreled before she tried to kill herself by drinking poison. The young woman was taken to the Portland emergency hospital by policemen and it was said that she would recover from the effects of the poison she drank. Miss Becom says that Watson induced her to come to Portland on the understanding that they would soon marry. The time dragged by, the young woman says, and although Watson often called upon her, he grew reticent when she spoke of their wedding. She says that on Friday night Weston told her definitely that he would not marry her and wanted nothing more to do with her. And then she went to a drug store, Miss Becom says, and bought chloroform, which she drank in an effort to end her sorrows.

Obituaries

Mrs. Harriet Ballard
Mrs. Harriet Ballard, aged 46, died at her home at Gladstone yesterday after suffering for several weeks. Mrs. Ballard was a native of Thayer, Neb., and was born on December 10, 1871. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Schoonover, of Vancouver, Wash., and was married in 1891 to Peston Ballard. The family had lived in Gladstone only about a year. Mrs. Ballard leaves her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Louise Marrs of Gladstone. Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. J. Avery and the Rev. J. K. Hawkins at the local M. E. church Friday afternoon at two o'clock and interment will be in Mountain View.

George Prosser
George Prosser, who crossed the plains to Oregon in 1853, died at his home at Oswego yesterday after an extended illness. Mr. Prosser was born at Des Moines, Iowa, and after coming to Oswego was postmaster for a number of years. He is survived by Mrs. Prosser, who is a niece of Captain J. T. Apperson of Park place, and two daughters, Mrs. Silva Dame of Los Angeles and Miss Della Prosser of Oswego. The O. O. F. lodge at Oswego, of which Mr. Prosser was a charter member, will have charge of the funeral here on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. Interment will be in the Oswego cemetery.

WEST LINN BOY WINS

Youth is Second Alternate for Appointment to Naval Academy
Irwin Stearns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stearns of West Linn, has been appointed second alternate for appointment to the United States Naval academy at Annapolis by Congressman Hawley. The young man recently passed the preliminary examinations with flying colors, although two others are credited with slightly higher mark. The others are Adolph Greenbaum of Salem, appointee, and Roger Simpson of Eugene, first alternate. The nomination of Stearns does not mean that he will go to Annapolis, because of the fact that two others will have a chance to accept the appointment. Should anything prevent the appointee and his first alternate from accepting the nomination, however, Stearns will have a chance to go to the academy.

RECITAL PLEASURES

Miss Louise Walker Presents Pupils at Informal Musical
The recital at the home of Miss Louise Walker, given by 18 of her pupils on Saturday evening, was a delightful musical affair and attracted a number of friends and relatives of the young players. The feature of the program from a musical standpoint was the playing of Miss Walker and Miss Bowie of Portland. They rendered the William Tell and Lustspiel overtures. The pupils of Miss Walker, among whom were some highly accomplished musicians, played compositions by Beethoven, Chopin, Nevin and Schumann and won the interest and commendation of their guests by their splendid playing.

WOULD RELEASE STUDER

Wife of Prisoner Circulates Petition to Have Him Freed
A petition signed by scores of local business men, including Sheriff W. J. Wilson and attorneys, has been circulated by Mrs. Philip Studer of Stringtown, asking the parole or release of her husband from the state penitentiary. Mrs. Studer is ready to forward the document to Salem for the consideration of the parole board or the governor. Studer was committed to the prison from this county last May 17 after conviction on a charge of chicken stealing. His sentence was from two to five years. Studer has promised to reform and his wife believes him.

Woman Found Insane

Mrs. Lettie Schermerhorn was committed to the state hospital last Thursday by County Judge Anderson after examination by two doctors. Mrs. Schermerhorn, who is 44 years old, has religious delusions. She was first attended by officers last week when she was bothering people on Main street. Her husband lives at Lents, but Mrs. Schermerhorn has made her home with her sons, Louis and Ray Cameron, near Oregon City. The Courier and the Daily Journal $4.75.

THE FIRST FRUIT TREES
Oregon's Original Orchard Tract is Now Beautiful Gold Green
Fruit growing is one of the most important industries of Oregon, and brings to this state about $11,000,000 annually. Cherries and apples as well as pears and peaches are bringing fame and money to the growers. It is interesting to know that the first grafted fruit trees in the Pacific northwest were planted by Henderson Luelling in November, 1847, near where now stands the beautiful club house of the Waverly Country club. Because of the importance that the industry has gained and the value it is to Oregon it has been suggested by George H. Himes, curator of the Oregon Historical society, and others that on or near the spot on the golf links where Oregon's first fruit trees were planted a monument or commemorative tablet should be erected. The story of the first fruit tree planting in Oregon is a part of the romance of the olden days of the state. Records show that Mr. Luelling, who descended from a long line of nurserymen in Wales, when a mere lad learned the art of grafting-trees from his father. At the age of 22 he moved from North Carolina to Indiana. Having read about Lewis and Clark's exploring expedition into the Oregon country he decided to remove westward and continue his nursery business in a new land. The problem of transporting young trees overland was worked out after many months of experiment. He finally hit upon the plan of planting about 1000 trees in earth and charcoal in the strong box beds of two wagons. He drove the first team of oxen and his young son, Alfred, the second. The trip was started in April, 1847, and ended seven months later at Milwaukie; the trees were watered from the streams along the trail. Mr. Luelling secured a tract of cleared land from E. A. Wilson on the east bank of the Willamette river, half a mile from Milwaukie—the present golf links and polo grounds of the Waverly Country club. He planted the young trees and thereby, in the words of another pioneer, Ralph C. Geer, brought "health, wealth and comfort for the old pioneers of Oregon." Mr. Geer further says: "That nursery was the mother of all our early nurseries and orchards, and gave Oregon a name and fame that she never would have had without it. These loads of living shrubs and trees brought more wealth to Oregon than any ship that ever entered the Columbia river." Mr. Geer had brought across the plains one bushel of apple and a half bushel of pear seeds. He furnished Mr. Luelling with stock and in turn was given buds from the much-traveled nursery, which enabled both to furnish to the harder toilers of the soil cultivated trees in great numbers. In the spring of 1848 Mr. Luelling formed a partnership with William Meek, who had started a tree nursery stock at the forks of the Santiam in 1847. For six years this firm raised young trees for distribution throughout the Pacific coast. While one is on the subject of early fruit growing in the Pacific northwest, it is well to tell something of Seth Luelling, a younger brother of Henderson Luelling. Seth was a shoemaker, but spent his odd time with his brother near Milwaukie and gradually acquired a comprehensive knowledge of fruit tree culture. It is to him that we are indebted for a number of new varieties of cherries. He originated the Black Republican cherry in the early 60's, and the Bing in 1890. The latter was named after Ring, a faithful Chinese, who cared for the seedling cherry during the experimental stage. Another man who did much for the fruit industry and, by the way, later owned the same orchard that was started by Mr. Luelling, was Joseph Hamilton Lambert. He married the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller of Milwaukie and lived in Powell valley until 1859, when he and his father-in-law purchased
