

Any time is dance time with a Victrola

The wise devotee of dancing should need no further reason for getting a Victrola—today! We might dwell on the fact that the Victrola as a dance "orchestra" affords always the best and the latest numbers, that its dance music is unfailingly perfect in time, and that its musicians are the best; but to the true dance-lover the greatest privilege the Victrola brings is the joy of dancing whenever and wherever "the spirit moves."

GENERAL FUNSTON DEAD

Indigestion Takes Noted Soldier Who Commanded on Border

A sudden stroke of acute indigestion took the life of Major General Frederick Funston on Monday evening as he was playing with a child in the lobby of his hotel at San Antonio, Texas. The general, who was in command of the southern department of the United States army, had just finished his dinner in the hotel and had gone into the lobby. He was stricken and after a few minutes of unconsciousness he died.

Since March, 1916, when he was placed in command of all United States forces on the Mexican border, General Funston had worked at an unusual pace. At critical times in border developments he frequently remained on duty 24 hours of the day. The handling of regulars disposed of at various stations on the border, the Pershing expedition, and of late, rearrangement of regular troops, while providing for the return of national guardsmen, have entailed an enormous amount of detail work, probably exceeding that which has fallen to any commanding general of the United States army since the Civil war. Only Monday General Funston completed orders for the return of the guardsmen.

The capture of Aguinaldo, the Filipino rebel chief, was the achievement which brought Funston prominently to the attention of the American people, but he performed many services for his country besides that which were probably more difficult.

His administration of affairs in Vera Cruz, where he carried out the president's orders with a firm hand, simply holding the city when every influence about him was centered upon forcing the American army into actual fighting with the Mexicans, probably was the most notable service of his career.

ESSAY CONTEST ON

Boys and Girls Will Write Upon Evils of Narcotics

To increase interest in hygiene and give drills in composition, an essay contest has been arranged by County School Superintendent J. E. Calavan. The contest is planned to meet the requirements of the state school law requiring that hygiene, with special reference to the effects of stimulants and narcotics, must be taught in the schools.

The contest is open to the children of all schools, and the children in the lower grades may write upon any hygienic subject. The prize for the lower grade work is $5. The seventh, eighth and high school grades will write upon any topic bearing upon the effects of stimulants or narcotics upon the body, the mind or upon the individual efficiency and its social relation. The prize in this division is $10 from the state and $25 from the national society for grade work, $15 from the state and $50 from the national in the high school work.

Phone Case Thrown Out

The suit of the Western Irrigation, Power & Lumber Co. against the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. was dismissed by Judge Campbell Monday.

The suit was brought to set aside a previous circuit court decision in which the lumber company was the loser and to declare title to a telephone line built some years ago by Joseph R. Keep vested in the lumber company. Through previous litigation the telephone company had acquired title to the line, which is located in the Mount Hood district.

Estate Near $30,000

A petition for the probate of the will of Jesse Cox, who died at Estacada on January 14, was filed in the county court here Monday. The petition asks the appointment of Monte Cox, a daughter, as administratrix and names seven children as heirs in the estate comprising real property to a value of $17,535 and personal belongings, including many notes, worth $12,033. All the heirs live in this county and have attained their majority.

J. B. Horner to Lecture

John B. Horner, professor at the Oregon Agricultural college, will deliver an illustrated and historical lecture before the Warner grange at New Era on Saturday afternoon.

"Egypt, a Land Without Granges, Churches and Free Schools," is the professor's topic and he will show many views of the land he knows so well from frequent travel there. The meeting is to start at 1:30 o'clock and no admission fee will be charged.

Elks Go to Church

The local lodge of Elks will attend the evening service Sunday at the Congregational church, when the Rev. J. W. McCallum will speak on the subject, "The Man, Jesus." The orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Flechtner will render Handel's "Largo" and "The Golden Sceptre" by Schlegel.

A large chorus under the leadership of Dr. Roy A. Prudden will render special musical numbers.

Wants Full Citizenship

Fred Schwartz, born in Germany in 1851, has made application for final citizenship papers. Mr. Schwartz left Germany in 1869 and has been in Oregon since 1878. He received his first papers on April 17, 1878, in the Clackamas county district court when W. H. H. Fouts was county clerk.

THREE WORDS.

There are three words, the sweetest words in all of human speech. More sweet than are all songs of birds Or pages poets preach.

This life may be a vale of tears, A sad and dreary thing; Three words and trouble disappears And birds begin to sing—

Three words and all the roses bloom, The sun begins to shine; Three words will dissipate the gloom And water turn to wine.

Three words will cheer the saddest days "I love you!" Wrong, by heck! It is another sweeter phrase, "Inclosed find check!"

WALL STREET AND STOCKS.

How "Short Sellers" May Win by Buying on a Falling Market.

There are two kinds of stock speculators. One buys in the hope that he may later sell at a profit. If a man buys a share of Steel at 100 and later sells it at 115 he has made $15, less the broker's small commission. It is clear how money is made in a rising market. How money is made in a falling market requires explanation. The process of capitalizing disaster is known as "selling short."

A speculator who is sure, either because of some inside knowledge or because of his own reasoning, that stocks will tumble, gives an order to his broker to sell a block of stock for him. Let us use Central Leather as an example. He has none of the stock. The broker sends word to his representative on the floor of the exchange, and the sale is made. Central Leather is sold at the market price, say, 93. In the course of a few hours the stock which the seller did not have is delivered to the purchaser. The broker has borrowed it from some owner of the stock. A small fee is paid to the owner of the loaned shares. The man who has sold short then watches for the influence which he expects will drive the stock down. One or two days later he reads that some great international figure has made a move for peace.

The stock drops on the news. No one is willing to pay $93 a share for it. A few are willing to pay $90. Our hero who has sold short directs his broker to buy enough shares to pay him in kind for the shares borrowed. The broker buys at $90. After the broker's fee is paid and the charge for the borrowed stock is settled the speculator receives a little less than $3 a share as a result of his short selling. He merely sold at 93 what he later bought for 90. He has no stock. He never had any stock. He sold it before he bought it.

The "short" seller is never an investor. He never buys to keep. He never buys except to enable him to return what he has borrowed.—Uncle Dudley, in the Boston Globe.

Sunday Spurred the Offer.

George Sunday, eldest son of Billy Sunday, said in New York a short time ago:

"My father's finances are always talked about when he comes to a city. I handle his accounts. He gets only what is offered him for his services on the last day of his campaign, and this isn't as big as it looks, for much of it goes to charity and to the maintenance of his organization."

"This very day I declined on my father's behalf an offer of $100,000 from a moving picture concern; he refused $350,000 for five days' work in the movies; he has refused countless offers from firms who make talking records. My father has always and sincerely refused to commercialize Christ."

Why Stones Cannot Burn Like Coal.

Stones cannot burn for the simple reason that they are dead matter which has burned out. When anything burns it takes into its system all the oxygen of the air that it can combine with. When it has done this it cannot be burned any more. In burning any substance changes its character.

The original element of most of the rocks and stones we see was silicon, and when that combines with oxygen the result is a form of rock, a concrete substance, but unburnable.

London's "Seven Dials."

The Seven Dials in London is a place where seven streets branch off—viz: 1. Great Earl street; 2. Little Earl street; 3. Great St. Andrew's street; 4. Little St. Andrew's street; 5. Great White Lion street; 6. Little White Lion street; 7. Queen street. The long cross stone which stood in the middle center was seven square at the top, with a dial on each square.

REBEKAH CONVENTION HELD

Many Towns Have Representatives at Molalla Session

All parts of Clackamas county, Astoria, The Dalles, Roseburg, Silverton and Portland were represented the 11th annual convention of the Rebekah lodges of district No. 2 at Oak lodge at Molalla last Saturday. Officers were installed, the work of the lodge discussed and a good, old fashioned chicken dinner was served during the day.

Mrs. Myra Shannon of Willamette lodge No. 2, was chairman of the convention; Mrs. Rose Comer, of Oak lodge, vice-chairman, and Mrs. Ethel Meldrum of Milwaukie No. 150 was secretary. Among those who spoke were Mrs. Nellie Wattenberg, president of the Rebekah assembly; Mrs. Mary Lankerster, vice-president; Mrs. Lizzie Howell, past president, and S. S. Walker, G. H. P. of the grand encampment of Oregon.

At the first call for dinner 81 guests were seated in the dining hall, and at the second call, 45. The 12th annual convention will be held at Gladstone. The following officers were installed: Mrs. Rose Comer of Oak lodge No. 159, chairman; Mrs. Ethel Meldrum of Milwaukie lodge No. 150, vice-chairman; Mrs. Edith Martain of Milwaukie lodge No. 150, secretary; Mrs. Hattie Robinson of Shamrock No. 113, warden; Mrs. Lizzie Howell of Willamette No. 2, marshal; Mrs. Lucy Trubee of Shamrock No. 113, chaplain; Mrs. Clara Brown of Milwaukie No. 150, inside guard; Mrs. E. M. Hammer of Oak No. 159, outside guard; Mrs. Myra Shannon of Willamette No. 2, R. S. of chairman; Mrs. Lilly Smith of Gladstone No. 199, L. S. of chairman; Mrs. Eva Coper of Milwaukie No. 150, R. S. of vice-chairman; Mrs. Mary Robbins of Oak No. 159, L. S. of vice-chairman.

STAFFORD

About four inches of snow fell Monday night and Tuesday Mr. Nussbaum got out with his sleigh.

Quite a number, old and young, spent a delightful evening at Mr. Fry's on last Thursday and will celebrate Washington's birthday on the 22nd appropriately.

Miss Susie Shatz went to St. Helena by boat last Saturday to visit friends. She returned by bus to Portland on Sunday, and home Monday.

Mrs. Harrison, whose husband died so suddenly a few weeks ago, came near having a nervous breakdown, and Carl Ellingsen took her Sunday to see a doctor. She is better at the present writing.

When we get our share of that six million bond applied on our roads we will be able to pass the corner at the Stafford store with less danger of our mules sinking out of sight, so we live in hopes.

Miss Josephine Fishner is with her mother, Mrs. Aerni, again. The young people find her quite an addition to their number.

The Ladies' circle will meet with Mrs. Francis the third Thursday in March and do some quilting.

Loss is Great

A loss to the government of $162,385 in timber, forage and young growth was caused by fires on the national forests in 1916, according to statistics compiled by the forest service. Of this loss $35,000 occurred in Oregon, Washington and Alaska. Although there was more than the average number of fires, the loss is the smallest that has been sustained from fires since the national forests were established. A favorable season in the regions where the most severe damage is usually sustained is given as the chief reason for the relatively small loss.

A total of 299,377 acres of government land was burned over. In addition to this, the fires covered 133,100 acres of privately owned land in the national forests where timber valued at $36,214 was consumed. About 44 per cent of the total area burned was located in the national forests of Arkansas and Florida.

DANGEROUS CROSSING

Parkplace Road Presents Problem for Safety First Workers

Clackamas, Rt. 1, Feb. 19, 1917. To the editor:

I wonder if the people of Oregon City and vicinity know what a dangerous crossing there is between Oregon City and the St. Agnes baby home. Several people have been killed at that place and a number of cars have been tipped over the embankment without any serious results except the damage done to the machine.

While it seems to be no one's business, it certainly ought to be every one's business to see to it that the danger be removed by continuing the railing along the pavement and by having a light put in at the crossing.

If one runs up the railroad track too far and gets a wheel over the rail there might be an accident before one could back out and get off the track, if a train happened to be close to the crossing. That crossing is a dark place and it is a dangerous place to travelers at night.

A good light put in at the crossing so all could see would be a blessing to man and beast—and woman too.

Oswego Editor Attends Live Wire Feast and Likes the Spirit

The "quill pusher" of the Oswego Times absorbed the spirit that makes possible the existence of the Live Wires of the Oregon City Commercial club at the luncheon on February 13 and has the following to say of the love feast at which he rubbed noses with the Wires:

The quill pusher of the Times went to Oregon City a la jitney Tuesday to rub noses with the Live Wires at their weekly love feast. He did not know that it was medal day, the fact having slipped his mind until he wandered into their fine rooms at the Commercial club, like a stray gander in a new barnyard. But you are not a stray gander long there. The quill pusher had more than pushed his classic countenance through the portals than a bright, sleek, happy faced scintillating Live Wire had him by

Blossom Time in the Golden State

A friend just back from Southern California says: "The weather was fine, in fact to warm for heavy clothes. Many were bathing at the beaches. Oranges were ripe in the valleys, while the mountains nearby were covered with snow."

With warm sunny weather it will not be long before the blossoms on the trees will be everywhere announcing that springtime is here.

Take a vacation trip now where life is different; where climate surroundings and amusements are out of the ordinary. Spend a different February.
