TRIBUTE PAID BY ENGLAND TO NURSE EXECUTED BY HUNS

LONDON, May 15.—England paid tribute to Edith Cavell, the English nurse executed by the Germans at Brussels October 12, 1915, today when her body, en route from Brussels to her native city of Norwich, was taken to Westminster abbey for an impressive memorial service.

It was a public funeral, in which it seemed every resident of the great metropolis endeavored to participate. The streets through which the cortege moved were congested with crowds and every inch of standing room in the neighborhood of the abbey was occupied by a densely massed multitude which was eager to do reverent homage to "that brave woman," as the bishop of London described her, "who deserves a great deal from the British empire."

MEMORIAL SERVICES TO BE HELD SUNDAY BY CLACKAMAS PEOPLE

CLACKAMAS, May 23.—The churches at Clackamas will conduct memorial services at the Congregational church May 25, at 11 A. M., the Methodist minister, the Rev. G. R. Abbott officiating. The singing is in charge of Mrs. Folkerson and Mrs. Chas. Casto, organist.

On Decoration Day all meet at the Congregational church at 10 A. M. and will go to the cemetery for services.

As there are many soldiers' graves at Clackamas cemetery, it is desired that all bring flowers so there will be plenty for decorating.

All are earnestly invited to attend both meetings as they promise to be especially good.

BUT HE WENT WITH SPEED

That Was About All Witness Cared to Testify as to the Gait of Defendant.

The trial was in the Marion circuit court, on appeal from the police court, where the defendant had been guilty of violating a city ordinance prohibiting the throwing of rubbish in the streets, relates the Indianapolis News. The charge had been preferred by a neighbor, who filed his affidavit setting forth that the defendant had willfully, unlawfully and maliciously thrown certain particles of glass into the street in front of said neighbor's residence.

During the hearing of testimony in the county court the defendant's lawyer, with all sails set, let loose his best line of cross-examination of the complaining neighbor.

"You say, Mr. Witness," the lawyer snarled, "that you saw this defendant throw some glass in front of your house and then run back to his front door—you mean to tell this court that he ran or just simply walked fast?"

"I guess I know when I see a man run," the witness half answered.

"I say, did he run or just walk fast?" the attorney thundered.

"Judge, your honor," the witness excitedly replied, as he turned and faced the judge, "this here same lawyer made me a liar in police court. He might for all I know gone sixty miles an hour. I ain't no judge of human nature."

One Exception.

"I notice your husband has his hammer out on all occasions."

"Oh no. Not when it is time to put down the carpets."

JAPS HONOR BRITISH SAILOR

Still Revere Memory of William Adams, Who Led Expedition to Their Country in 1600.

Two memorial stone lanterns near the Japanese port of Yokosuka are the people's tribute to the memory of William Adams, an English sailor who was the first of his countrymen to settle in Japan, and who is credited with opening the way for commerce between Britain and Japan. In 1600 Adams led a trading expedition bound for the West Indies. His fleet consisted of five vessels symbolically named Faith, Hope, Charity, Fidelity and Good News. The expedition met with many misfortunes of weather and sickness. Their adventures included the loss of eight men who were eaten by cannibals on one of the Pacific islands.

The ship carrying Adams finally reached the coast of Bungo, in the eastern part of Kyushu, Japan. The Englishmen made friends with the natives until the arrival of some Portuguese Jesuits who told the Japanese leaders the strangers were pirates and had them imprisoned. The emperor heard of their plight, and had them brought to his palace at Osaka. The ruler finally decided that the men were harmless and released them, retaining Adams at court to teach shipbuilding and other arts to the natives. In 1613 another English sea captain arrived in Japan with letters from the king of England to the emperor of Japan. Through Adams' influence the Englishmen and the oriental ruler signed a treaty giving Britain the perpetual right to enter any ports of the empire and trade freely throughout the country.

GLADSTONE FLORIST SEVERELY INJURED IN PORTLAND FRIDAY

H. H. Hughes, one of the well-known pioneer florists of Clackamas county, whose home is at Gladstone is suffering from severe injuries received while in Portland Friday afternoon. Mr. Hughes had visited one of the florists at that city and when leaving slipped and fell to the foot of the stairway. One of the employees of the establishment rushed to his aid, and when he approached the injured man, Mr. Hughes exclaimed, "Sure I am killed already," and smiled, although he was suffering from a broken arm, broken nose and also the loss of a number of his front teeth. Medical aid was summoned, and a physician set the broken bone of the arm, also the nose, and Mr. Hughes had wonderful grit, having the operation performed without an anesthetic. He desired to come to his home on the electric car instead of an ambulance and his wishes were granted. Although suffering from his injuries, he is in jovial spirits and is looking forward to the time when he will be able to work in his floral beds.

Many years ago Mr. Hughes was a railroad engineer, and has always been known for his wonderful pluck and nerve, and even in his late years he still retains it.

OREGON PICTURE IS MAKING PROGRESS AT PORTLAND STUDIO

Raymond Wells, the Los Angeles scenario expert, is making great headway with his Oregon picture "The Martyrs of Yesterday." The banquet scene in St. Louis where General Clark fetes the Oregon Indian ambassadors was splendidly depicted at the Lifeograph studio in Portland Thursday with the Baker theatre players in leading roles. More than 75 people took part in the various actions in costumes of 1831. Governor Clark was true to life, handsome and stately, surrounded by officials of the period, and belles and beaux of St. Louis. Eva Emery Dye sat beside Mr. Wells as with his megaphone he directed the action. The Indians were costumed after Catlin's famous paintings. On Friday Mr. Wells, Mr. J. A. McGill and G. F. Reynolds visited the site on the Clackamas where a replica of the Whitman mission is being erected. The width of the river and swift flowing water more nearly approach the original site on the Walla Walla than anything else yet discovered.

MAYOR ACQUITTED IN POLICE COURT OF TRAFFIC VIOLATION

Mayor R. L. Holman was found not guilty of traffic violation at his hearing Saturday before Recorder Loder. The mayor was charged with turning his horse at the intersection of Seventh and Main streets and the complaint was sworn to by A. R. Diersch, who himself did not see the violation but named two witnesses he alleged had.

At the trial one of the witnesses did not even know the date of the supposed violation but thought that it was Mayor Holman and the other witness said he did not know whether it was the mayor or not.

This evidence was not enough for a conviction and the mayor was released by Recorder Loder.

FAILURE TO PROVIDE IS CHARGED BY WIFE IN DIVORCE SUIT

Pearl Chandler and C. D. Chandler were married at Beuna Vista December 24, 1913, and have two children. In her divorce suit entered Saturday she alleges he failed to provide sufficient food and clothing for her and that he later enlisted in the Military Police and utterly failed to provide her a home or support.

After he left the police she alleged he asked her to come and live with him but only had one room back of a garage where he was working.

In order to support herself and family she says she was forced to work in the harvest fields and factories and came to Oregon City to get work. She asks for $30 per month alimony.
