

ASKS WAGES FROM MILL COMPANY. ALSO DAMAGES

Herman E. Schuler, of Seattle, on Saturday filed in Justice of the Peace John N. Siever's court a suit against the Hawley Pulp & Paper company for $150 damages and several other bills as a result of being refused work when he reported to the mill here after being hired by a Seattle agent. Schuler asks for railroad fare from Seattle to Oregon City and return, for the payment of wages at the rate of $3 a day until paid, $150 damages for loss of position and for attorney's fees. In his complaint it is charged that he was hired by M. A. Peterson, a labor agent, at Seattle. He quit his position with a grocery firm and came to Oregon City, where he reported to the mill company on December 6. He was told to return the following day, he charges, and the management at the mill advised him that they had no work for him.

VALUATIONS INCREASE

Commission's Figures Add to Big Total of County Assessors

Figures compiled by Tax Commissioner Galloway show that the valuation of the taxable property in the state is $928,605,570.36, an increase of $49,841,625.65 over last year.

The total value of the property as assessed by the county assessors was $807,989,242.63, and the total value of the public service corporation property, as assessed by the commission, was $120,707,327.83. Multnomah's valuation is $305,952,846.22, as compared with $305,387,094.85 for last year. Umatilla is second with an assessment of $51,507,280.11, as compared with $48,790,831.15 for last year; Marion is third with an assessed valuation of $42,045,047.76, and Lane is fourth with an assessed valuation of $34,800,464.68. Multnomah will pay approximately 36 per cent of the state tax; Umatilla about 4 1/2 per cent, Marion about 4 1/2 per cent, and Lane about 4 1/10 per cent. The increase in valuation will mean more money for institutions dependent on millage tax for their revenues.

SLACKER DOLLARS

To Hoard a Dollar is to Make it an Idle, Unemployed Dollar

A hoarded dollar is a slacker and a dollar spent for an unnecessary thing is an "ally of the enemy," says Frank A. Vanderlip, national director of the war savings campaign. He urges the purchase of war savings stamps and certificates for the double purpose of directly assisting the government to finance the war and economizing on materials and things devoted to producing non-essentials.

"To hoard a dollar is to make it an idle dollar, an unemployed dollar," says Mr. Vanderlip. "A dollar that is not at work is almost as truly a drain upon society as an idle man, and in this crisis, when the world urgently needs every dollar, the hoarded dollar is a slacker."

"There is something worse than a slacker, though. A slacker is only a negative quantity. But a dollar spent for an unnecessary thing today becomes an ally of the enemy. It is a traitor dollar because the labor of men and women is employed needlessly to make useless things when the government needs that labor to make things that are essential for our soldiers in winning the war—so we must see that the dollar spent for unnecessary things is a menace to our country, a menace in this world fight for freedom."

The Molalla agricultural committee, consisting of John Cole, Harry Aastall, Albert Moshberger and Otis Ray Daugherty, met with R. J. Werner, county agriculturist, on last Wednesday to arrange the work for the coming year.

CHRISTMAS THIS YEAR

We won't have the same heart for or in Christmas this year. That is natural. And it is well for us, for if we are candid with ourselves we will concede that we have been overdoing Christmas. A simpler Christmas will be good for us: a Christmas when we will give with more thought; when we will eat with more reason; when, above all, we will think more of others. For the thoughts and the hearts of thousands will be overseas. It is a new experience for us, a new kind of Christmas; but it will be a far more worthwhile Christmas than many Christmases we have thoughtlessly spent.

But if our hearts are a bit sad; if our thoughts are afar off, we must not forget those for whom the day of Christmas is primarily intended: the children. The shadow of war must not fall upon their happiness of the day. Temper the day for ourselves we should and must; but what we withhold from ourselves let us give in larger measure to our own children and, next, to those children whom our boys at the front have left behind. Those we should all seek out: each in his or her own way and according to his or her ability and means. For them the day must spell cheer. With father away, some other hand must stretch forth and help her who is left behind with the children.

It is a wonderful year, this Christmas, to make it a Children's Christmas. Let us efface ourselves and make the day glad and full and happily tired for the little ones. For such He asked should come to Him—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Present For Santa Claus

By ELLINOR MARSH

EDWINA'S mother was busy putting mince pies into the oven, so she did not notice the little girl when she passed through the room. Edwinna wore her warm winter coat and tam-o'-shanter, and her fat fingers were snugged up in red mittens. "I've got Christmas errands to do, mother," said Edwinna when she reached the door. "Tomorrow's Christmas, and I'm going to buy a present for Santa Claus."

"Well, I declare!" Mrs. Ray sank into a chair and began to laugh. "A present for Santa Claus himself?" "A real present. I've got 12 cents. I earned this money my own self, and—I want to buy something for Santa with my own money."

"Very well, dear. I am sure Santa Claus will be pleased enough to be remembered. You had better go to Smith's store."

"All right," called Edwinna as she went out. It was snowing a little—just little, light, floating flakes like tiny feathers. Inside the kitchen it had been warm and cozy, with a delicious smell of mince meat, fresh cookies and apples. Outside it was cold, and the stinging snowflakes made her cheeks tingle.

"What can I do for you, Edwinna?" asked Mr. Smith. "I want a pair of slippers—for a man," said Edwinna primly. "What size?" asked the storekeeper. "Very big ones," said Edwinna in a grownup's manner. "Hum!" smiled Mr. Smith in a mysterious way. "Well, you can change them after Christmas if they don't fit."

Edwinna wondered if Santa Claus could come all the way back from the north pole just to change a pair of slippers, but she said nothing until Mr. Smith showed her a very large pair of lowered slippers.

How good old Santa would enjoy those comfortable slippers! "Will 12 cents be enough?" asked Edwinna anxiously. "Ho, ho, ho!" laughed Mr. Smith. "Twelve cents? No, Edwinna. The price of these slippers is $2."

"I—guess I won't take them," faltered Edwinna as she left the store. Edwinna hurried away from Smith's store and went to a little ten-cent store. Here were all sorts of things she could buy with her money, but it was hard to choose something Santa Claus might like. There were books—such nice stories too. One in particular, called "Patty and Her Pitcher," was so delightful that Edwinna was sure Santa Claus would like it. So she paid 10 cents for that, and with the remaining 2 cents she bought two sticks of red and white striped candy.

When she showed these things to her father and mother they did not even smile, but they said they were sure Santa Claus would be pleased. "I shall hang a stocking for Santa and put these things in it," said Edwinna, and on the stocking she pinned a note saying:

"From a little girl who loves you." She went happily to bed, and the next thing Edwinna knew it was Christmas morning. She hopped out of bed and ran into the warm living room to see if Santa had been there.

What a wonderful array of toys—dolls and doll houses and furniture, books and games and toy dishes, a little fur muff and a rocking chair and so many other things!

Edwinna clapped her hands and jumped for joy. "Santa has taken the book and candy!" she cried, and then she found a little note signed "Santa Claus." "Thank you, dear little Edwinna, and a Merry Christmas to you," it read.

ROTTER CHANGES PLEA Paul Rotter, who pleaded not guilty some time ago to a grand jury indictment charging him with a felony against the 15-year-old daughter of a prominent family, changed his plea to guilty in Judge J. U. Campbell's court. The youth will appear for sentence on Wednesday. Rotter is an Oregon City boy, 22 years old, and was to have been tried for his alleged offense late this month.

Astoria, Ore.—The Clatsop Mill company, whose plant has been idle for the last year or more as the result of a disastrous fire, has disposed of its holding to a syndicate of Pacific coast and eastern capitalists and will shortly rebuild the plant for active operation.

Pendleton, Ore.—Pledging their lives, their property and their sons that the war might be fought to a successful conclusion, the members of the farmers' union in convention last week by resolution placed the organization squarely behind President Wilson. The convention commended officials of the port of Portland for pushing the construction of a million-bushel terminal elevator to completion in time to handle the 1918 crop in spite of high cost of materials and labor shortage and also praised the port of Astoria officials for aiding and co-operating in the handling of bulk grain and the port of Seattle managers for doubling the capacity of its elevators. The convention went on record against the county unit plan of school management, and in favor of state printing and distributing of school text books at cost. It urged farmers to buy Liberty bonds through farm organizations in order to secure proper credit for farmers' patriotism. Resolutions declared it unfraternal and detrimental to the union for any member publicly to oppose a declared policy of the union.

Marshfield, Ore.—Max Haake, German engineer on the gasoline schooner, Roamer, was arrested Thursday when on board the vessel by Deputy United States Marshal Frank Berry. Haake had been warned away from the water front several times, but returned Thursday night and stayed aboard the Roamer. The prisoner was placed in the county jail. He was taken to Portland, where he will have a hearing.

Salem, Ore.—Hal D. Patton, formerly state senator, has been named as King Bing of the Salem Cherrians. Other officers elected for the ensuing year are: Vice president, Frank K. Lovell; chancellor of the rolls, William Gahlsdorf; keeper of the orchard, David Eyre; king's jester, Walter Winslow; duke of Lambert, Paul Stege; queen Anne's consort, P. E. Fullerton; archbishop of Rickreel, Elmer Dauer; Marquis of Maraschino, George Fox; Earl of Waldo, Paul Johnson.

Roseburg, Ore.—The United States land office at Roseburg made the first sale of Oregon-California timber last week when it sold the timber from a half section of land for $12,500. The timber was badly needed for ship spars, as it was of unusual length and strength. The land is situated in township 31 south, range 11 west, and is not far from Powers. The sale was made to the Coos Bay Lumber company. The estimate of the timber on the tract showed 9,500,000 feet, of which 3,000,000 feet is Port Orford cedar and the remainder fir. The land still remains the property of the United States government, and after the timber is removed may be taken up for settlement if fit and suitable for that purpose. The logging operations will begin at once.

Salem, Ore.—Governor Withycombe declared Friday that he will pardon John Lundy, Edward Mortenson and Ivan Anderson, serving jail sentences at Klamath Falls for importing liquor into Oregon from California. The pardons are to be granted because of the urgent appeal of E. W. Gowen, justice of the peace of Klamath Falls, before whom the men pleaded guilty. He offers as the main reason for the pardon of the men that they are lumbermen and are badly needed in the lumber industry in that section. One mill is shut down, he says, because of lack of men, and the other mills and camps are sadly in need of additional labor.

Salem, Ore.—Governor Withycombe received notification from Provost Marshal Crowder that the
