Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This woman now raises chickens and does manual labor.

Read her story: "For two years I was so sick and weak with troubles from my age that when going up stairs I had to go very slowly with my hands on the steps, then sit down at the top to rest. The doctor said I should have an operation, and my friends thought I would not live to move into our new house. My daughter asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had taken it with good results. I did so. My weakness disappeared, I gained in strength, moved into our new home, did all kinds of garden work, shoveled dirt, did building and cement work, and raised hundreds of chickens and ducks. I can't say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and if these facts are useful you may publish them for the benefit of other women."—Mrs. M. O. ALVIN JOYNER RETURNS FROM NORTH CAROLINA

A. E. Joyner, deputy sheriff, has returned from a visit to the home of his parents in North Carolina, a state from which Mr. Joyner came 19 years ago to Oregon. One subject, even after all these years, seems to prey upon the mind of the Clackamas county officer.

"I had the time of my life at the old home place," Mr. Joyner said to a former southerner. "There were all the folks about just as I left 'em when I was a kid. And dad and I had a possum hunt, yes sir, man, a real possum hunt. Darned if it didn't bring near bring back my old southern dialect to smack my lips over the first animal we killed."

"They're not much on railroads in that country, but it was like getting close to a fire after being out in the cold all night to go back home. Yes sir, man, I was going to bring a possum back to Gib Hedges but my dad thought as how it might not keep this far."

"Crops appear to have been mighty good down there," the officer went on, leaving out the "Rs" as is his habit, "with cotton bringing a record price there's lots of prosperity, too, and plenty of niggers remain to help with the work. The niggers get most of the possum, though, and it's hard for us poor white trash that haven't chased those birds for so long to get one in front of a gun."

"I stopped at several places along the way and met a lot of my boyhood friends. Seems like a fellow grows up powerful quick after he leaves the old home. But never does he grow away from the taste of that possum meat. Lawdy, man, you should have heard me smack my lips over those sweet potatoes and molasses. Man alive, it's been so long since I tasted that old corn pone with sure enough Orleans molasses that I just put a peck of it in a poke and told it home for you. Man, tell your northern wife that this here came to you all from Dixieland—and that means good stuff."

From all of which it appears that possum, sweet potatoes, molasses, and corn pone are much in the mind of Mr. Joyner.

LOSSES THROUGH SWINE DISEASES

Cholera, Tuberculosis and Parasites Are Drawbacks.

SIMPLE METHODS ARE URGED

Farmer May Avoid, to Large Extent, Decimation of His Herd by Epizootics—Sanitary Preventive Measures Are Favored.

The greatest drawbacks to the hog industry that breeders in this country have to contend with are the losses through hog cholera, tuberculosis, and the infestation of the animals, especially young pigs, by parasites. Were it not for the fecundity of swine their profitable production in the presence of these serious diseases would be out of the question. In the following remarks on sanitation no attempt is made to go into the details of the diseases affecting hogs or their treatment. The object is merely to call attention to the simple measures which may be used by any farmer to avoid, to a large extent, the decimation of his herd by epizootics. Cleanliness and rational methods of management are relied upon by thousands of farmers to keep their herds in health and vigor. They are the marks of the good farmer and successful hog breeder.

Hog cholera and swine plague, both highly fatal diseases characterized by fever and heavy mortality, are so very similar that the breeder may regard them as identical so far as his practical management of the herd is concerned. Positive differentiation between the two diseases can only be made by the most careful bacteriologist.

Cholera Thrives in Surroundings Such as These.

lean tests, and by employing the assistance offered by a fully equipped laboratory. However, sanitary preventive methods which are found beneficial with one of these diseases will prove equally efficacious with the other.

There are a few fundamental facts which the breeder must remember if he is to avoid losses through hog cholera or swine plague. The first is that they are specific diseases caused by germs, and the contagion cannot be spread from one animal to another or from one herd to another except through the agency of these minute organisms. They may be carried in a multitude of ways—by the hogs themselves, on the clothing of persons, on vehicles, in feed, by birds, dogs, and other animals, or by streams. The breeding or feed of a hog cannot cause either disease, although bad methods may so weaken the constitution and vitality that the animal becomes more susceptible to them than would otherwise be the case. Since these diseases can only arise from the presence of these specific causative agents, it can readily be seen that dentition and the presence of superfluous teeth or bad tusks cannot, as has been suggested by many, play any part in their development. A second fact to be borne in mind is that diseases caused by germs may be best prevented or controlled by thorough disinfection and scrupulous cleanliness.

Tuberculosis Increasing.

Tuberculosis is rapidly increasing among hogs in the United States, and every owner of swine should be on his guard against the introduction of this serious malady upon his premises. Unlike hog cholera this disease is infectious in its attack and slow in its development, so that it may be present for months in a herd without exciting the least suspicion of the owner, and will be revealed to him only at the time of slaughter. Until recent years tuberculosis has been looked upon as of uncommon occurrence and only of importance from a meat-inspection standpoint; but today it must be recognized as a serious menace to the owner of hogs, and especially to the one who allows his hogs to run with cattle that have not been proved to be free of tuberculosis, or who feeds them upon nonsterilized products as part of their ration. As tuberculosis of hogs is chiefly contracted through eating infected feed, the importance of this statement is obvious.

Arnolds File Appeal

The suit of Ray L. White against C. S. and Grace Arnold, decided in favor of White in justice court, was appealed Friday to Judge Campbell's department of the circuit court by Mr. and Mrs. Arnold. The decision gave White possession of 30 acres of land in section 35, township 3 south, range 1 west. Judge Sievers, in justice court, found the Arnolds guilty of forcible entry and detainer and ordered that White should take the place.

FOLLOW CAMPAIGN OF JOSHUA

British Army Duplicates Victory of Head of Israelite Hosts, Marching Over the Same Ground.

And now the British Mesopotamian army has captured Hebron, 20 miles from the birthplace of Christ, observes the Wichita (Kan.) Beacon.

More than 33 centuries ago Joshua, at the head of the Israelite hosts, marched over the same ground capturing Hebron and putting its king to death. In one of the battles he found the time was too short and so he commanded the sun and moon to stand still while his men fought.

Forty years before, Moses was leading the children of Israel out of Egypt to this promised land of Canaan. He sent out spies, who were overawed by the giant sons of Anak whom they saw at Hebron. All but Joshua and Caleb gave unfavorable reports, and the Lord was displeased at the cowardice and the credulity of the Israelites, and decreed that they must wander 40 years in the wilderness.

"How are the mighty fallen," mournfully sang David as a requiem for his friend Jonathan, nearly 3,000 years ago, and then he asked the Lord for guidance. God commanded him to go to Hebron, and there he was anointed king of Judah and reigned seven years before going to Jerusalem.

And almost 40 centuries ago Abraham built an altar at Hebron and there bought his first land. There was buried his faithful wife Sarah, and also Isaac and Rebekah and Jacob and Leah and Joseph.

The bones of the shepherd patriarchs, of David, the sweet singer of Israel; of Joshua, the mighty warrior; have crumbled and mingled with the sands of the centuries, but the world fights on over its ancient battle-grounds, and mankind, like Sisyphus, rolling the great burden to the top of the hill, sees it roll back and create another task.

But mankind has learned. Upon reaching Hebron it refuses to be awed by the giants who bar the way to the promised land of world peace and freedom.

It is a strange and wonderful drama that is taking place on earth today.

Guineas Get Ride.

Any of the young blood of Indianapolis will testify that "chickens" (in one of the later acceptances of the word) are very fond of street car and automobile riding, observes the Indianapolis News, but it is not often that four guineas of the common or garden digging variety have an opportunity to disport themselves in or on a city street car.

Amid a chorus of squawks from about 100 couples of turkeys and other fowls in front of William Locks' fish and poultry place at 1027 Virginia avenue, the other day, four guineas escaped from a coop, and a series of hops, flops and flights landed them on the trolley pole of a street car headed for Washington street, where they evidently regarded it policy to sit tight. At any rate they were not tempted from their perch by downtown window displays or moving picture theaters. On the back trip the street car stopped in front of Locks', and the motorman shouted: "Here are your guineas." Eager hands helped them to alight, and they were taken back home.

Danish Statistics.

Very few European countries only were in a position to proceed, since August 1, 1914, with their normal quinquennial census. Denmark is one of the exceptions, says an exchange. On February 1, 1916, the little kingdom counted 2,920,000 inhabitants, i. e., an increase of 163,000 souls over the census of 1911.

The distribution ratio is 75 inhabitants to the square kilometre. The Copenhagen Frederiksberg county contains 605,000 inhabitants, i. e., more than one-fifth of the total population. The 74 other cities number 694,000 people. Rustic population, 1,711,000. The three principal cities, besides Copenhagen, are: Aarhus, 96,000; Odense, 45,000, and Aalborg, 38,000. The present war increased the importance of the seaport town of Esbjerg (19,000 inhabitants), which hardly existed 50 years ago.

Concerning Gasoline.

The war department has estimated that the daily gasoline needs of America for war purposes will be 959,000 gallons for the next few years. Government figures show that the total daily gasoline production in the United States is 6,849,000 gallons.

The Bureau of Mines has authorized the publication of a bulletin which states that a saving of 1,500,000 gallons of gasoline may be effected every day by Americans by the careful observation of certain simple suggestions. The bureau of mines would conserve a half million gallons more at gasoline daily than will be demanded by the government to operate its necessary war equipment or to carry on its other necessary industries during times of war.

What Americans need to learn at this time is to conserve gasoline judiciously and sensibly.—Peoria Journal.

Turn Out Limbs in 48 Hours.

Two Clyde shipbuilding firms have been turning their attention to the manufacture of artificial limbs, says a Glasgow correspondent, and have produced in 48 hours a limb at a moderate cost which is said to be far superior to any other produced in the country. One thousand maimed soldiers have already been fitted, and 9,000 are on the waiting list.

Ready Now at Old Prices

Fresh lots (just received) of Foley's Honey and Tar are selling at before-the-war prices. This puts a well-known cough medicine, ready to use, in homes at less than it costs to buy and mix the ingredients yourself, and saves bother and muss. Mrs. Mary Kisby, 3533 Princeton Ave., Spokane, Wash., writes: "I was sick in bed with lagrippe. I coughed very badly. I took Foley's Honey and Tar. It stopped my cough and I got better. So now I am around the house again."—Jones Drug Co.

Always Have PERUNA

Mrs. L. A. Patterson, 1399 Kentucky St., Memphis, Tennessee, writes:

"I have been a friend of Peruna for many years. I have used it off and on for catarrhal complaints and found it a very excellent remedy. I have a small family of children. Times are hard with us, but I can scarcely afford to do without Peruna, especially during the season of the year when coughs and colds are prevalent. We always recommend Peruna to our neighbors, for the benefit it has been to us."

For Coughs and Colds in the Home. Recommend It to Our Neighbors.

Those who object to liquid medicines can procure Peruna Tablets.

GIVE MINISTER A CHANCE TO VINDICATE HIS CHURCH

Have rural churches and ministers failed to meet the war emergency demands as they should?

Their critics say that they have remained outside the movement for greater agricultural production, overlooked their part in the education for conservation, and failed to show themselves suited to the Y. M. C. A. and Red Cross relief work. As a result many people have been led to ask whether the country church is an outworn institution to be relegated to a place among the outworn appendages of social organisms. Of course it is admitted that there are many exceptions and that in Oregon there are outstanding examples of churches and their ministers that have assumed positions of powerful leadership.

Those who believe that the church must be preserved think these exceptions can be made the rule by rousing it to a full sense of its duty. This can be done by inspiring its leaders, many of whom have already revolutionized their communities economically, socially and spiritually. Dr. Hector Macpherson suggests that every rural church make its minister a Christmas present of a free trip to the social life conferences to be held during Farmers' Week, at O. A. C., beginning December 31.

Estimates based on the latest census place the number of church organizations in Oregon at 1500. The value of the church property is 5 millions. At an average annual expense of $1000 the total cost of maintenance is one and a half millions—too big a sum to be spent unless returns are adequate. To make the churches more efficient is one purpose of the conference, and Dr. Macpherson suggests that they could make no better investment than that of sending their minister. At these conferences the local men will have an opportunity to meet some of the great leaders of religious thought and gain new wisdom and inspiration for their great tasks.

WOMEN PROCLAIM

Commands Basis for New Year Resolutions for Fair Sex

Ten war commandments for the women of America were proposed at New York this week by the women's committee of the Council of National Defense, of which Dr. Anna Howard Shaw is chairman; with the suggestion that they be made the basis for a New Year's resolution. Here is the new decalogue:

- "Do not chatter. Keep to your self the news you hear."
- "Do not listen to alarmists or slackers."
- "Be moderate in your spending, neither lavish in gifts nor sordid in your economies."
- "Encourage national industries, avoiding imported ones."
- "Do not look upon the departures for the front of those dear to you as an abandonment. Be with them constantly in thought, as they are with you, particularly in the hour of danger."
- "Do not complain of the difficulties, annoyances and privations caused by the war."
- "Multiply your activities in your home as well as outside."
- "Exhibit day by day and hour by hour the same courage a man shows upon the field of battle."
- "No matter how long the struggle may last, await victory with strength and patience."

"If you are stricken in your dearest affections, bear your sorrow nobly, that your tears may be worthy of the hero whose death you mourn."

Eat Cheese

A marked increase in the sale of Oregon cheese has been reported from various points throughout the state since Food Administrator W. B. Ayer started his campaign for an increased consumption of Oregon products by Oregon people, with a specially urgent appeal for the more liberal use of cheese. "I am greatly pleased with the reports that are coming in," said Mr. Ayer, "and I am hoping for even better results in the near future. Oregon cream cheese compares favorably with that made anywhere, and it should be in every Oregon home, and daily on the table. I am convinced that those who make a point of varying their diet with cheese dishes, and who adopt cheese as a meat substitute on Tuesdays will find it an almost indispensable food commodity after a little time, and that the increased consumption will be permanent."

Catching Monkeys

The well-known habit of monkeys to imitate the actions of man is cleverly utilized by wild-animal catchers in taking the agile, climbing creatures captive, says the Popular Mechanics magazine in an illustrated article. The hunters' method is to walk about for some time within sight of the wild monkeys, wearing short boots. Then the boots are taken off and gum is placed in their hands after which the men withdraw from the scene. Before the curiosity of the imitative watchers in the trees gets the better of their caution and they descend and start to try on the boots, whereupon they discover that the footwear cannot be removed and, being unable to climb, are easily captured.

Refuses to Testify

M. J. Brown, of the Benton County Courier has seen the real Hawaii. We'd like to ask him if "Hawaiian" music really comes from that island and if the natives thereof really do dance the terrible trots that are credited to them in pictures and on the stage in this country.—Oregon City Courier.

And this from a man who has recently returned from a state where they manufacture jungles, fire volcanoes and paint sunsets while you wait. Brown absolutely refuses to answer, for he can't see where the trap is.—Benton County Courier.

We thank Mr. Brown for his clever compliment in believing we could so cleverly conceive a "trap," and submit our question to some more unsuspecting authority.
