MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS

Directors Chosen for the Ensuing Year

MANY IN ATTENDANCE

At the Annual Meeting of the Clackamas County Fair Association

The annual stockholders' meeting of the Clackamas County Fair Association was held Saturday afternoon in the parlors of the Commercial Club. About fifty stockholders were present and the remainder of the stock was nearly all represented by proxies.

The meeting was called to order by President George Lazelle of New Era. The president's report was read in which he recommended among other things the further improvement of the grounds and buildings of the association, the canvassing of the entire county in an effort to dispose of all of the stock and the change in the admission price of 25 cents to 50 cents for adults.

The matter of increasing the admission fee was brought up, but this, too, was left to the directors to decide.

The following directors were elected to serve during the ensuing year: R. S. Coe of Canby; J. W. Smith, Mackburg; W. W. Everhart of Molalla; E. Freytag of Gladstone; George Lazelle of Twilight; and Oscar D. Eby of Oregon City. Owing to the lateness of the hour when the directors were finally chosen, they did not elect their officers, but a meeting of the directors will be held at an early date for this purpose.

Death of L. C. Lamb

CITY PROPERTY CHANGES HANDS

Large Block in Center of Business District Bought by Mr. Andresen

Saturday afternoon a deal was consummated in the city whereby one half interest in one of the choicest business blocks was taken by William Andresen of the firm of Bernmeister & Andresen. The other half is owned by H. C. Stevens. The lot is 66x210 feet, and the property has a frontage on Main and Water streets, running clear through the block, a distance of 210 feet. There are two dwellings on the Water street side of the lot, but on the Main street front the frame building now located there will soon be removed and a brick block constructed as soon as the weather will permit.

Married 400 Couples

In his period of official service, Justice W. H. Samson of Oregon City, has married 400 couples. In his residence alone he has performed an even 100 wedding ceremonies, while that number added to those married in the dingy little upstairs office on Main street bring the grand total up to 400 couples he has started out in double harness during his time.—Boston Herald.

CITY NEEDS BETTER STREETS AMENDMENT SURE TO CARRY

Citizens Will Be Given Chance to Show Their Loyalty To City and at Same Time Enhance the Value of Their Property

Oregon City has an opportunity to do something for itself in the near future if the people will only come forward and do the proper thing in reference to permitting our charter to be altered so that improvement may be carried forward on our streets, which will greatly enhance the value of all the property in the city.

Throughout the whole Willamette valley the cities have been going ahead, doubling their population, while Oregon City has hardly held its own, and as to property values, there has not been the increase that might have been expected.

There appears to be one remedy and that is the improvement of her streets.

Knowing this to be a fact a few of our councilmen, backed by many of the citizens, have taken up the matter of revising our city charter so that we may be able to improve our streets in such a manner that the abutting property will be able to pay the proportion levied against it, and have ten years in which to do so.

There has come to our notice some discussion as to the manner in which the amendments will work in reference to the amount abating property will be required to pay, etc., and in this regard there can be but one explanation which perhaps may better be understood by an example, bearing directly upon the thought that where street improvements would exceed the real value of the abutting property, said property holder might better allow his property to be sold for the amount of the improvement, etc. In this connection opposing the property to be worth $400.00, and the street improvement by the unusual irregularity or unevenness of the land small cost the abutting property $800, by the reading of the proposed amendment to the city charter such property can not be assessed for more than one-half its value, or $200, the balance of $600 to be paid from the permanent street improvement fund, which has been raised by the three mill tax which is now in force, the item of $800 to be paid by the property holder in ten years if they so elect. In other words property can not be assessed for more than one-half its value, the street improvement goes forward just the same and the balance to complete such improvement to come out of the special fund.

There has been very little street improvement in this city since the present charter was adopted, funds always being at too low an ebb to permit of such work, as there could be raised by such taxation only five or six thousand dollar by the three mill tax. Main street, 5th and Jackson were improved before the present charter was in force, and at that time the charter called for the full payment of the improvements by the property abutting.

The three mill tax will still be in force, the funds to be used in cases where the improvements exceed the value of the abutting property as previously stated.

There is an apparent desire on the part of our citizens generally to improve our streets, several petitions having been placed before the council for various streets, but the lack of funds has held up the work in every instance. Every member of the council is heartily in favor of the move and all are working hard to bring about the change.

Every person who has the interest of the city at heart and who desires the city to keep in the forward procession with the wide awake cities of the valley and the whole West should see that all voters are acquainted with the intentions of the proposed amendments to the charter, and that the proper support is given the movement, as it means the upbuilding of our city, and increase in land values and city property, increased activity everywhere by the influx of people who desire to live in a city beautiful, with streets that are passable.

In talking of the amendment with Mr. William Andresen, member of council, we find that the council wish to thoroughly inform every voter who does not fully understand the intentions of the amendment, and in this connection there has been arranged a public meeting in the parlors of the Commercial Club Friday evening of this week, where everyone desiring may learn its meaning fully.

In this connection we would advise all citizens to make it their particular business to either attend this meeting or visit some member of the council and get thoroughly posted about the amendment.

At a meeting of the Hill Improvement Club Monday evening the following resolutions were passed:

Whereas, our present city charter is weak and defective and it is difficult for our city council to make street improvements on account of a lack of funds, and whereas, under our present system when streets are improved often times a great hardship is worked upon people owning lots which are unfavorably located and often times confounding such property and

Whereas, the present plan proposed will take the burden of street improvement fund and allow the people to improve their own streets as they wish and pay for the same under the bonding act and also relieve the person who owns a lot unfavorably located from excessive cost.

Now therefore be it resolved by the Hill Club of Oregon City that we favor the new amendment to the city charter and strongly endorse the same and recommend it to the consideration of the voters of Oregon City with the hope that the same may be adopted and that thereby more streets and improvements may be made in the town.

EVANGELIST STOUT AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Great Gospel Singer and Evangelist Will Conduct Series of Services at Baptist Church

Prof. B. P. Stout, the great gospel singer and evangelist, of Los Angeles, will arrive in Oregon City Friday, February 18th, and will begin a special series of gospel services in co-operation with the pastor, Rev. S. A. Hayworth of the First Baptist church.

Prof. Stout has a national reputation as a singer and evangelist. He has conducted revival services in many of the leading churches of the eastern and central states and is pronounced by all as being a wonderful singer. He repeatedly sang at Ocean Grove, New Jersey, to thousands of hearers and his future in California is proven by his returning engagements with various churches of the great cities. At Long Beach, California, he sang to several thousand men and the sweet melody of his powerful voice combined with the tenderness and pathos of his spirit makes a most effective appeal to all hearts. He is to spend two weeks in the First Baptist church of Oregon City, beginning Sunday morning, February 20th. Rev. S. A. Hayworth, the pastor, has been preparing for this special gospel mission for several months. His own pulpit work has centered on the accomplishment of evangelistic ends and the constant additions to his church by baptism, letter and experience are witness to the effectiveness of his labors. The people of Clackamas county are fortunate in having the privilege of hearing America's most gifted gospel singer and evangelist during the closing days of February.

Death of Thurlow Rands

The death of Thurlow Rands occurred Tuesday at his home in Vancouver. He was 27 years of age and had been ill for some time with lung trouble. He was a son of E. M. Rands, former postmaster of Oregon City, and will be remembered by many friends here who are grieved to learn of his death. Mr. Rands has many relatives who attended the funeral Thursday at Vancouver.

GENERAL PUBLIC MUCH INTERESTED

Meeting of Oak Grove Improvement Club Largely Attended

About 500 people were present at the meeting of the Oak Grove Improvement Club, Jan. 3rd, for the purpose of making some definite plans in regard to the annexation of that section to Multnomah county. For some time this question has been agitated, and the residents in that section think that such an annexation would enhance the value of their property, the strong plea being used that the section involved was not receiving the proper amount of funds for the improvement needed in that portion of the county.

The meeting was called to order by President Herman Thiesens, of the Oak Grove Improvement Club, who after a few remarks explaining the object of the gathering, introduced Judge Munly, of Portland, who stated that he represented some 30 East Portland improvement organizations, and was still further trying to aid the prosperity of the community. He believed that the annexation of the proposed portion of Clackamas would aid in the building up of a greater Portland, and that such a move, the section involved would have better sanitary conditions, together with better water, roads, streets and fire protection. He also inferred that there would be a more perfect government and he said that the people of this section of the county only want to Oregon City to pay their taxes. The speaker also intimated that such an addition would mean a 5-cent car fare to Portland, which would be the county seat. B. Lee Pascoe, of the Portland Trust Company, who reviewed the object of the meeting introduced the following resolutions:

"Resolved, By this large and representative meeting of the residents and taxpayers of the northeast section of Clackamas county, that a meeting committee of 20 be appointed for the purpose of a hearing, and the power of deciding, the boundary line to be established in connection with the proposition to annex a portion of this section to Multnomah county, commencing at the mouth of the Clackamas River and running east, following its course, to a line to be established, and also changing the county line on the west side of the Willamette river so as to include Oswego. A resolution was also passed to form an association to be known as the Multnomah-Clackamas Annexation Association with a committee of about fifty gentlemen who met Monday in Portland to continue the work. A large number of North Clackamas residents were present and after the adoption of the resolution and the appointment of the committee County Judge Dimick was called. The judge said that the road districts north of the Clackamas river had received in many instances nearly double the amount of money represented by the general road levy upon their assessed valuation. He had the records for the last two years with him and these were turned over to the secretary of the meeting. The judge gave a clear view of the affairs of the county relating to the northern section.

Judge Gordon E. Hayes and Attorney O. D. Eby, of Oregon City, talked briefly, opposing the movement as did also Judge E. F. Rely of Portland, president of the Clackamas Title Company.
