Miss Sarah Roberts and her sister, Mrs. Grace Marlborough, who have been spending several months in the east, returned to their home in this city Wednesday evening. They have had a most enjoyable trip, among the places visited were Nankato, Minn., where they were the guests of their cousins; Lake Crystal, where they also visited relatives and at Bellows Falls, Vermont, where they visited Mrs. Grace Marlborough, mother-in-law of Mrs. Grace Marlborough, and also Mrs. William Collins, at Springfield, Mass. After visiting at that place they went to Washington, D. C., where they spent several days and also Brooklyn, N. Y., and also Niagara Falls. Very little rain was experienced while in the east, and after returning were greeted with an Oregon mist. The weather at Washington, D. C., was delightful and also in Vermont, while visiting there.

Lionel Gordon, of Marshfield, Oregon, who has been in this city, where he has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Brightbill, parents of Mrs. Gordon, left Thursday evening for his home. Mr. Gordon has been transacting business in Portland, and was joined in that city by his brother, Emil Gordon, of Powell River, B. C., also a former resident of Oregon City, who was a guest of the Brightbills while there.

Mrs. T. E. Ostman, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lindquist, of Willamette, returned to Portland Wednesday. Mrs. Ostman is for the present making her home at 304 Grant street in that city, but expects to soon leave for California, where she will join her husband, who is in Oakland. Mr. Ostman is taking a course in the military hospital in San Francisco and returned to California last week. He is suffering from injuries received while overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Nobel and family, who formerly resided at Eighth and Main streets, and now making their temporary home with Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nobel, Jr., of Greenport, will take possession of the Busch residence on Twelfth and Main streets Monday. This was recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Foster, who have taken up their residence in Portland.

Gordon W. Taylor, of Molalla, was in the city Wednesday on his way to Portland. Mr. Taylor has been invited to address an assembly at an Armistice day celebration to be held at Goldendale, Wash., on November 11. He made a record for himself while overseas as a "Y" worker when he gave his lecture "Dad."

Mrs. Morris Fox, of Portland, wife of Morris Fox, who is suffering from injuries received when an automobile in which he was riding with the late C. L. Smith, who lost his life in the accident, is in this city and is at the bedside of her husband. Mrs. Fox was accompanied by her mother, who resides near Oak Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Buchanan and son George, who have been making their home at Stanfield, where Mr. Buchanan has engaged in farming on irrigated land, have disposed of their interests and have purchased a tract of land consisting of 20 acres from Fred Hoff, near the Willamette Valley Southern railway.

James Shaw, who has been residing at Molalla, has moved to West Linn, where he will make his home. Mr. Shaw had intended making his home in Oregon City, but owing to lack of houses, he was unable to find a suitable home here.

Mrs. C. T. Howard, secretary of the state grange, whose home is at Mulino, was in Oregon City on grange business Saturday. She was accompanied by her grandchildren, Lorna and Burrell Howard, of Mulino.

Miss Myrtle Larkin, of Mulino, was a visitor Wednesday.

Mrs. Dan Robbins has returned to McMinnville.

Sectionalism Injected

While Mr. Harvey G. Starkweather, retired capitalist and wealthy citizen of the Milwaukie district is telling his audience in the territory where he resides and where he is respected, just what a big liar The Enterprise is, this newspaper will continue to be issued every morning and print the facts about road bonds and other important news features that come under its observation.

It is with some regret that we feel compelled to differ with Mr. Starkweather, but we believe his attitude on the road bond measure is based wholly upon the fact that his district will get none of the money, and, for once, he is so short-sighted that he refuses to recognize the interests of Clackamas county as a whole.

This is no time for sectionalism, which Mr. Starkweather is seeking to promote. Taxpayers from every part of Clackamas have for several years paid their money into a paving fund, which has been expended in that part of the county where Mr. Starkweather is financially and selfishly interested. Two parallel roads between Oregon City and the Multnomah county line on the east side of the Willamette have been paved from the general fund, with some assistance from the districts in which the roads have been laid. It is expected that this program would continue next year and the year following, so that broken links in the system could be connected.

District No. 1, as it was constituted, is a wealthy district, with a high assessed valuation. Under the recent order of the county court the district has been enlarged to include a considerable area. In making the statement that all of the paving laid in Clackamas county since the paving program was initiated five years ago is in Mr. Starkweather's district, we referred to the district as now constituted, and this statement is unquestionably a fact, though Mr. Starkweather insists it is a falsehood. We are quite willing to leave it to common knowledge and to the official records. If paving has been laid elsewhere, we should like a photograph of it.

Finally, we are not in the debating business. Our time is well taken up in publishing a newspaper and replying in our own columns to the attack of Mr. Starkweather and others. While we are talking to 5000 readers every day, let Mr. Starkweather tell his tales to his own audiences. If he is itching for a debate, doubtless the road bond campaign committee will accommodate him. To paraphrase Mr. Starkweather's words:

"An individual who distorts the truth is no more entitled to the respect of a community than a newspaper which distorts the facts."

GOLDEN WEDDING CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. Commons Entertain Many Friends at Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Commons celebrated their golden wedding at their home at Scotts Mills, Oregon, October 28, 1919.

William Harvey Commons and Anna Little were married October 28, 1869, at Middleboro, Wayne county, Indiana, by Rev. W. E. Barton, Methodist minister.

They went to housekeeping there and Mr. Commons went into the blacksmith business; in 1871 a son, Alden, was born. They then moved to Kansas, and in 1875, Mr. Commons blacksmithed for the Indians in Anadarko, now Oklahoma. He relates some wonderful experiences among them, many having never seen a white man before.

They moved to Decatur, Indiana, and from there to Paton, Iowa, in 1883. They lived there 10 years and while there the son was married; in 1893 a girl was born. While preparing to move to Oregon, Alden's wife died, leaving the baby; Mr. Commons raised the child (Leota), and in 1912 she was married to Charles E. Scharbach, of Mt. RETURNED WAR WORKER MAKES SAD TRIP THROUGH DEATH

Bryant Ryall Called Here to Attend Funeral of His Mother

Bryant R. Ryall, Y. M. C. A. worker and a prisoner of war, arrived in Oregon City a few days ago, where he was called to the bedside of his dying mother, the late Mrs. Susannah Elizabeth Ryall, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. Kordenat, of Gladstone, Saturday morning.

Mr. Ryall, having been a worker in the Y. M. C. A. for some time, was among those to go overseas at an early date during the world war. In Russia, he, with eleven other Americans, was taken prisoner by the Bolsheviks near Archangel in northern Russia, and close to the front line, while the Americans were trying to recapture that section. The Bolshevik raiding party came upon the Americans in the rear. Ryall was the first of the party to be caught, the remainder of the 12 men having been captured later during the day. The Americans were released at the same time, and were the happiest men in the country after three months confinement in a Russian prison. Mr. Ryall refuses to tell of any of his experiences while in captivity, although reporters and others have attempted to interview him on the subject. He has been over a large portion of Russia and has become thoroughly acquainted with the natives and customs there.

Mr. Ryall returned to the United States in the early summer. His home is at Montclair, New York, where his wife and little daughter, Mary Katherine, awaited in anxiety until they heard of the husband and father's release.

Mr. Ryall leaves Tuesday with the remains of his mother, which will be interred in the family plot of the old home city—Waukegan, Wis., and will then proceed to his home in New York.

COMMUNITY HEALTH NURSING CAMPAIGN IS INAUGURATED

State Advisory Nurse Is Here in Interest of Public Health Drive

Miss Jane C. Allen, R. N., state advisory nurse of the state board of health visited Oregon City Monday in the interest of the public health nursing campaign which is just being inaugurated in a number of Oregon counties including Clackamas. Miss Allen has her headquarters in Portland and she is now spending much of her time in visiting the several counties in which the campaign is to be conducted introducing Miss Elizabeth Weinhold, who will spend the ensuing three months in this county in the campaign.

Beginning with this first week in November, a new work for the promotion of public health in this county started, that of public health nursing. Miss Elizabeth Weinhold, a registered graduate nurse, who acquired valuable experience in public health nursing in a three year term of work with the Chicago Visiting Nurse association, has been secured for Clackamas county and is establishing headquarters in Oregon City.

The finances for this work are being temporarily furnished by the Oregon Tuberculosis association, which for the past two years has been using the funds derived from Red Cross Christmas seal sales in promoting county public health nursing throughout the state. A three months demonstration of the work is made at the expense of the association with the idea in view that after the people in the county have become acquainted with the value of such service in their community they will be willing to have county funds used for its support.

Six counties in Oregon now have public health nurses at work in them, Coos, Lane, Jackson, Union, Umatilla and Clatsop—and six more counties are on the waiting list for demonstrations. Great difficulty is being experienced in finding well qualified public health nurses and Clackamas county is indeed fortunate in getting Miss Weinhold at this time. Similar work is being started in Washington county this week. Mrs. Agnita Smith is the nurse in charge.

The work is that of an instructor and advisor in matters pertaining to individual and community health. She works both in the homes and the schools of the county. In the homes she not only advises in the prevention of diseases but demonstrates the proper care of the sick. In the schools she gives classroom talks on health, and she inspects for symptoms of physical defects those pupils selected by the teachers as seemingly below normal physically. This school inspection is not compulsory and parents who do not wish it for their children may have them excused by notifying the teachers.

Regular visits will be made by Miss Weinhold each month to the different sections of the county. This first two weeks Miss Jane C. Allen, who is the state advisory nurse and also organizer for the Tuberculosis association is spending considerable time with Miss Weinhold introducing her to the physicians and other prominent public spirited people in the county who are interested in the development of this work.

THE ENTERPRISE POET

If you're out of sorts or indisposed or what you call run down Just read the Morning Enterprise and smile instead of frown; It will drive away dull care, they say it is fine for shattered nerves And run now by Ed Brodie but at one time was Meservies. You get it every morning ere the sun peeps o'er the hills With its breezy editorials to drive away the chills; And never gets the items mixed and has all the latest news Such as Price has lowered the price of milk and Hartke lowered shoes. You learn about so many things, I can't remember all But one or two important ones I happen to recall. It told about the aeroplanes fooling people all around And also of an auto park that tourists never found. It tell the farmers what to do and says keep on your coats For you'll never have to work again if you get a hand of goats. To me it is a blessing, yes, a blessing in disguise, And I'd rather miss my ham and eggs than the Morning Enterprise. I feel a little peevish sometimes when the carrier is late As I stand therein my slippers and lean o'er the garden gate. I cannot blame the office force, in fact them I'll excuse For they are out both late and early a rustling up the news. I know them all, yes, every one from Ed clear down to Van And wonder where they'll get the goods if some one marries Nan. If anything I have said offends, I now apologize For I've nothing but good wishes for the Morning Enterprise. F. L. T.
