STARKWEATHER SAYS ENTERPRISE ARTICLE MADE OF FALSEHOOD

MILWAUKIE, Nov. 6.—(Editor of The Enterprise.)—In the Daily Enterprise of yesterday I note that you have given our challenge first page publicity. I note your comment that the roads in our district are already paved at the expense of the whole county. I note also that you say: "All the paving laid in Clackamas county since the paving program was initiated five years ago is in Mr. Starkweather's district." This statement is an absolute falsehood. You probably did not write the article yourself, but having allowed its publication in your paper, you should assume the responsibility for the statement or retract what you have said.

You may sit in your editorial rooms where no one can see you blash and thus carelessly distort the truth, but you do not have the courage to come before an audience who are familiar with the facts, and repeat your statements.

The citizens of Concord hold a public meeting at the Concord school house Saturday evening, November 8, and I defy you to come before them and attempt to prove the truth of your statements. I shall read your editorial comment before this meeting and point out the falsehood therein. I will do the same thing at a meeting of the citizens of Oak Grove to be held Monday evening, November 10.

Now, Friend Brodie, stand up like a little man and tell these audiences what you have said in your paper—you know it doesn't circulate much down in Oak Grove, and the people here would like to see the editor. Some of the questions may be a little embarrassing, but they will be asked in the interests of truth.

A newspaper which will distort facts is no more entitled to the respect of a community than is the individual who distorts the truth.

We hope and trust that you may be with us on these evenings and that you may not have a previous engagement, nor cold feet, nor anything else that might prevent your being with us.

P. S. The foregoing is intended for publication, and in fairness to me and my community, I request that it be given the same first page publicity that your false comment occupied.

HARVEY G. STARKWEATHER.

Boxing Contests For Milwaukie

MILWAUKIE, Nov. 13.—Carpenters are busy this week repairing the old car barn in Milwaukie and making it ready for the series of boxing bouts to be held there during the winter. The boxing contests will be held under the supervision of a boxing commission appointed by Mayor Snyder several weeks ago.

Milwaukie People Opposed to Bonds

MILWAUKIE, Nov. 13.—It appears now as though the north end of the county was left out when the commission designated the roads to be made with the bond issue now before the voters. Road District No. 1 does not appear on the election notices so it is understood that that district does not get any of the money from the bonds, also it is claimed that the town of Milwaukie will lose the 70 per cent of the town road tax now allowed each year by the county court out of our own taxes.

As the district north and including the towns of Gladstone and Milwaukie, pay about one-sixth of the taxes of the county it would seem we should have some part of the bonds for our roads, some of which are almost impassable during the winter. No one here seems to be in favor of the bonds as they are now proposed.

School Budget to Provide Increase

A well attended taxpayers' meeting was held at the high school building, Tuesday evening to discuss how best to proceed to give all teachers in the schools a raise in salary. The election will be held early in December.

The house was beautifully decorated in autumn foliage and flowers. Refreshments were served.

The bride is a well known teacher of Clackamas county, and the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hamilton of St. Johns. Captain Johnson is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Johnson and returned from overseas with the 147th regiment F. A. He saw active service as captain of battery B.

Monday, November 10, at the high school building a meeting will be held wherein the teachers will present their claims for higher compensation.

The school will not convene as usual on Tuesday, November 11, as it has been decided to celebrate Armistice Day.

The Rope

Four of the red-blooded men who fought America's battles on the fields of France slain by I. W. W. members in Centralia on Armistice day makes the first anniversary of peace a grim tragedy for not only the little city in Washington, but wherever the hearts of loyal patriots beat.

The hellish planning of the Reds, who deliberately shot down citizens in the American Legion parade, has only one answer—the rope! Beasts who will commit such a dastardly crime are not fit to live, and so long as they live are a menace to this country.

Had these murders occurred in Oregon, and had the criminals survived the vengeance of a righteously indignant people, their destination would have been the penitentiary, for we in Oregon have abolished the death penalty, and in time some soft-hearted executive would have turned them loose to again prey upon the world.

The I. W. W. is a danger. He has no respect for the law, nor for the peaceful an ordinary solution of present day problems. He is a Red, whose only weapon is violence, whose only argument is sabotage and other vile crimes, and who is always a murderer at heart. He has no right to remain upon this earth to interfere with peaceful citizens and to kill at will. Neither should the state be required to support him for the rest of his life behind the walls of our prisons.

The rope is the answer. No loyal American will criticize those who took from the Centralia jail the man who was probably chiefly responsible for four American lives. The only wonder is that the others were permitted to live.

FORUM OF THE PEOPLE

MR. CASTO OPPOSES BONDS

CARUS, Nov. 13.—(Editor of the Enterprise.)—In an article in a recent issue of your weekly paper regarding the proposed bond issue, among other things you say, "There remains only the question of whether it is worth while to borrow money to secure the improvement of our roads within four or five years, or without adequate funds to lay about six miles of pavement each year."

Personally, I prefer to proceed in the present manner of building our roads, until a more stable and economical plan is devised than the proposed issuance of bonds soon to be voted upon, especially at such a high rate of interest.

I am not in favor of bonding my children yet to be born, for the building of roads. We cannot conceive what burdens may be brought upon them in the future, hence I believe we should endeavor to leave them as nearly free from industrial oppression as we possibly can.

But then, why need we continue without adequate funds? There are other more conservative ways of obtaining funds for road improvement than this whirlwind-raiding style of procedure.

"A comprehensive road plan" is not the immediate necessity of this state or of Clackamas county. Better, by far, formulate and support a plan that will bring our idle acres and unlimited natural resources to a position where those people who wish can utilize them. Populate the county and the roads will come more easily and quickly.

One of our prominent bond-booster said to me recently that fine hard-surfaced roads would enhance property values. Indeed they will, but Mr. Editor, that is the handicap with our county today—property values are already too high.

I have before me copy of the outlined roads that were to be improved with the six million dollars which was voted at a special election three years ago, and which my friend, Mr. McCain, and a number of other bond-booster, who are now boosting for the proposed issue, assured us would be adequate to "complete the whole plan in good shape." It is to laugh. Mr. Editor, to note how many of the roads, as outlined, have been completed or even begun. What assurance have we then, that the pending plan will be any more likely to be completed? Where large sums of money are suddenly available for any project there is more of a tendency toward extravagance than where the funds are distributed over larger periods.

I notice that Clackamas county is one of the five counties in the state which has not yet added the bonding debt, and I am proud of it, and I trust that the people of the county will act wisely at the coming special one election and defeat this octopus, as they did the recent six-million dollar issue.

S. L. CASTO.

STRAIGHT UNAWARE THAT BOTTLES HAD LIQUOR, HIS DEFENSE

Jury Convicts Chas. Straight on a Charge of Having Liquor in His Possession.

The jury in the case of State against Charles Straight, tried on a charge of having intoxicating liquor on his person Wednesday afternoon in Justice Stipp's court, returned a verdict of guilty. Sentence will be passed Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

The case created considerable interest. A number of members of the local W. C. T. U. were present. The evidence showed that Straight was arrested by Sheriff Wilson on last Saturday and that he threw two bottles against the rocks on Singer hill just as the officers were placing him under arrest. After the arrest the officers searched Straight's home and premises on Clackamas Heights and found two fifty gallon barrels of sour mash in the kitchen and two one gallon jugs of liquor hid in the yard close to the house. The sheriff saved samples of the liquor and had them analyzed by State Chemist Wells in Portland Monday. The analysis showed the liquor to contain as high as 44 per cent alcohol. That is the equal of 89 proof whisky.

Straight in defense said he did not know that the bottles he broke contained liquor and that so far as the liquor found on his premises was concerned, he thought some one must have put it there as he did not know anything about it. He further said that the mash found in his home was to be used for making vinegar.

The jury was out nearly three hours before returning their verdict. District Attorney Hedges prosecuted the case and Attorney Brownell represented the defendant.

FARMERS MINE OWN COAL

HOOD RIVER, Nov. 12.—W. A. Cass, University of Oregon graduate, who spent the week-end here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cass, while returning to his home in Portland from Butte, Mont., where he has been connected with paving contracts, just completed, says that motor trucks have enabled Montana coal miners to develop properties that have long gone idle.

"Nearly every hill in some of those sections," says Mr. Cass, "has an outcropping of coal. Every farmer mines his own fuel. But heretofore only those properties located on railroads have been operated. This fall the farmers have spent their spare time digging coal, finding a ready market for the fuel delivered by motor truck."
