MEN IN AUTO HAVE CLOSE SHAVE FROM BAD ACCIDENT

Driver Goes to Sleep at Wheel, Car
Goes Off Road and Turns
Over at Night

CANBY, Nov. 26.—Two motorists from Salem had a narrow escape while traveling over the highway near Pulp station Sunday, and those having witnessed the accident are puzzled how the men escaped injury.

The driver of the machine giving his name as Powers was driving the automobile, and were on their way to Portland, where they had intended spending the day. The driver went to sleep at the wheel, so he says, and several motorists following noticed the automobile ahead of them traveling in a zigzag manner. The machine was going about nine miles an hour. The machine finally was driven towards the side of the road, and within a few minutes was turned completely over, with the two men pinned beneath. They managed to extricate themselves, and other motorists rushed to their rescue, found the men uninjured.

Both men looked somewhat sleepy and were in no condition to drive an automobile.

They were taken to Oregon City by passing motorists, and proceeded to Portland.

Monday a "wrecking crew" came from the capital city and took the automobile back to Salem. But very little damage was done to the machine.

GOOD ROADS ISSUE FINE

CANBY, Nov. 26.—The good roads number of the Clackamas County News published in this city was a most creditable edition, and Fred W. Smith, manager of the paper, has received many compliments in getting out the paper. This section of the county was in favor of the bonds, and came out with flying colors on Monday night.

There was much interest manifested here, and from the indications this section of the county will receive its share of roads instead of the northern part, where paved roads have been established, and where the larger majority of the people voted against the bond question, the reason being that most of the roads have been established there by the county.

Many roads leading into Canby are in some places almost impassable, and the farmers are now much encouraged since they have to travel over these and prospects of having better roads in the future.

Sarah N. Brown, of Canby, has been appointed administratrix of the estate of her husband, John T. Brown, valued at $1000.

Graham, cashier of the Canby State bank, has been appointed guardian for the aged man.

Nora A. Heckart asks to be appointed administratrix of the estate of her mother, Margaret E. Harrington. The property consists of real estate of the value of $900 and personal of $221.70.

Concentration of Mind.

The brain of the average person is too receptive and not positive enough. It is swayed by every gust of emotion, yields too easily to outside conditions. It reproduces too easily the idle thoughts of others, or its own phantasies, and avoids the effort of constructive thinking. A complete change in the mental habits of such a person may open the way for unlimited future development. Mental efficiency can only be attained when one possesses the power of concentrating the mind. Weak powers of concentration mean inefficient thinking and vacillating action. Regular daily practice in concentration, keeping the mind centered upon some one subject, some difficult problem, will soon give the mind the habit of constructive thinking. Persistence in this practice and ignore all seeming lack of progress if you would obtain the fullest results.—Nautlius.

French Supremacy.

The French surpass every other nation, indeed all the other nations of Europe put together in the amount and excellence of their memories. Whence comes this manifest superiority? Burial of I. W. W. Organizer Who Was Lynched After Reds Killed Four Ex-Service Men in Armistice Day Parade

This photograph shows an improvised coffin containing the body of Wesley Everett, I. W. W. organizer, who was taken from jail and lynched at Centralia, Wash., after a volley fired from the I. W. W. hall killed four ex-service men in an Armistice day parade. No undertaker could be found to care for the body, so it was placed in a box and taken in a moving van to the pauper's section of the town's cemetery. The grave had been dug by rounded up Reds who were taken from jail under guard for the purpose.

Jennie Juniper Writes on Bond Election

Oregon City, Nov. 27.—(To the Editor.)—The bonds have passed, and yet how recently the mere suggestion would have been derided as an "imposition upon posterity." Unrest in the world is shaking us out of old ruts. Oregon City is alive more than ever in all her history. Her newspapers are better than ever before, two of them, an honor each to our city. Lectures are in progress at the public library every Saturday night that well might grace our chautauqua platform, given by professors of the state university and paid for by the state. And some lectures by local citizens might well have a place there, notably one recently given by Dr. Crocker, on Tennyson's "In Memoriam," a presentation that would do honor to any of our best universities.

And we are to have a lyceum course at the high school auditorium, a series of entertainments that we might travel to Portland in vain to obtain, and yet brought to our very doors for a mere trifle of expense. And we are to have visiting nurses in the schools that the ill and handicapped defenseless little children may be discovered while there is yet time. "Send them to my school quickly," said one principal. "There are children there who cannot see the blackboard and who need spectacles. And the children with adnoids until they cannot breathe and are liable to become imbeciles; and children with defective teeth who never know an hour without pain. How can they study?"

Hail, day of unrest! It is a sign of growth and betterment. The bin will pass away, but the good will become permanent. Best wishes to you, Mr. Editor, for the high part you have taken in the benefaction of our town. Thanks to the Live Wires of the Commercial club who by repeated appeals have aroused the slumberers.

Thanks to the Women's club for tireless devotion to all that is best, and perpetual thanks to the schools and churches who are making our historic little city one of the most desirable in the world.

"A chief's among ye takin' notes, An' faith, he'll prent 'em."

INVESTIGATION OF PROBLEMS RAISED BY ESTABLISHMENT OF RURAL EXPRESS LINES

Motor Trucks Used to Distribute Army Food in City of Washington.

F. H. Akers, Chicago, manager of a large automobile concern, has presented the results of some investigations relative to motor stages and freight lines.

While Mr. Akers believes in common with many other automobile men that rural express lines have a future before them, he has run across several problems which must be met and solved before they can be a complete success. He advocates the establishment of a rural express commission operating under the state government, and regulating rates, competition, etc., as a protection to this very young industry. Here is a case which Mr. Akers investigated:

"Not long ago one of our truck dealers in Washington saw a very feasible untraversed motor express route between a small town and a fairly good-sized city. A young clerk in a clothing store had consistently saved his money—had been reading the government's propaganda—and saw in the rural express idea an opportunity of becoming his own boss—a proprietor of a rural express line—with every chance to expand. The young man enlisted the help of the truck dealer. Together they canvassed the merchants in the town and were assured of enough business to make the line pay, providing a reasonable amount of freight could be secured in the city to haul back.

"The young man purchased the truck and soon had a thriving little business. Then another truck dealer got busy and persuaded another man to enter the business. A truck dealer in the city at the other end of the line induced a man there to inaugurate a line on the same route. Shortly there were four competitors on the one line and when the business was split four times there was not enough money left to pay gasoline bills.

Commission Needed. "Had a properly constituted commission been established with the necessary authority to grant franchises and limited the route to two competitors the enterprise would have been a success. With the franchise there would naturally go some undertakings on the part of the truck owner. For example, he would have to give a bond to deliver on schedule the same as the parcel post contractor in any city, with a penalty attached for failure. Rates would be established by this commission. A truck owner should not be compelled to make rates so low that he can't give good service or, yet, because of his franchise, be allowed to charge exorbitant rates.

"The return loads bureau, which is another factor in conducting the rural express system, is something else that will need careful attention. The evil of all roads being return loads, will be a menace to the rural express system unless carefully guarded against. It is the greatest system of transportation ever devised and as such should be protected from its pitfalls.

more authentic, circumstantial and satisfactory to an intelligent inquirer, than is to be found among any other people. And the multitude of biographies, personal anecdotes and similar scattered notices, which have appeared in France during the two last centuries, throw a flood of light on the social habits and general civilization of the period in which they were written.—William H. Prescott.

Froghoppers.

The chief menace to sugar cane in the West Indies is the froghopper, an insect that sucks the sap from the root and leaves of the sugar cane, and that owes its name to its ability to take prodigious leaps. In recent years the insects have multiplied enormously, especially in Trinidad, where their natural enemies—frogs, toads and lizards—have been nearly exterminated by the mongoose, originally brought from India to kill the rats and snakes. Wherever the mongooses were plentiful the lizards disappeared and the froghoppers flourished. Five years ago a leading planter, after exterminating as many mongooses as possible, placed thousands of ground lizards in his cane fields, with the result that the froghopper had almost disappeared, and the sugar yield is greatly increased and improved.

MOTOR CARS MAY DOOM RAILROADS

United States Railway Administration Official Foresees Day of Light Truck.

USEFUL FOR FARM HAULING

New Element in Transportation Problem Should Be Considered While Studying Reorganization of Transportation System.

C. A. Morse, assistant director of operation of the United States railway administration, and one of the best known railroad men in America, believes that the motorcar may doom the short-rail lines of the country.

"The perfection of the motortruck, together with the universal use of the automobile, has introduced a new element in the transportation problem that should be taken into consideration at this time, while studying the reorganization of the whole transportation system," said Mr. Morse.

"Where, therefore, the development of the country for 50 miles on either side of a trunk line has required the construction of light branch lines, it is a question to be seriously considered whether this policy should be continued or whether the products of the farm should not be handled by motorcar to the main lines."

Situation Not Surprising.

The situation described by Mr. Morse is not surprising to makers of motorcars designed especially for farmers' needs. Purchases by farmers of business cars of medium capacity have increased enormously during the last year. Their wide touring radius and low haulage cost have enabled the farmer not only to curtail freight charges on purchases of building material, implements, seed, groceries, etc., but to take immediate advantage of the prices at the most advantageous markets.

Even sheep and calves are rapidly transported to market 50 miles distant without the delay incident to the use of the railroads.

Horse Most Inefficient.

During the war a prominent engineer made the statement that the horse was the most inefficient machine used in America. No one has been quicker to recognize this than the farmer. The short haulage radius of the horse, its low rate of speed, the continually rising cost of feed and the important fact that a horse continues to eat whether he is in the field or in the stable made the farmer realize that he could save money and gain speed by motorizing his transportation. Having purchased a business car to replace his expensive horses, the farmer now finds that the car is beginning to replace the railroads.

When the question of surface roads was brought up, Mr. Morse continued: "Investigation of this subject may show the desirability, as good roads are completed, of taking up many of the branch line railroads and utilizing the abandoned roadbed for improved motor roads. There is no denying that motor-driven conveyances have been changing conditions of railroad transportation."

Too Slow.

"Please, mother says these matches won't strike!" From behind his counter the grocer looked down on the child with the air of an insulted saint. "Won't strike!" he said. "Why, look here," and he struck one on his leg. The child departed home to tell his mother of the mistake she had made. But in a very short time he was back at the shop with the matches, which he laid on the counter with an air of finality. "Mother says she hasn't time to come and strike matches on your trousers!"

Changes on the Moon.

Though a dead world, evidences of slight changes on the moon are occasionally noted. Recently studying the interior of the great lunar crater Plato, as seen from the observatory of Florence, Mentore Maggini was astonished to find one of the numerous small craters buried in a reddish haze, which afterward spread over the whole of the northeast portion of the main crater, and then disappeared. The appearance was that of vapor, confirming previous observations of supposed clouds of volcanic gas in the same crater.

MINERS GET GOOD RISE AS RESULT IN STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A wage advance of 14 per cent for all miners, maintenance of government control of coal prices and no increase in prices at this time were the conclusions of Fuel Administrator Garfield, announced tonight to the operators and miners wage scale committees.

Declaring that Secretary Wilson, acting as the "authorized agent of the cabinet and President Wilson," had offered an increase of 31 6-10 per cent, John L. Lewis, acting president of the mine workers, asked if the government intends to "repudiate the acts of Secretary Wilson."

Dr. Garfield replied that Mr. Wilson made his proposal as a mediator to facilitate negotiations and that Mr. Wilson told him today it was the duty of the fuel administrator to fix prices, and that it was not the functions of the secretary of labor.

"The cabinet has decided that the basis I have suggested is sound and right," Dr. Garfield said.

MEXICO HELD TO BE BAITING U. S. IS BELIEF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Some officials expressed belief today that the Mexican government's delay in replying to the American note, sent more than a week ago, demanding release of William O. Jenkins, consular agent at Puebla, was part of a deliberate plan further to antagonize the United States.

This was based largely upon official information from Mexico City that officials were endeavoring to spread the report that this country was on the verge of a revolution and that by holding up the reply Mexico could offer "substantial aid to the revolutionists."

Mexican agents in the United States the advice said, had been sending some highly colored and wildly exaggerated reports concerning domestic conditions, the steel and coal strikes being cited as glaring evidence of industrial unrest.

TO CIRCUMVENT AUTO THIEF

Hobble Applied to One of Front Wheels Makes Steering of Car Uncertain Undertaking.

A really satisfactory lock for an automobile which will circumvent the great activity of automobile thieves seems to be a hard thing to arrive at. If the thief wants your car he is quite likely to get it. If it is supplied with a lock that stands in his way he will bring another car and drag it away. A hobble for an automobile which has at least the recommendation that it is inexpensive, has been designed and it is claimed that when it is applied to one of the front wheels it will not only make the steering of the car a very uncertain undertaking, but the erratic conduct of the vehicle will be sure to attract the attention of pedestrians and others who will be at once led to suspect that the car is stolen.
