CARRIERS AND CLERKS COME

Local Post Office Employees Hosts to State Convention

Extensive plans are being made by the local post office employees for the entertainment of carriers and clerks from all parts of Oregon at the annual convention of the Oregon Association of Clerks and Carriers to be held in this city on June 24. The clerks and carriers of the Oregon city postoffice met at the Commercial club rooms last Thursday evening and appointed committees to make arrangements for the reception and entertainment of approximately 500 delegates from the various postoffices of the state who are expected to attend the annual convention.

The annual convention is the big social and business gathering of the year and at the session held at Salem last year 400 delegates were present. The association has been organized only two years, but its members have taken a keen interest in its welfare and it is constantly growing in membership and importance.

The following committees were appointed at the meeting last week: Executive committee, including the three state presidents elected from the Oregon City delegation to the Salem convention, Carl Joehne, chairman, president of the post office clerks, John Echeson, president of the letter carriers, Frank Whitman, president of the rural carriers; finance committee, W. B. Howell, Ralph Niles, Orville Johnson; reception, Luther McAnulty, Roy Trullinger, Otto Ryan, Frank Fuge, Perry Neekes; entertainment, Julius Spagle, Thomas Smith, John Eger; publicity, Mrs. C. A. Nash, Charles Andrus, John Eger; arrangements, Julius Spagle, Charles Andrus, William Lettenmeier; refreshments, Roy Trullinger, Thomas Smith, Ralph Niles. Luther McAnulty will act as stenographer of the convention.

Troubled at Night

Painful, annoying bladder weakness usually indicates kidney trouble and kidney trouble never should be neglected. Backache, rheumatism, sore, swollen or stiff muscles or joints—all these have been relieved by Foley Kidney Pills. They act promptly and efficiently and help to health. Henry Rudolph, Carmi, Ill., writes: "I was bothered with hurting in back and was troubled at night and had to get up several times. Since taking Foley Kidney Pills I sleep all night without getting up."—Jones Drug Co.

STUDER GOES TO PEN

Stringtown Poultry Thief Will Serve Time for Actions

For the profitable business he conducted in all parts of the county as a chicken thief Philip Studer of "Stringtown" will have to pay dearly. Studer was indicted by the grand jury on Tuesday and on Wednesday morning pled guilty to the charges against him. He was sentenced by Judge Campbell to serve from 2 to 5 years in the state penitentiary, and is already behind the bars of that institution.

Farmers, especially those living in the vicinity of Studer's home, will receive his commitment as pleasant news, for the prisoner's depredations have been a source of heavy loss and much worry to keepers of poultry. He was arrested more than a week ago by Sheriff Wilson and Constable Frost when they broke down a door at his home and found Studer preparing chickens he had stolen for the market. The officials tracked the thief from a farmhouse at Beaver Creek to his home in what is known popularly as Stringtown, by the peculiar mark left in the road by a shoe worn by the horse he was riding.

Studer is held to blame for most of the poultry losses that have occurred about the county within the past few months, as he is known to have marketed a great number of fowls which were not his rightful property.

Desertion Charged

Len Normayle charges her husband with willful desertion in a divorce complaint filed in the circuit court on Tuesday. The couple was married at Spokane, Wash., on May 23, 1910.

WILL REPAIR DAM

Structure at Oswego Lake Has Caused Much Trouble

The Oregon Iron & Steel company, owner of the dam at Oswego lake, is contemplating the repair of the structure and will probably have workmen busy there early next week. The dam first held back the waters of the lake fifty-six years ago, when it was erected by A. A. Dunham, owner of a sawmill at the lake in the early days.

High water from the Tualatin river washed out a section of the dam about two months ago and it is this damage which the present owners will repair. Since the dam came into possession of the present owners it has been causing considerable trouble, probably because, at the time of its most recent rebuilding, the construction work was faulty. When it is rebuilt this time the dam will be made of sufficient strength to hold back the waters of the Tualatin.

West Linn Equipped

A hose cart and 400 feet of hose were installed in a new fire house at Sunset and Walnut streets, West Linn, late last week, and that community is prepared for the worst, in the way of fire. West Linn will soon have three houses ready for apparatus and these are to be located at different parts of the town in order to provide maximum protection. One house is located at Willamette, which was recently annexed by the thriving council of West Linn.

CONCORD LAD HURT

Fourteen Stitches Necessary to Sew Up Cut on Head

Elmer Evans, of Concord, was on Saturday night kicked by his saddle horse and his face badly lacerated, the animal's hoof striking over one eye and cutting a gash that required 14 stitches. The lad was leading his horse to the barn after completing his work, when the animal reared, broke loose and kicked the lad, knocking him down, where he was picked up in an unconscious condition.

A physician expressed the hope that the injured lad's eyesight is not affected, but says there is danger of that. It is impossible as yet to say how serious the injury is until the swelling of the face goes down.

The Boy Scouts of Concord, to which organization Elmer belonged, will care for the lad's work until he is entirely restored.

SPENCE RE-ELECTED

Clackamas County People Will Serve State Grange Again

Two Clackamas county people were honored by the State Grange meeting held at Grants Pass last week by being elected to office in that important organization. C. E. Spence of Beaver Creek was re-elected master of the grange and Mrs. Mary Howard of Mulino was re-elected secretary. The grange meeting closed last Thursday evening with a great banquet at which nearly 600 delegates were present.

The re-election of Mr. Spence and Mrs. Howard comes as a tribute to their activities in connection with the grange work and as a result of their splendid service in these positions during the past few years. The 1917 convention of the state grange will be held at Astoria.

Governor to Speak

An enthusiastic farmer's union meeting is planned by the Beaver Creek union on Saturday night. Governor Withycombe will attend the meeting and will speak on some phase of agricultural endeavor. In view of the executive's attendance a large crowd will be present at the meeting. "Bachelor's Club," an interesting and very lively comedy will be presented during the evening by members of the union. A nominal admission fee has been set and refreshments will be served.

Patriot's suggestion: One nominee, one platform, one party—the Party of Humanity with Woodrow Wilson as its leader.

FUNDS APPORTIONED

County Treasurer Delivers Tax Money To Cities

Nearly $20,000 in tax money was distributed late last week to the incorporated cities of the county by County Treasurer M. E. Dunn. This sum is approximately 50 per cent. of the amount due the several cities and the remainder is to be distributed after the closing of collections in October. The money is the share due each of the cities from the county road tax, of which the state government appropriates 70 per cent.

The following sums were apportioned by the county treasurer: Oregon City, $7,509.51; West Linn, $5,886.33; Milwaukie, $1,556.04; Gladstone, $967.56; Canby, $881.02; Oswego, $597.63; Molalla, $543.20; Estacada, $497.75; Willamette, $275.95; Sandy, $197.95 and Barlow, $86.48.

COUNTY BUYS LAND

County Fair Grounds Become Possession of Taxpayers

The county fair grounds at Canby are now the property of the county, having been transferred from the possession of the Clackamas County Fair association late last week. The county paid $7,950 to the association for the property, which is just sufficient to pay off mortgages against the grounds.

After some little delay, caused by a defect in the title to the land, the papers were filed with Recorder Dedman and by virtue of these documents the county holds absolute title to the property, with no incumbrance of any kind. The county is free to make what disposition it sees fit of the property.

FIRE TAKES MILL

Mattoon Sawmill at Redlands Destroyed by Fire on Monday

A loss of about $3,000 was sustained by the Mattoon brothers at Redlands on Monday night, when their sawmill at that place burned to the ground. The origin of the fire has not been determined and was not covered by insurance. Within an hour after midnight, when the fire started, the building had been consumed. Roy Mattoon and John Mattoon, owners, who are sons of County Commissioner W. H. Mattoon, do not expect to rebuild their plant, which had a capacity of 20,000 feet daily.

Redmen Defeated

The benefit baseball game played at Canby on Sunday between the Oregon City Redmen and the Canby Artisans resulted in the defeat of the former by a score of 3 to 2. The result was uncertain, however, until two extra innings had been played. The battery for Oregon City was Raasch and Story and for Canby was Hoss and Gribble. The local heaver struck out 15 of the Canby players during the game, but the work of his team mates in supporting him and in running bases made his brilliant work ineffective.

The heavy expenses incident to the game made the returns to the game made the returns to the campaign treasury of the candidate for Rose Queen much less than had been anticipated, although a fair crowd witnessed the game.

Former Detective Here

J. F. Kerrigan, former Portland detective, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Mullan of Milwaukie, was in Oregon City on Tuesday. Mr. Kerrigan, although not the Kerrigan who is known to thousands of moving picture fans, is almost as well known as that J. W. Kerrigan, who sometimes takes detective roles in the pictures. The Oregon City visitor is the detective who arrested "The Lone Highwayman," in Portland some time ago, after he had held up an Oregon City car. The same highwayman is accused of the brutal murder of Mrs. Helen Jennings at the old Gore farm near the Clackamas county line in Washington county on Monday night. The highwayman's commitment to the penitentiary resulted from the arrest made by Detective Kerrigan.

"Anything to beat Wilson" will not beat Wilson. They'll have to give good reasons—and they can't.

An Escape

By ELINOR MARSH

A young Russian named Ivan Ivanovitch, living at Kars, not many miles north of the boundary line between Russia and Turkey, found employment across the border and while there fell in love with a young Turkish girl. Her father refused her to him unless he would renounce the Christian religion and become a Mohammedan. Ivan was averse to doing so, but it is easy for one who is in love to find a salve for his conscience, and he finally consented. He professed adhesion to the prophet, and the two were married. This is a simple matter with the Turks, for the bride is conducted to the groom's house and left there with him. There is no such ceremony as among Christians.

Of course the young husband's conversion was a form, but he was obliged to go to prayers in the mosque like any Mohammedan and otherwise conform to that religion. After awhile he grew tired of this and, taking his wife with him, went back to the other side of the border.

Now, it was not long after the Ivanovitch family made this move that the Grand Duke Nicholas marched by, impressing men into his army as he advanced, taking Ivan among the number. When the latter found that they were marching on Erzerum he was much concerned, for it was near that city that he had married his wife, and if he should be captured and recognized fighting in a Christian army against the followers of Mohammed he would suffer as dreadful fate as could be visited on a renegade.

Ivanovitch was on the flank of his army and ten miles to the northwest of Erzerum. There he was captured by the Turks and carried with them in their retreat before the Russians toward Trebizond.

Just before the Russian advance into Turkey, Mme. Ivanovitch went on a visit to her people and was there during the surrender of Erzerum by the Turks. One day while looking at some Russian prisoners who were being marched by, she saw her husband among them.

The good woman was seized with the same trepidation as Ivan, that he might be recognized as a Mohammedan renegade. Wishing to be near him to afford him such protection as she might be able, she followed the prisoners, their captors taking them along in retreat, and saw them go into bivouac for the night.

Now, there was no opportunity for a woman to mingle among men in Turkey, for Turkish women and men do not associate together as in other countries. The only way Mme. Ivanovitch could go among the soldiers and prisoners was by assuming man's attire. Entering the women's quarters of a house near by, she prevailed upon a wife to procure her a suit of her husband's, which she put on and, carrying her own clothes in a bundle under her arm, went to the place where the prisoners were. There she made friends with the guard and offered her services for any duty she might perform. She was told that she might take part in watching the prisoners, and, obtaining a gun, she stood guard with the rest.

Toward midnight she took position near her husband and dropped her bundle beside him, at the same time making signs to him to roll into some underbrush a few yards from him. Slowly edging in that direction, he came to the edge of the brush. Most of the guard were drowsy. One of them was near enough to observe Ivan, and Mme. Ivanovitch placed herself between the two. Then the prisoner rolled into the brush.

As soon as he examined the contents of the bundle he saw his wife's design. As a man in Russian uniform it would be impossible for him to make his way through the Turkish lines, but as a woman he would have every advantage, especially as the face of a Turkish woman is always hidden by a veil. Under cover of the darkness he took off his clothes and put on those of his wife, then made his way out of the bivouac of guards and prisoners.

Coming to the road over which he had been marched during the day, he walked along it till he came to a house. There he took refuge in an outhouse till morning, when he rapped at the women's quarters. He was admitted, made up a story of having been to see an officer to whom she (he) was married, and was treated with kindness.

Here he was in double danger, for he was not only a renegade Mohammedan, but a man in the women's quarters, a place where not even a husband may enter unless his wife is without visitors. However, he insisted on remaining veiled and got out as soon as he could without exciting suspicion.

Following the road back toward the Russians, he modestly withdrew to one side on meeting Turkish soldiers who were hurrying before their conquerors. At last he met the Russian advance and, lifting his veil, revealed himself as a man and a Russian.

The next meeting between Ivanovitch and his wife was in a hospital within the Russian lines. He had been taken ill and relegated to the quarters of the sick. Mme. Ivanovitch had made her way back toward Erzerum and had been hoping that he had made good his escape. She had gone with Red Cross nurses to help in the hospital, and one day as she was passing his cot the two met.

She was free to kneel beside him, and the two embraced with thanks, the one to God, the other to Allah.

Liquor and Games Did Not Pay

Lorena Sturgis asks for severance of the bonds of matrimony in a complaint filed in the circuit court on Tuesday alleging cruelty, laziness, addiction to liquor and gambling, on the part of Jesse Earl Sturgis. The husband's family, with whom Mrs. Sturgis was forced to live, is charged with many indignities against her. The couple was married on December 14, 1909. There are no children and no property rights and the plaintiff asks for the restoration of her maiden name, Lorena Wigginton.

REPORT RETURNS

A. I. and J. Hughes Have Fine Record on Red Wing Farm

A. I. and J. Hughes, owners of Red Wing farm, near Oregon City, report the following returns from their Guernsey cows entered for advanced registry:

Florham's Red Wing of the Glen's Lily, 2 years 1 month, 5863.6 pounds milk, 319.63 pounds fat; Modele's Jolly Lass, 2 years 2 months, 9343.4 pounds milk, 395.49 pounds fat, and has made on re-entry 53.2 pounds of fat in March, being dry but one month before calving; Red Wing of the Glen, 4 years 3 months, has 10,758.6 pounds milk, 607.03 pounds fat; and Jennie Van, 6 years, made 13,107.2 pounds milk and 663.49 pounds of fat. Bonito Gypsy, 2 years 6 months, and Governor's Memorial Rose, 2 years 3 months, have both made more than their requirements for advanced registry and have till the latter part of August to complete their records.

All the above cows were on the fair circuit last fall for three weeks, while on test, which lowered their butterfat record considerably, especially the heaviest producers. Moral: "Do not show test cows if you expect to get the best possible record."

Red Wing farm recently shipped an 8-month-old bull calf to P. E. Allen, of Nehalem, also sold first prize bull calf to G. N. Heggard, Newberg. F. S. Hutchins heads his herd of purebreds with a son of Red Wing of the Glen, 607.03 pounds of fat, and Chas. A. Rider heads his grade herd with a son of Jennie Van, 663.49 pounds fat. "All bull calves are sold out and future calves spoken for," say the owners.

"One of our grade Guernsey cows, Topsy, 6 years old, made 76.40 pounds of fat in December, being the leading cow of the Clackamas County Cow-testing association for the month. In 147 days she has made 308.64 pounds of fat.

"For the month of April there were five Guernsey breeders with cows on official test in the association. A year ago there was one herd on test in the association.

"There are a number of registered Guernsey bulls now in the county heading grade herds."

P. R. L. & P. Repairs Surface

The P. R. L. & P. Co., has a crew at work on its Main street tracks and is removing the stone filler between the tracks and at the outer edge. This work is done to make a better surface with the new asphalt street covering, as the ties, which extend beyond the edge of the stones, has caused an uneven surface. The company is cutting the pavement away to the ends of its ties and will fill this space in with Belgian blocks. A recent attempt to roll the defective surface into shape was not successful.

St. Paul's guild served a delightful luncheon to the visiting churchmen and in the evening the King's Daughters were the entertainers. Dean Ramsey of St. Stephen's pro-cathedral of Portland, preached at the evening service.

Derthick Club Elects

Mrs. T. A. Burke and Mrs. C. G. Miller were the hostesses of the Derthick club at the home of the former at Gladstone on Friday afternoon. Dimick; secretary, Mrs. Livy Stipp; treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Howland.

Among the features of the afternoon was the presentation of a handsome gold wrist watch to Mrs. Nieta Barlow Lawrence from the members of the Derthick chorus, this being presented to Mrs. Lawrence as a token from the musical club.

This is the last of the regular meetings of the Derthick club for the season, but an evening party will be given on Friday, May 26, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Loder on Ninth and Center streets.

Gospel Team at Clarks

With seventeen members of a Gospel team, the Rev. J. K. Hawkins went to Clarks on Sunday afternoon to conduct a service in the Methodist church there. Two hundred people in that community attended the service, which was the first of a series that is being held at Clarks this week.

The Rev. Mr. Hawkins held a meeting at the same church on Tuesday evening and will continue the series during the remainder of the week. In the intervals between services the pastor is visiting the membership in the Clarks neighborhood.

Mrs. Wells Defendant

Action has been started in the circuit court here by Judge G. B. Dimick and W. A. Dimick for the recovery of $250 attorney fees from Mrs. Mary C. Wells, recently acquitted on a charge of defrauding an insurance company. Dimick and Dimick defended the elderly Oswego woman in the recent trial and it is this fee that they would compel Mrs. Wells to pay.

Parkplace Road Closed

Pending the completion of paving operations, the Parkplace road between that community and Oregon City, has been closed. Roadmaster Roots and Harry Worswick, superintendent of paving, are rushing the work on the road after a delay of several days due to a lack of asphalt, but this week the arrival of several hundred tons of material at the paving plant enabled the crews to get at their labors.

It is estimated that the road work will be completed within three weeks, and when finished the road will be open for travel.
