Death Comes To Mrs. Wilson's Relief

Death came to the relief of Mrs. W. C. Wilson 6 o'clock Thursday morning after 36 hours of agony, from burns received Tuesday night when a can of benzine exploded, setting her clothing on fire.

Her screams were heard by neighbors, who rushed to her assistance and medical attention was given. Mrs. Wilson was 65 years of age and is survived by her husband and one son, Harry B. Wilson, of Gladstone.

The funeral will be conducted from the family home at Gladstone this afternoon, and interment will be had in the Mountain View cemetery.

Local Militiamen Given Enterprise

Whether they are on the Mexican border or encamped at the mobilization grounds at Clackamas, members of Company G, Oregon City's own soldier boys, will be constantly in touch with affairs in Oregon City.

Wednesday The Enterprise notified Captain Blanchard that a copy of this paper would be sent daily to each of the men free. At first all of the papers will be sent in one bundle to the company in care of the captain.

If company G is sent to the Mexican border, The Enterprise will follow them, carrying each day the events back home. Even though the men will probably be shifted from one position to another when in active service, mail will be forwarded to each new position.

A copy of The Enterprise, filled with local news, will be like a letter from home each day, the best cure for homesickness.
