Harris, Mrs. Stella Hughes and Coxie Thomas will speak for affirmative and Miss Echo Spence, C. E. Spence and Miss Lewison on the negative side.

Take This for Lagrippe Coughs

The danger of lagrippe lies in its tendency to develop pneumonia, and the March death record from pneumonia is appalling. Stop your cold before it reaches the danger point, and take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Mr. W. P. Bowen, Jims, Go., writes: "I had a terrible attack of lagrippe, aches and pains all over my body and a dry hacking lagrippe cough. I began taking Foley's Honey and Tar and when O had taken one bottle my cough was cured, my cold was well."—Jones Drug Co.

CLARKES

It looks as if spring has come at last, because everything is beginning to grow now. We had a thunder shower Sunday and it is still raining, but we hope it will quit soon, now. Mrs. Albert Buol went back home to Oregon City last Friday.

HEAR WITHOUT EARS

Police and Detectives are Using Lip Reading in Place of Dictagraph.

Thousands of deaf people are today throwing away all hearing devices and enjoying all conversation. This method is easily and quickly acquired through our system. Absolutely the only thing of its kind in the country. Our proposition is entirely original. We guarantee results, it will amaze you. Cost is trifling. See what New International Encyclopedia says on Lip Reading. Hundreds of people with normal hearing are taking up Lip Reading for the many benefits gained. You can understand what the actors are saying in the moving pictures. You can understand what people are saying just as far away as you can see them. The eye understands beyond the range of hearing. Send no money, but mention this paper and state whether or not you are deaf. All particulars will be sent you absolutely free and with no expense to you. Address, School of Lip Language, Kansas City, Missouri.

LOGAN

H. R. Corless and family had the misfortune to have their house and most of the contents destroyed by fire last week. The fire was not discovered in time to save the building. The telephone and organ were carried to safety, which was about all that remained after the good servant, but bad master, had finished his work.

The laymen's meeting at the church last Sunday was all that could have been expected on the part of speaking and singing, and was thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed by the fair audience that was present.

J. W. Loder, the chairman, led the speaking in his happiest mood, and was followed by T. A. Burke, F. A. Olmsted and H. E. Cross, all of whom told of many things that are most worth while.

Mr. Cross told of being present at the dedication of the church years ago, and of the contribution of $200 toward the building by a poor girl who had made the money working for $4 or less, per week, the contribution having made the building possible. Mr. Cross did not give her name, but it was Lucy Tucholke. The singing by the quartet was excellent.

Kirchem Bros., of Arthurs' Prairie, have erected a silo so as to be in a state of preparedness with succulent corn feed next fall and winter.

C. N. Tracy took a load of porkers to Portland this week. The big European scrap seems to have boosted the price and changed the demand somewhat in that line. Larger hogs are wanted, 200 pounds being a favorite size.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Gerber have another girl boarder at their house. Edwin keeps hired men generally and seems to be looking out for the future supply of housekeepers.

There will be an entertainment given by the Estaeda school at the grange hall on the 25th.

REDLAND

The Redland, Firgrove and Evergreen schools are going to give a play at Firgrove school some time in April, entitled "An Old Maid's Convention." The cast will be composed of 28 old maids; none will be under 25 years of age, and each must have all the other necessary qualifications to fill the bill. It promises to be a hummer.

Mr. Jenkins has traded his place for property at Oak Grove to a Mr. Alexander, who has moved onto the farm.

Willie Hubert was elected director in District No. 75, Mr. Jenkins resigning.

Well, from observation it appears not. When a man gets off with one year at McNeil's Island for stealing $49,000.00 and some poor wretch, who is starving, steals or helps himself to a loaf of bread, is sent up for two years, it shows that there is certainly something wrong somewhere.

The early spring-sown grains are coming along nicely, but the ground has not been fit for sowing this month so there will be quite a bit of grain sown later.

Wm. Gaskell, who has a 10-acre fruit tract at Kennewick, will leave for that place soon.

Mr. Powers is reported to have sold his place and will go back to Eastern Oregon.

The flurry in the hog market at the present time is the result of farmers generally quitting the business.

STAFFORD

The Ladies' Circle enjoyed a delightful day the 16th, with Mrs. August Delkar, sewing for their hostess.

Mrs. Louisa Oldenstadt, who is home from Portland for a short vacation, and Mrs. Hite were guests of honor.

At the hour for the good of the order the Worthy President, Mrs. Harrison, had arranged a St. Patrick's day program, which all enjoyed. At the next meeting, the third Thursday in April, they are to celebrate Easter.

The Circle was organized about five years ago for the purpose of getting the neighbors acquainted with each other, for, since the advent of the telephone, neighbors saw each other but seldom. It is proving more and more a success.

Yards are bright with early flowers and fields green with growing grain, and war—even in Mexico—seems afar off.

Adolph Delkar's wife seem to be slowly improving.

Sidney Seedling recovers strength very slowly and the family talk of removing to a dryer climate.

I. Q. Gage called upon our old time friend and neighbor, Capt. W. E. Hayes, one day last week.

Among the visitors were: Mrs. Sarah Dallas, of Damascus; Mrs. F. C. Wilson, of Warner Grange, and James Bell, of Sandy.

CHERRYVILLE

The question debated at the last Literary meeting was "Resolved, that truth is stranger than fiction." An animated discussion was brought on, and many facts were related that heretofore had been regarded as pure fiction.

Mrs. Freil, who has lately many trips to Oregon City in connection with an apparently interminable law suit, received a jingle at a recent social gathering to the effect that the high cost of living was nothing as compared with the high cost of "law-ing."

Snow has vanished from these parts, and seasonable weather is in vogue.

EAST CLACKAMAS

Some of our natives thought when the Carver crew were unloading posts that they were unloading material for a new depot. Nothing doing, however.

Jack Welch is one of largest ranchers in our midst.

Mrs. Zinsler, of Stafford, visited last week with Mrs. H. Klinker.

The E. C. Social Club will meet at Mrs. Lena Heinrich's next Wednesday.

The attendance at Sunday school at the schoolhouse is on the increase and we hope it will keep on growing larger.

DAIRY and CREAMERY

KEEPING DAIRY RECORDS.

Importance of the Milk Sheet in Showing Profit or Loss.

Next to the cow herself, the most important thing in the dairy is the milk sheet. Let us see how it works out. writes a correspondent of the Country Gentleman.

Assuming that in Mr. Blank's dairy there is a milk sheet, look at the daily records for the past few days. We find Molly milking thirty pounds, thirty and one-half pounds, thirty-one pounds, thirty-two pounds. The gradual increase which keeps up for the whole week is an indication that she is doing well. Next to her is Tidy, and her record shows thirty pounds, twenty-six pounds, twenty-five pounds—a gradual decline.

The Jersey is a very fine cow, giving rather a smaller yield of milk than some of the other dairy breeds. Its milk, however, is very rich in butter fat and produces butter of a superior quality. Its intrinsic merit as a dairy animal has given it a prominent place in the dairy development of the United States. The animal shown is a Jersey cow of pure breeding.

We ask the herdsman, "How about it?" and after considerable investigation find that early in the week Tidy had her bag torn on the barbed wire fence when she and another cow were locking horns.

Half a dozen more cows are milking steadily, giving all they can for the feed they get. With due regard to their length of lactation. Then we strike Spottle, who has dropped in a week from thirty-five to twenty pounds. What's wrong here?

"Well, she was being fed separately, as she is a fussy cow, and the boy who carries in the silage forgot to give her any at all for two days, and she went right down."

In the other barn we find for four days a decrease in milk for every animal. An inquiry brings out the statement that the silo from which that lot was fed had some moldy silage in it and nobody noticed it until it had been fed for a few days.

Now, supposing there had been no milk sheet in Mr. Blank's barn. Tidy's milk might not have said a word about her having a torn adder and without doctoring it might have been practically ruined. Spottle would have gone off her feed and shrunk in her milk. The moldy silage would not have been discovered as soon as it was, and there would have been some sick cows.

If you will only listen to it, this milk sheet will tell you when there is ice in the drinking water, when the corn in the silo is too green, when the alfalfa is musty, when the barn is too cold or damp, when the milk isn't as careful about stripping as he ought to be and about other things. Among the most important, it will tell you when a cow gives just enough milk to pay for the feed she eats or a little less maybe, which means that she is a poor cow or that you are a poor feeder.

Hanging against the wall at the right of the milk scale, it requires only half a minute for the milker to jot down on the milk sheet the weight of the milk he has just drawn from the cow. It is a dairy speedometer and better, for, while a speedometer tells you how fast you are traveling, the milk sheet tells you how fast your cows are going, how slow and why and whether you should speed them up or slow them down, repair them or get others.

Milk Fever.

It is quite possible for a poor cow to have an attack of milk fever, but usually it is the pampered, heavily fed, adult, big producing cow that is attacked. The disease will be less likely to attack if rich feed is withheld for six weeks or more before calving and during that time the bowels are kept active and the cow is made to take abundant exercise every day. At calving time either let the calf suck for a week or don't milk out clean for three or four days unless found necessary to prevent garget. The disease is treated by milking out and then infusing each quarter of the udder with air as soon as the attack is noticed. The inflation is done by means of a sterilized milking tube, small rubber tube and special syringe or a clean bicycle pump if the regular apparatus is not available.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Remedy For Calf Sours.

I would suggest to those farmers who may have troubles with diarrhea among calves, writes a correspondent of the Hoard's Dairyman, to give twice a day in a half pint of warm milk two drams (two teaspoonfuls) each of powdered dill extract of rhubarb and macreduin with two tablespoonfuls of sweet spirits after. This is an old remedy, but one of the best.

ABOUT STOCK DEAL

Correspondent Analyzes Possible Result of W. V. S. Changes

Editor, Courier: From developments at the meeting of the stockholders of the Willamette Valley Southern Railway Company on Thursday, the 16th, the farmers of Clackamas County, and others, have been experiencing a little "high finance."

The reading of the minutes was dispensed with, on motion made by the bondholders' representative, at the suggestion of the chairman, the plea being that it would take three quarters of an hour to read them through. This, of course, prevented any possible embarrassing questions and explanations. The minutes were consequently accepted without reading. (For the benefit of the uninitiated, the word "minutes" here means the written record of business transacted at the previous meeting.) We understand that the stockholders' meeting would ordinarily have been held sooner, only that the minutes had not been put into presentable shape. This neglect of the writing up of the minutes, we understand, commenced with the first Secretary of the company, who was in the habit of writing up from memory such record long after each meeting.

Several of the stockholders evinced a lively interest and curiosity in regard to past and pending transactions of the company, questioning particularly the deal made with the bondholders whereby the unpaid capital stock of the company—approximately $750,000.00—was given to the bondholders when the bonds were sold. It seems the majority of the stockholders understood at the previous meeting—that the above mentioned $750,000.00 gift was made—that said amount of capital stock was to be held by the bondholders simply as collateral to protect their (the bondholders') interest. The resolution granting this stock was explained at that time in such a manner as to leave this impression, the stockholders being given to understand that the stock was to be returned to the company later. To a business man this sort of a deal is absurd on its face, since the bondholders were already protected by having a mortgage on the entire property of the company, and having control of more than 50 per cent of the original paid $250,000.00 of capital stock. When questioned as to this deal, the chairman attempted to leave the impression that the $750,000.00 of unpaid stock was held simply as collateral, but when pressed for a definite reply admitted that absolute title to the stock had been given the bondholders. Consequently, the bondholders' representative had absolute control of all business transacted at said meeting, and voting on the part of the original stockholders was simply a matter of form and a farce.

The resolution increasing the capital stock of the company by $250,000, first preferred 6 per cent cumulative stock and $250,000.00 second preferred stock was, of course, passed, it being explained that the first and the second preferred was issued for the purpose of redeeming a promise made by the directors to the original stockholders to the effect that they were to be "protected" by being permitted to exchange their stock for preferred. It was stated by one of the directors that the bondholders' representative had been good enough to allow the original stockholders to exchange two shares of their common stock for one of second preferred, one of the shares of common to be cancelled and the other to be given to the bondholders. The first preferred stock is in the nature of a second mortgage—that is, it must receive 6 per cent dividends for every year before any dividend whatever can be declared on the second preferred. The second preferred is entitled to 6 per cent dividends should any be declared above the 6 per cent on the first preferred. If any profits remain declared available for dividends after paying the above two, the common stock will be entitled to such remaining dividend. The company has the right, at any time, on notice, to redeem the whole amount of either or both the first preferred and second preferred, by paying par value of same together with any dividends (Continued on Page 7)
