THE FASHIONS

Paris and New York are both at the moment, and have been for ever so many weeks back, in the midst of the Spring opening hubbub. We are not quite sure as yet whether coats are to be short or three-quarter length, whether sleeves are to be tight or loose, whether blonde or brunette will be the fashion this season.

It is quite safe to predict, however, that the same general lines suggested in the mid-season openings and at the various fashion shows will be followed.

Here and There the Tapering Waist
Quite often one notices in the new importations a tendency to the slender, tapering waist; and this, of course, means the well-corseted figure. It is not probable that the hour-glass figure will be countenanced for a moment, but a trifle more trimness, conduced by a well-fitting modern corset, is necessary to meet the requirements of the Spring suit, with its hint of a curve at the waistline, its graceful flaring skirt and coat-skirt. A carefully selected and properly fitted corset is necessary and always has been to a smart, well-groomed appearance. Rather than injurious, the right corset tends toward health.

Several of the Paris houses are advocating the three-quarter length coat, and now and then one sees a polonaise effect. These coats are made with well-fitted shoulders and show the wide variety we are to enjoy this Spring and Summer.

A Word on Skirts

Skirts continue short and full. Many of the houses are emphasizing the favor shown by them for the crinoline since the first whisper of full skirts began to circulate, and many are using interesting methods of extending the skirts; among these are reeds, featherbone, and even hair-cloth stiffenings. In many instances the reeds are graceful and becoming, but, as a rule, the effect is extremely awkward, as there is no pretense whatever of concealing the mediums, and they often protrude at unexpected angles, giving a curious, unbecoming result.

In the regulation Summer frock and the dance dress of net, organdy, or other of the sheer, dainty fabrics favored this year, the fullness of the skirt is made decidedly graceful and youthful by tucks, ribbons and bias bands of the same, or a contrasting material. Often folds of chiffon or gauze are attached to the inside of the skirt of the dance dress giving a soft, bouffant effect which is pleasing in every way. Taffeta is unusually effective combined with, or as trimming for, the pale-toned frock of organdy or net, fashioning the Summer dance dress. In both illustrations this week the skirt is of taffeta, and the effect of the deep tuck is well brought out. The first dress has an underbodice of shadow lace, and a simple over-drapery of chiffon. The short sleeve cap, while it conceals the Fashion's sleeveless demand, also makes a concession to modesty. The second frock shows the combination of net and taffeta. Aside from being especially pretty, this combination is practical, as net wears particularly well and lends itself to almost any fashion of draping.

Ribbons and Ruchings
Pleatings and ruchings of all widths and fashions are still favored trimmings for both street and house frocks. Narrow black velvet ribbon is most effective and easily applied. On some of the imported models cordings, pipings, and ruchings appear in most unexpected places. One cannot fail to see that handwork, and individual hand-made trimmings, stitchings, etc., can work wonders, and afford an effect which can scarcely be brought about by machine-made trimmings. It is quite interesting to see a little blue serge frock trimmed with insertions of matching net, with accompanying pendant ornaments of wool or beads in a soft harmonizing coloring. Bead trimming is effective on both silk and wool materials; it is being used in any way that clever brains and fingers may design. The more original the notion, the more attractive the blouse or frock. Pale pink crepe de Chine or crepe is made more delicate by a banding or an ornament of delf-blue opaque beads. Dark blue taffeta or serge may be brightened with a touch of emerald green, orange, copper or a harmonizing, contrasting blue. There are any number of smart artistic ways of trimming frocks and blouses this season with practically no expenditure of money, if one has ideas and fingers deft enough to carry them out.

LOCAL COMPANY GROWS

Interest in Militia Increases, Following Campaign for Support

G. Company, of the Oregon National Guard, which has its headquarters in Oregon City, is rapidly growing, and will soon be recruited up to its full strength if indications count for anything. Captain Blanchard says enlistment are averaging about six a week, and much interest is being shown in the company since the recent campaign in its behalf. At the drills held in Armory Hall many spectators turn out, and of these about a third are women. The evolutions of the soldiers are closely watched, and when they do extra well they are applauded.

Captain Blanchard has received from the Adjutant General's office a complete complement of "march kits" which are issued only when it appears that the guard may be called on for service, and which are not to be opened until the soldiers receive definite orders to mobilize. This leads some of the officers to believe that there yet may be a call for the Guard in connection with the Mexican situation.

They Let Him Sleep

H. T. Strange, Gainesville, Ga., R. R. No. 3, was unable to sleep all night without getting up. "Sometimes only a few minutes after going to bed, I would have to get up, and I tried everything I heard of for the trouble. Finally I tried Foley Kidney Pills and after taking one bottle I believe I am entirely cured, and I sleep soundly all night." Foley Kidney Pills tone up weak, sluggish kidneys, rid the body of poisons, give appetite, energy and refreshing sleep.—Jones Drug Co.

LAYMEN'S RALLY PLANNED

Speeches and Singing at Evergreen School House Next Sunday

H. E. Cross, John W. Loder, Thomas A. Burke and F. A. Olmsted will be the speakers at a Laymen's rally to be held at Evergreen school house next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Music will be furnished by a male quartet and a mixed chorus, and everybody is invited to be on hand. The meeting will last an even hour, and is one of a series planned by prominent Oregon City folk to discuss the general topic: "Things Worth While."

The first of these meetings was held at Logan church March 19, and was a success from every viewpoint. The addresses delivered there were short and snappy, and were very much to the point, while the singing was inspiring.

Many Hear Brownell

At the Sunday night forum held weekly at Clarkes, George C. Brownell was the chief speaker last Sunday, and gave what his auditors termed "a rattling good talk." Mr. Brownell spoke on "Christ and Modern Commercialism." Next Sunday Messrs. Eastham and Butler, county seat attorneys, will be the speakers.

WASHINGTON HELPS US

Surplus Lumber from Evergreen State Is Sent to Oregon for Milling

According to a recent bulletin of the Forest Service, Oregon wouldn't be able to get along without its neighboring state on the north; for a goodly share of Oregon's lumber comes from the northern state. According to the figures compiled by the Forest Service, Washington produces about five and a half billion board feet of logs annually, but consumes only a little over 4 1-3 billion board feet. The balance is sent to Oregon for manufacture.

Washington produces approximately 8 1-3 million linear feet of poles and piling, and consumes about six million linear feet.

The railroads of Washington consume over 675,000 hewn ties, and the mines of the State consume 33,500 hewn ties. The State also consumes over ten million linear feet of round mine material.

Washington produces annually more than 4 1/2 billion feet of lumber, nearly half a billion pieces of lath, and over 8 1/2 billion shingles. Of this quantity, she consumes only 2 1/2 percent of the lath. Of the lumber produced, she consumes 17 1/2 percent, or over 700 million feet, about two-thirds of which is used for building purposes.

FINE NUT BOOK OUT

Southern Pacific Publication Describes State's Newest Industry

The Southern Pacific has recently issued a handsomely illustrated book "Oregon Walnuts." The text was written by Mr. C. I. Lewis, Chief Division of Horticulture, Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Oregon.

The cover plate shows a collection of Oregon walnuts in natural colors. The interior pictures are taken from various walnut orchards throughout Western Oregon, and show in addition to general views technical illustrations of grafting, pruning, budding, etc.

Prof. Lewis has covered the walnut industry very thoroughly in this book, and it should be in the hands of every walnut grower in this state. He treats first of the consumption of walnuts in the United States, and calls attention to the fact that here were imported into the United States last year over thirty million pounds of walnuts. Although Oregon produces but a small proportion of the walnuts grown in this country, nevertheless over one fourth of the young non-bearing walnut trees of the United States are right here in Oregon.

Copies of this book can be obtained from Southern Pacific Agents, or by addressing Mr. John M. Scott, General Passenger Agent, Southern Pacific Company, Portland, Oregon.

POINTS THE WAY

The Statement of This Milwaukee Resident Will Interest Readers

Our neighboring town, Milwaukee, points the way in the words of one of its most respected residents:

Mrs. Clara E. Cook, R. F. D. No. 2, Box 105, Milwaukee, Ore., says: "For years I suffered from pain in my back, which was more severe, if I over-taxed myself or caught the slightest cold. The kidney secretions were unnatural. Doan's Kidney Pills proved to be just the medicine I needed. They gave me quick relief from all the ailments." (Statement given April 5, 1906.)

Steadfast Confidence

After a Lapse of More Than Six Years, Mrs. Cook said: "I still consider Doan's Kidney Pills to be the best kidney medicine. They never fail to do me a great deal of good."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Cook has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

BIRD CLUB ORGANIZED

Maple Lane School Children for Organization to Aid Songsters

A "Liberty Bell bird club" has been organized by children at the Maple Lane school, and has a charter membership of 83. The Maple Lane club is identified with the Liberty Bell bird club of Philadelphia, which through its branches has a membership of 550,000; each state in the union being represented on its rolls. The Philadelphia club was formed in 1913, and since then its work has been carried to all sections of the country.

The club's motto is "Protect our feathered friends," and every member joining signs a pledge which reads: "I desire to become a member of the Liberty Bell bird club, and promise to study and protect all song and insectivorous birds, and do what I can for the club."

The Maple Lane club will have a special meeting and program on April 12, by which time a Junior Audubon club will be organized and join the other organization in work for bird protection and study.

INCIDENT OF WAR

Welsh Song Brings Truce on Battle Lines of Europe, Says Report

An interesting side-light on the great European war is given in recent correspondence of the Associated Press, which tells of a temporary truce between the entrenched soldiers near Dixmunde as the result of a bit of singing by a Welshman on the side of the Allies. The incident is recounted as follows:

"It was a miserable night. A heavy rain had filled the trenches knee-deep with half-frozen mud. There was no sound except the 'plop' of a German bullet against the earth of the parapet and the crack of a British rifle in return.

"We were unprepared for any break in the dull misery of our routine when out of the darkness came a

POULTRY-KEEPERS ASSOCIATION, Petaluma

Said "he nymph," having sojourned for sixty days in the tall timber between Kelso and Boring and found to be stark crazy.

Just as a surmise, which may help solve the mystery, it is barely possible, the poor fellow had just paid his current taxes and his bare hide was all he had remaining and the insanity may have developed, following an attempt to thread his way up the famous Boring Hill Road.—(East Clackamas News.)

MAGAZINE IS BRIGHT

Oregon-printed Book Devoted to Walnut Culture is Attractive

The Courier has received a copy of "The Walnut Book," published at Oremco, Oregon, and devoted to problems and news concerning the culture of walnuts in the state. H. V. Meade is editor and manager, and is setting out a most attractive and interesting periodical, in which walnut growers will find much of interest. The articles cover a wide range of problems, and are well worth reading.

Typographically the magazine is more than usually pleasing, and the color work on the cover is artistic and well executed. The magazine also contains a department devoted to general horticultural matters, and should be of value to all Oregon farmers, whether they are directly interested in walnut culture or not.

Coroner Out for Re-election

Petitions for the nomination of Dr. W. E. Hempstead as coroner on the republican ticket are being circulated throughout the county, and are getting many signers. Dr. Hempstead is the present coroner, and his work has been repeatedly endorsed by the county court. He is among the most popular physicians in the county seat, and as yet no opposition to his re-election has developed.

Now that the convention date draws nearer, quite a number of "favored native sons" are willing to take a chance—knowing full well that the vote is complimentary, and that they won't have to be official goats.
