

$109

for this

Victrola outfit

Victrola XI (Mahogany or oak) . . $100
Twelve 10-inch 75c. double-faced Victor Records (24 selections) . . . 9
$109

One of the most popular styles of the Victrola, and with your own selection of records you'll have an outfit that will give constant pleasure to every one in your home. Come in any time and we'll gladly play any music you wish to hear—and we'll tell you about our plan of easy terms which will enable you to get this Victrola outfit for your home right now.

Other styles of the Victor and Victrola $10 to $400.

Huntley Bros. Co.
Victor Agents for Oregon City

Printing that has "the Punch"

THE COURIER has one of the best equipped job offices in the state. Our exceptionally modern facilities, augmented by skillful workmanship and constant study of the printing art, enable us in every instance to merit the slogan:

"Printing That Has the Punch"

Give Us a Trial on Your Next Order

Both Phones: 51
Courier Building
Oregon City, Oregon

Saturday Shopping Hints for Home Shoppers

With Eastertide at hand, Oregon City stores are offering a most appealing line of rare bargains—just the things that you need for the Spring-time festival.

Naturally clothes are the most prominent things in the minds of careful buyers this week, and at Bannons' is offered a wonderful display from which selections may be made. Easter suits for women—the $25 kind—are being offered for $18; there is a dazzling array of sport coats for the spring season; Welworth blouses at $2 are just the things you have been looking for to complete your outfit. Then there are the popular Parisian corsets to give style. Saturday Bannons' are offering a free souvenir—something useful and in good taste.

Price Brothers are also bidding for Easter trade with a full line of the famous Stein-Bloch, L-System and Clothcraft clothes for men. And at Price's are also to be found the famous Nettleton shoe, the serviceable and stylish footwear for men.

Burmeister and Andersen are offering gifts of quality—just the little things in the jewelry line that you will want to make your Easter appearance complete; just the things to give to friends as an Easter offering.

Huntley Brothers are Oregon City agents for Victor talking machines and for the wonderful Victrolas, which will bring to your home the finest music in the world. Music and Easter go well together—and music and the Victor products are the same thing.

Miller & Obst are making a special reasonable showing of Kirschbaum suits from $15 up, and a serviceable grade of dependable clothes, usually sold at $13.50, are being offered at $10 as an Easter bargain. All sorts of furnishings are also carried in abundant stock.

People not only like to dress themselves up for Easter, but want to make their homes look bright too. And the Jones Drug Company has an extra large line of Acme Quality paints—just the thing for every bit of work about the home that needs brightening up.

Larsen & Co., are making a special appeal to farmers to bring in their produce and sell it for cash. One way to get Easter money and to make it work for you is to sell at Larsen's and then invest your profits in Oregon City stores, where satisfaction is guaranteed.

Adams Department Store is offering a special line of ladies' suits and coats at prices that are more than attractive for this season of the year. The style and quality of these garments is perfect, and every woman shopper should pay a visit to this store before selecting her Easter wardrobe. A special offering is also being made at this time of English last shoes for growing girls and young women.

Frank Busch, the reliable and long established furniture dealer, is in line with his share of "brighten up" materials for Easter, too. A big stock of the famous Armstrong linoleums is on hand, with many colors, patterns and grades to select from. The Busch store is also continuing its spring showing of wall papers, at prices from half a dollar a room up. Everything in the house furnishing line is to be had at Busch's, and satisfaction to the customer is the constant aim of the house.

R. L. Holman and T. P. Randall, Leading Undertakers, Fifth and Main St.; Telephones: Pacific 415-J; Home B-18.

One of the wind guys on the county bridge across the Willamette has broken. This being election time, when many wind guys are at large, it ought to be easy to replace the thing.

MOSES AND SANITATION.

Ancient Laws as Effective as Modern Rules of Hygiene.

There has been gathered a collection of facts to prove that the sanitary laws of Moses were not only on a line with the modern rules of hygiene, but in some cases in advance of them. The Jew, thousands of years before Christ, settling in a semitropical country, was forbidden to eat pork or shell fish, and milk was designated as a source of contagion. In the Talmud a method of slaughtering animals was prescribed which is acknowledged today in our markets as the most sanitary.

Five thousand years before Koch gave to the world the results of his researches in bacteriology the Mosaic law pointed out the danger to man from tuberculosis in cattle, but did not forbid infected poultry as food. It was only a few years ago that German specialists discovered that fowl tuberculosis was harmless to man.

The Mosaic law also enforced the isolation of patients with contagious diseases and the burial of the dead outside all cities. These hints the Gentile world did not fully accept until a century or two ago.

The wise lawgiver prescribed not only fasting at certain periods of the year, but the removal of all families in summer out to camps, where for a time they could live close to nature. Many of the laws of Moses were prescriptions intended for the health of both mind and body.—Boston Transcript.

NO EXCUSE FOR "AIN'T."

It is About the Worst Contraction in the English Language.

"Ain't" is an improper abbreviation of "are not." British writers spell it "a'n't," which properly indicates its derivation. Americans make it an inclusive offense, using it for "am not" and "is not," as well as for "are not." It is unquestionably the worst instance of slovenliness in the common speech of today.

Yet it is by no means universal or even common use. It will slip occasionally from refined lips, always with a far to the enunciator, as well as to the hearer. But the habitual user of "ain't" is careless of refinement. He may be an excellent citizen who never beats his wife nor kicks the cat. But there is likely to be something slipshod about him somewhere. For "ain't" is needless, as well as cacophonous. It fills no void and supplies no need.

English observers complain superciliously of the laxness of American speech. American observers who have listened to the marvels of Lancashire, Yorkshire, Devonshire and other shire dialects are inclined to resent any assumption of British superiority. But it is none the less desirable to eliminate our own linguistic sins, and of these "ain't" is the most deplorable.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Awkward.

A visitor to a hospital for soldiers was surprised to hear one of the patients being addressed by the nurses by his Christian name, it being customary to address patients by their surnames only. Upon inquiry as to why this distinction was accorded to the particular soldier referred to the reply received was:

"Well, we can't very well call him by his surname."

"But why not?" queried the somewhat astonished visitor.

"You see," was the overwhelming answer, "his surname is Love, and it's rather awkward."—London Tit-Bits.

Why Mosquitoes Like Blood.

The fact that mosquitoes so continually harass rich blooded creatures is due to the fact that they cannot lay eggs without the albuminous food which is thus obtained. In tropical countries the greatest enemy of the malarial bearing mosquito is a species of bat which is protected from the insect's bite by its strangely shaped hairs.

The bat is very swift of flight, and the mosquitoes, especially those which have already made a supper of blood, are their ideal food.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Japanese Needlewomen.

The daughters of the land of flowers sometimes curiously reverse European methods. They needle their thread instead of threading their needles, and instead of running their needle through the cloth they hold it still and run the cloth upon it. An English lady long resident in Tokyo once wrote to a friend that the impulse of her Japanese maids is always to sew on cuff frills and other similar things topsy turvy and inside out.

Two Important Matters.

"Now, Katie, do you know enough to keep your mouth shut?" asked the fashionable woman of the girl she was about to engage.

"Well, ma'am, I know enough to all right, but the question is, do I get enough wages to encourage me to?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Selfishness.

The selfish man suffers more from his selfishness than he from whom that selfishness withholds some important benefit.—Emerson.

Regrets.

For all we know, the gaudy butterfly may have moments in which it regrets the fine times it had as a caterpillar.—Puck.

Wisdom is oftentimes nearer when we stoop than when we soar.—Wordsworth.

Forgotten School Sued

In order to quiet title to property, George A. Harding has filed suit against the Clackamas County Female Seminary, which was established by an act of the territorial legislature in 1849, and which since has been forgotten. The property in question at this time was given to the old seminary as a Christmas present in 1862 by Peter Hatch. The school changed its name to the Oregon City Seminary in 1873, and then went out of existence.

The Messages of Eastertide

THAT Jesus was risen from the dead, that he had broken the bonds of the tomb and was alive among men, that his face had been unable to destroy him and thus overthrow his kingdom—this was the conviction that rallied his disciples.

THE one great revelation needed Jesus was sent into the world to declare. The angel gave assurance to the disciples at the empty tomb. So will there be sounded the word of consolation to all who are bereaved. Men are coming to realize the fact that death is an incident rather than a conclusion in the careers of men. It is the turning point of the material in its conflict with the spiritual. The science of life is now coming to be reckoned the science of everlasting life, and sin and death are receiving the rebuke of holiness and life. The last enemy has not yet lost his terrors. He will not until the great message of Eastertide shall ring in every heart.

THE Easter festival is the devotional expression of the soul's consciousness of its own destiny. This is the message of Easter. Immortality is an experience, not a dogma. It is a golden dream, yes, but more accurately it is a present experience.

THE advances of knowledge and the deductions of science, as well as the golden pages of revelation, all sanction the hope of immortality, and from the highest pinnacle of human expectancy, the glory crowned savior of the risen Christ, comes the definite word of assurance: "He is not here. He is risen." And then in full choral chant comes to the ears, redeemed from the grip of the last enemy, death, the most inspiring melody for the ears of mankind. "He is risen and become the first fruits of them that sleep." He has ascended on high to reign until he has put under his foot the last enemy, death. The syllables of time have become the unending story of eternity.

"LAW ENFORCEMENT" IS ALBRIGHT'S SLOGAN

John F. Albright

John F. Albright, republican candidate for sheriff, who is now serving his third term in the Oregon City council, says that if he is nominated and elected sheriff of Clackamas county he "will give the people what they have a right to expect from the sheriff's office." By this Mr. Albright means that he will strictly enforce the law, without favoritism or exception, that he will see that the routine business of the sheriff's office is promptly and efficiently handled, and that he will pay special attention to moral conditions within his jurisdiction.

If Mr. Albright is elected sheriff there will be none of the past discord and midnight orgies at the various river resorts in this county, and boys and girls will not be led into wayward lives by vicious characters who invade the county from Portland. The prohibition law will be enforced to the letter, and all of its "teeth" will be bared for violators—whether they attempt bootlegging on a small scale or operate blind pigs on a large scale.

In the sheriff's office itself Mr. Albright promises to establish a strict business administration, with the daily activity of the office so entered upon a public ledger that any taxpayer may come in at any time and see exactly what county money has been spent and for what purpose the outlay has been made. Mr. Albright adds that every complaint, no matter of what nature, will be promptly investigated; and that the special deputies in all parts of the county will be instructed to report to him at once any law violations or unseemly behavior. Outside deputies will wear stars because they will be expected to aid in law enforcement; and badges will not be given as ornaments or for political favors.

Mr. Albright points to his councilman record in the county seat and to his business dealings as proof of his character, and says that he will manage county business if elected just as carefully as he would manage his own business. (Paid Adv.)

MANY SHIPS ORDERED

Revival of American Merchant Marine Shows in Shipyard Reports

Statistics collected by the government from the shipyards of the United States show a marked revival in the building of steel merchant ships from July 1, 1915 to April 1 of this year. At the last report 360 steel vessels of a total gross tonnage of 1,067,856 were under construction.

Three shipyards on the Pacific coast, two at San Francisco and one on Puget Sound, are included in the list; and all of the three are working to capacity. These figures do not include wooden ships being built for coastwise or river trade; but include only the big steel cargo carriers that will carry the American flag over the "Seven Seas" and on the Great Lakes. Of the total vessels being built, 176 are for oceanic service and have a total gross tonnage of 823,651. Smaller vessels aggregating 244,205 gross tonnage are being built for trade on the Great Lakes and from them to the sea.

ONCE A SOVEREIGN STATE.

Now Noli is Simply a Fishing Village With a Past.

One of the oldest and quaintest little independent states that ever existed in Europe—the tiny republic of Noli, founded before Rome and maintaining its liberty for many centuries until Napoleon swept away its privileges—is today merely a fishing village near Genoa, but it is full of reminders of its former greatness and affords a wonderful glimpse of medieval times. Destroyed by the Carthusians in 217 B. C., and who knows how often by subsequent marauders, there seemed no limit to her powers of recovery.

This quaint little fishing village-maintained itself as a sovereign state for centuries, took a prominent part in the quarrels of Guelphs and Ghibellines, sent doughty warriors to the Crusades, commanded the interest of emperors and popes and only succumbed at last to the armies of Napoleon. Dante clambered hither over terrible hills on hands and knees and reveled himself by consigning Noli to his "Purgatory."

Everybody is rich in this poor man's paradise, says the Wide World Magazine. During the anchovy months it is not rare for the 120 boats to earn $4,000 in a night, or $75,000 in a season. Through fish alone a man earns far more than a clerk, besides which he has no "appearances" to keep up. Under these happy conditions he soon acquires land and houses, which afford a steady revenue while he sleeps or fishes. The earth here has only to be scratched in order to bring forth wealth, so rich is the soil and so abundant the water.

PERILOUS ATHLETICS.

Sport That Wrecks the Heart an Evil to Be Avoided.

"No one will gainsay the value and pleasure of outdoor exercise graduated to suit the needs of every individual throughout life," says the Journal of the American Medical Association, "but the species of overdoing called for in the intense competition of the great contests of our schools and colleges can no longer be defended by platitudes regarding the alleged psychological value of its competitive features. The time has come when statistics regarding latent athletic injuries must be reckoned with and the lives of our youths safeguarded by making a distinction between sane sport and insane participation in the intolerable strain of competitive games of the extreme type."

The same paper says the authorities of colleges need to be reminded in an emphatic way, in the words of Dr. R. N. Wilson of Philadelphia, that "no form of athletic event is sane that demands of the participants the semiconscious state of heart exhaustion at its conclusion."

And it denounces the daredevil forms of "sport" that depend for their thrill on nearest possible approach to death by the actors in them, such, for example, as "looping the loop" in an aeroplane or driving a motorcar a hundred miles an hour. Such, it says, are not sport, but degeneracy.

A Strange Situation.

"Humor is a very funny thing," said Blinks.

"It ought to be," said the philosopher.

"Oh, I don't mean that way," said Blinks. "I mean that it is a strange thing. Now, I can't speak French, but I can always understand a French joke, and I can speak English, but I'm blessed if I can see an English joke."

"Most people are," said the philosopher.

"Are what?" said Blinks.

"Blessed if they can see an English joke," said the philosopher. "It is a sign of an unusually keen vision."

Force of the Imagination.

There is a story of a man who was tied up in a dark room and informed that he was to be put to death by bleeding. His tormentors made a small incision in his neck and arranged for a stream of lukewarm water to trickle down his back for fifteen minutes. At the end of fifteen minutes the man died of exhaustion. He had not lost a drop of blood, but he thought he had. Such is the power of suggestion.—London Saturday Review.

Disraeli's Humor.

I was introduced by particular request to Mrs. Wyndham Lewis, a pretty little woman, a flirt and a rattle. Indeed, gifted with a volubility I should think unregarded and of which I can convey no idea. She told me she liked "silent, melancholy men." I answered that I had no doubt of it. Letter of Benjamin Disraeli to His Sister.

Different Effects.

"The same thing will make entirely different impressions on different readers," remarked the man who writes. "Quite so," replied the lawyer. "Let us which bring tears to a girl's eyes frequently make a jury laugh."—Washington Star.

Paraguay Lacs.

Lace making was taught the natives of Paraguay by missionaries two centuries ago. Today in all towns of 8,000 inhabitants many of the men and nearly all the women and children make lace collars, handkerchiefs and ladies' ties.

Accomplished.

Blotbs—I never knew such a liar as Longbow. Blotbs—Yes. That fellow could actually eat an onion and lie out of it.—Philadelphia Record.

Diversity of opinion proves that things are only what we think them.—Montaigne.

Willamette Teachers Picked

Directors of the old Willamette school district have selected teachers for the coming year as follows: Miss Emily Marshall, third and fourth grades; Miss Elizabeth Wirth, fifth and sixth grades; Miss Ethel DeBok, primary; Mrs. Etta May Hawley, seventh and eighth grades. Mrs. Hawley's home is in Salem. Miss Marshall and Miss Wirt were reelected. The board will elect a principal sometime next month.

FIRE DRAWS CROWD

Historic Selling House Seat of Sunday Afternoon Blaze

The Selling house, 60 years old, and recently moved to Fifth and Water streets from its original location, was the scene of a lively fire Sunday afternoon that drew a large crowd of spectators to the waterfront in the county seat. The blaze, which originated in a defective flue, mushroomed out in the attic and gave the fire department a battle for awhile. Two lines of hose were needed to subdue the flames, and two alarms were sounded on the alarm system.

Councilman John F. Albright distinguished himself by setting a heart-breaking pace with the apparatus to the fire when the first alarm sounded, and others on the lines had difficulty in keeping up with him. At the fire itself members of Cataract hose sprayed down their fellow firemen from the central station when Cataract's stream broke through the roof of the structure; and later both companies united and gave the crowd a shower.

The house is owned by the Charman estate, and was occupied by Mrs. R. F. Wood, who operated it as a lodging house. Miss Rose Uptegrove, Clackamas county's candidate for queen of the Portland Rose Festival, was on the scene early, and assisted in removing property of lodgers from the burning building.

TRIES, BUT FAILS

County Seat Youth Has Laudable Temperance Ambition, It Seems

In the county seat there lives a youth who rejoices in the name of Arthur, and who doesn't believe in strong drink. It is needless to go into further details as to his personality. Sufficient be it that this week he waged with a friend that he could drink a dozen bottles of soda pop, one right after the other. If he failed he was to pay for what he did drink and take the friend to the movies; if he succeeded the friend was to pay for the twelve bottles of soda.

The pair adjourned to the local soda factory, explained the conditions of their wager to the proprietor thereof, and then the test commenced. One after another the youth of temperance gulped down four bottles of soda pop, and then started in on the fifth. He got half of the fifth down, tried hard to absorb the second half, and then gaspingly gave up.

Four and a half bottles of soda pop is a little over a quart of water, flavored extract and carbonic acid gas. It is a considerable cargo for the human stomach, and is a gross tonnage of which to be proud. But it didn't win the bet.

FIREMEN ARE FESTIVE

Speeches and Smoker Feature Welcome to New Department Head

Harry Bradley, new chief of the county seat fire department, was guest of honor at Mountain View Hose company's home Monday evening of this week, and was entertained in royal style by about a hundred of the city's firemen. Councilman Henry M. Templeton was the orator of the occasion, and pleased the smokers greatly by his eloquent periods; and some of the firemen also got a chance to say a few words. A banquet and a smoker wound up the program.

Chief events of the smoker were a lively boxing match between Mike Long, a former chief of the department, and "Blacksmith" Pat Edwards, in which Edwards got the decision. "Scoop" Young and Ray Welch also met in the squared circle, and slugged away at each other to a draw.

...Additional... Locals...

Eli B. Dutcher, 52 years of age, a resident of Clackamas, was sent to the state hospital for the insane at Salem this week, after having been picked up near Canemah by Patrolmen Woodward and Cooke Monday night, wandering aimlessly about.

M. J. Lee, water baron of Canby, was in the county seat the early part of the week, looking at automobiles.

A. F. Dalkar, of Sherwood, was a county seat visitor Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Snyder of Milwaukie have returned to their home after a short visit with friends in Salem.

Frank Scouton, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Scouton, has returned to his home in Mountain View after having spent the past two years in Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Flechtner are being congratulated by their friends on the arrival of a baby son last Sunday evening.

C. F. Hagemann, of Gladstone, has left for Minneapolis, where he will take personal charge of business interests he has had there for some time. His family will follow him shortly.

Twenty bird houses, made by the manual training students in the county seats, schools, have been placed in Library park, on the hill.

To Fix Paving

Franklin T. Griffith, president of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company was in the county seat Tuesday, conferring with members of the city council over the new freight franchise sought by the interurban line and in regard to traffic problems in general. While here Mr. Griffith said that the railway company would undertake to "fix up" the lumps and waves in the new Westwick paving on Main street just as soon as clear weather started in. This irregularity in the paving is said to be due to the movement of the railroad ties beneath the street surface.